Ten Injured as Bus, Van Crash

BRAKES FAIL TO HOLD TRUCK

Passengers Badly Shaken In West End Collision; Drivers of Both Cars Hurt

Ten persons were injured when a heavy moving van crashed into an Imperial bus carrying between 15 to 20 passengers at South Main street and Mansfield road today.

The truck driver, Harry Warburton, of Minneapolis, narrowly escaped serious injury as his machine [illegible]hed into a parked car at So. Main street and came to a stop against trees on a lawn a few yards from the front porch of Mrs. C. F. Heselbarth, at 600 South Main street.

A faulty airbrake line was blamed for the accident by Warburton. He reported to police as he neared the intersection of South Main street, he failed to stop. An attempt to swerve the heavy truck from the path of the bus, which was turning into Mansfield road from South Main street, was futile, the van hitting the right fender headon.

The injured were carried to the offices of Dr. Victor Eisenstein, South Main and Wabash streets.

The van was owned by the Cameron Transfer Company, of Minneapolis.

The list of injured included: James Leech and wife, of Imperial; A. L. Matchett, Clinton, Pa.; Mary Patrick, 1229 Fifth avenue; Francis Smith, bus driver; Mr. Romeo, Anna Blenda, of Fifth avenue; Robert White, 303 Mayflower street, East End; Harry Warburton, driver of the truck, of Minneapolis, whose injuries are slight.

AKRON REACHES NEW ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—(AP.)—The U. S. Navy dirigible Akron passed over New Orleans this morning en route to the Pacific Coast.

The world's largest aircraft, with 80 men aboard, left Lakehurst yesterdy to join the United States fleet off California. She sped south as far as the Carolinas before setting her course across the continent, and radio messages to the Navy Department in Washington told of comfortable travel, weather justifying shirtsleeve costume, while passengers and crew members off duty listened to music from a loudspeaker.

The Making of an American
JOHN NANCE GARNER

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHAT makes an American? What makes an American different from an Englishman, a Frenchman, a German or an Italian? What particular background, what special experience, what distinctive ideals and desires?

We need to know. For America is in a jam. It is in the worst jam of its history. It is not only struggling to restore its industry and finance. It is struggling to retain and restore its own character.

As never before in our history we need an American—someone who is the product of our unique life, who knows what we are all about—to get us out of our jam and set us going on our own trail again. We need a man. Not just a smart or successful or popular or powerful man—but an AMERICAN man.

What makes such a man? Where may he be found?

Speaker Garner

CHAPTER ONE.
A BOY PLOUGHING

A boy is ploughing. It is barely dawn. Cold. The leafless trees are black against the watery sky. The light spreads in a clinging, silvery web along the ground.

The boy, too, is a black shadow moving against the pale sky in slow, plunging jerks, as the plough cuts its difficult way through the deep, wild soil.

Steam rises in a white cloud from the horses' backs and the boy's mouth. There is the strong, animal smell of sweating horses; the sharp, green fragrance of budding willow; the pungent, musty odor of waking earth.

The earth is heavy, webbed with grass roots never before disturbed. The stinging air is dry and light, hard to breathe. The boy stops to pant and whack his numbed hands.

He is a thin, short boy, almost 15. His knees are knobby beneath patched homespun trousers; his wrists red and frostbitten below frayed coat sleeves. But above his narrow shoulders, his head is already large and well formed. A round, stubborn head; a round, expressionless face with small, alert blue eyes.

As he stands there, panting, hunched against the cold, those eyes are taking in everything. A wild turkey's track. The sharp cleft print of a deer. The thin, blue column of smoke rising from a clay-chinked cabin two miles across the prairie. New settlers. A wavering line of a new road winding to the west. Three buzzards, circling high above that road.

The boy is taking in these things and the meaning of all these things. The cold. The emptiness and loneliness of the great prairie. The poverty and difficulty and danger of life. The constant, driving necessity of work.

The boy is taking it all in. He is not thinking about it. He is not making comparisons—

Estelle to Auction House Jack Built

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 9.—(AP.)—The "House That Jack Built" is going under the auctioneer's hammer.

Estelle Taylor, film actress, said today her home, constreted six years ago by Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight boxing champion, when he was her husband, is to be sold at auction late this month. The lot and house represent an original investment of approximately $135,000, she said.

FALL TO LEAVE PRISON TODAY

SANTA FE, N. M., May 9.—(AP.)—Warden Ed Swope, of the New Mexico state penitentiary, announced he would release Albert B. Fall from prison some time this afternoon. Swope was awaiting amended commitment papers from Washington.

The amended papers, sent by air mail Saturday, apparently overcame the warden's objection to the release. He had insisted that Fall's $100,000 fine be paid. Court action to cancel the fine failed.

Except for Warden Swope's insistence on obeying instructions the man found guilty of taking a bribe from Edward L. Doheny in the leasing of naval oil reserves during the Harding administration, would have been free yesterday. The sentence of a year and a day, with time off for good behavior, was completed then.

Brooklyn Baby Kidnaped From Auto

NEW YORK, May 9.—(INS.)—A 4-year-old infant was kidnaped in Brooklyn today when his parents left him for only four minutes. Sleeping blissfully in an automobile, Otto Runge, son of Dr. Otto Runge, was spirited away while his mother and father were visiting.

Flint, Trust Builder, Vanishes in Capital

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—Charles R. Flint, 83, familiarly known as "the father of trusts" because of his wide activities in organizing corporations, was sought by police here today after his wife reported him missing from their quarters at the Shoreham Hotel.

Father Coughlin Ignores Cardinal, Scores Bankers

NEW YORK, May 9.—(INS.)—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, of Royal Oak, Mich., whose radio sermons have been heard by millions, will not leave the air unless his own bishop requests him to do so.

His announcement, taken as an answer to recent criticism by Cardinal O'Connell, in Boston, was made today when he arrived from California, where he visited William Randolph Hearst on the latter's ranch.

Father Coughlin said he "respected most highly" the "dignity and opinion of Cardinal O'Connell and would not presume to discuss the latter's utterances. He said:

"I am responsible to Bishop Gallagher, of Detroit. He sees each of my radio sermons before it is broadcast, and when he asks me to discontinue them I assure you I shall do so graciously."

In the meantime, Father Coughlin has signed a contract for more broadcasts.

Discussing his talks on economics, he said:

"We are bound for a revolution unless we change that which is ravishing our country, the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few. The only way to balance the budget is to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment and remove some of the bureaucrats at Washington."

He warned of the menace of those who acquire wealth by means other than hard work, but added:

"I'd rather get my money shooting craps than get it the way some bankers get it."

Father Coughlin's mother and father accompanied him and they were met by a delegation of 80 firemen.

The priest will return shortly to Royal Oak where an accumulation of work awaits him. In 26 weeks, he said, he has received 2,000,000 letters.

TOWN HALL SITE, BONDS UPHELD

Supreme Court of State Affirms Allegheny Bench And Refuses Injunction

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—The State Supreme Court today cleared away the last of the present obstacles in the path of construction of Allegheny County's Town Hall at Pittsburgh.

The court not only affirmed the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County in its refusal to grant an injunction against the construction of the proposed building, but also ruled the $6,000,000 bond issue, which had been approved at the polls, was valid.

JUDGE'S COMMENT

The opinion affirming the injunction refusal was written by Justice William I. Schaffer. He said:

"As to the alleged excessiveness of the price fixed by the contract at $8 per square foot, or a total of $1,127,911.28, the chancellor found as a fact that it was not excessive.

"There was testimony to the contrary, but respectable and competent real estate experts testified the price was a fair one.

"The part that the zoning ordinance of the city played in the controversy was much discussed in oral arguments and is a subject elaborately treated in the briefs.

"Nothing brought to our attention in the case was a gross abuse of discretion by the County Commissioners, as appellants contended there was."

TAXPAYER'S SUIT

Today's Supreme Court ruling on an injunction to prevent construction of the proposed $6,000,000 Town Hall was the outgrowth of a taxpayer's suit filed by Attorney Oliver K. Eaton on April 18, 1931, in behalf of Schenley Farms and Oakland property owners.

The suit was instigated after a long fight had been waged before City Council and the County Commissioners to prevent approval of the Nicola site—bounded by Fifth avenue, Bigelow boulevard, Tennyson avenue and Ruskin avenue—for the proposed Town Hall.

On May 29, Judge James R. Macfarlane, in Common Pleas Court, refused to grant the injunction.

CARRIED TO HIGH COURT

Later he virtually reversed himself by ruling that the consent ordinance, passed by City Council, did not constitute the changes in the zoning laws needed to permit the hall's construction.

Attorney Eaton carried the case to the State Supreme Court and argument was held in Philadelphia last January. Apparently because of an equal division of opinion among the six members then on the bench, a rehearing was ordered, by the court's own motion, before a full bench here in March.

Ex-Mayor William A. Magee was the representative of taxpayers in the second suit which contended that the $6,000,000 bond issue created to care for the cost of the hall, and approved at the polls, was illegal.

His suit was dismissed by Judge William M. Hargest in Dauphin County Court, July 22, 1931, and immediately appealed to the State Supreme Court, resulting in the second ruling relative to the project by that court today. The action was instituted by Magee in behalf of John H. Palmer, as a taxpayer.

First Lady Returns To White House

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Herbert Hoover today returned to the White House after a three-day trip into New York and Connecticut.

The first lady reached the capital by train early this morning. During the course of her travels she stopped at Elmira College, Elmira, N. Y., and later attended the wedding of the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rickard.

Senators Given Plea for U. S. Aid to Jobless

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—A story of increasing hunger in numerous cities, with private and public relief funds depleted or exhausted, was told a Senate subcommittee today.

Urging approval of the Costigan bill for a $500,000,000 federal bond issue to aid the unemployed, several relief workers described the present situation as "appalling."

MILLION NEED AID

Helen Glenn Tyson, Deputy Secretary of Welfare for Pennsylvania, asserted:

"At least 250,000 families are receiving relief. On an average of four to the family, this accounts for 1,000,000 people. Funds are entirely inadequate. For a large percentage of the people, the American standard of living is a dream of the past."

In a public school not located in the coal fields, the witness said, 70 per cent of the children are under weight. She testified:

"There is no question that direct federal aid is badly needed.

English Air Liner Hit by Lightning

CROYDON, England, May 9.—(AP.)—The Imperial Airways liner Horatius, bound through the rain for Paris with 13 passengers, was struck by lightning today over the town of Tonbridge, but the pilot turned around and landed here safely.

The bolt blew out the cockpit windows, disabled the wireless aerial and damaged two of the four propellers. The uninjured passengers were transferred to another plane and took off again immediately.

300 Make Merry At Dead Man's Party

NEWARK, N. J., May 9.—(INS.)—Far into the early hours of today lasted the strange party, attended by 300 persons, given by a man dead for more than a year.

The men and women made merry, joked, dined and sang as the guests of Ferdinand Borenstein, real estate man, raconteur and bon vivant. He died at 93, and the gathering was held in compliance with a provision in his will his relatives and friends observe his death on the first anniversary by a party.

KLINE LIKELY TO TESTIFY, BELIEF AT TRIAL

Ousted Director Confesses Buying Meat From Firm Not Quoting Lowest Price

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

BUTLER, Pa., May 9.—Hard pressed by the prosecution's cross examination, Bertram L. Succop, on trial with Mayor Charles H. Kline, charged with malfeasance, admitted today that he had bought meats from the A. L. Brahm Company at prices higher than those bid by Armour and Company, knowing that a city ordinance required the contract go to the lowest responsible bidder.

Succop denied that Mayor Kline knew anything of the alleged irregularities with which they are jointly charged and apparently was paving the way for the Mayor to take the stand and make a categoric denial.

Kline was expected to testify late today or tomorrow, though neither he nor his counsel would admit it. Should he take the stand he likely will be asked by the Commonwealth to explain his letter to Council setting forth that he had discharged Succop, former Supplies Director, for "visible irregularities."

Admitting under cross-examination that there never was a general contract for purchase of tires by the city, Succop denied that tires had been bought from firms friendly to the Mayor.

Indications are that the defense will conclude tomorrow and that the jury will get the case, which

ADELE ASTAIRE WEDS TITLE

BAKERWELL, DERBYSHIRE, England, May 9.—(AP.)—Adele Astaire, stage favorite on both sides of the Atlantic, became a member of one of England's most notable families today when she was married to Lord Charles Cavendish.

The wedding took place, by special license, in the private chapel of Chatsworth House, the ancestral home of the bridegroom's parents, the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. Only members of the family attended.

It was the first marriage ceremony ever to be held in the historic little sanctuary on one of the upper floors of the great house.

Choristers in white surplices sang softly "O Perfect Love," and the duke's chaplain pronounced the words which united the couple.

The duke and duchess, the Marchioness of Hartington and the bridegroom's sisters, with their husbands, were present.

Pinchot Fires G.O.P. Woman Leader Here

Mrs. Lillian C. Morgart, vice chairman of the Republican City Committee, today was dismissed as an assistant supervisor of the State Department of Labor and Industry. Elliott D. Donley, inspector in the same department, and Stephen F. Dobbins, assistant garage superintendent in the Department of Property and Supplies, were also included in the list of dismissals announced in Harrisburg by Gov. Gifford Pinchot.

Harold F. Bucher was named superintendent in the Department of Labor and Industry and Sara V. Livingston was named a nurse in the Department of Health. All live in Pittsburgh.

entered its second week today, by Thursday.

Succop, who has been on the stand repeatedly to defend himself against charges of irregularities in purchase of city supplies before his dismissal as Director of the Supplies Department, was recalled today by the defense for questioning regarding the 24 important Brahm meat counts and other purchases.

'TRICK BIDS' CHARGED

The meat counts are those in which the state charges that favored dealers bid 1 cent a pound on some cuts knowing in advance the city would not order them, to keep down their average bid on which the contract was awarded.

Succop was questioned by Charles B. Prichard, chief counsel for the defense, who asked:

"Did you know of the A. L. Brahm Company's importance in their business?"

"It was one of the largest companies of its kind in Pittsburgh."

"Was it responsible?"

"It was."

"Are you familiar with the form of bid used?"

"I am."

Succop then identified the bidding form used for this contract. He explained, however, that he had not prepared this form.

"Did you ever discuss this with Mayor Kline?"

"No."

"How long has this form been in use in the Department of Supplies?"

Reed objected, but was overruled, and Succop said:

"It was an established practice."

MEAT BOUGHT MONTHLY

The meat was bought monthly and there was no way to determine in advance the quantities needed, Succop said, adding that the meats were for city hospitals. Prichard asked:

"Did you acquaint the merchants with this method of buying?"

"Yes."

"Did you notice that some bids were put in at 1 cent a pound?"

"I did."

"Did you inform the prospective bidders of that condition?"

"I did. I showed them how the bidding was being done."

"Did you consider the low bids wrong?"

"No. The city had a chance to buy at low prices."

"Did you do the actual buying?"

"No."

"Did you believe there was any advantage to any one bidder over another?"

"I did not."

Succop then explained that he had sought other bidders, but that it was a retail business and wholesalers did not want to bid for it. Other bids were received from Hilldorfer and Oswald & Hess Company. Prichard asked:

"Did the Mayor know anything about these bids?"

"No."

"Did you conspire with the Mayor to use this type of bidding?"

"No."

"Did any controller ever call your attention to the absence of a contract?"

"No."

"Did anyone ever complain about this thing?"

"No."

GRILLED BY REED

After Prichard had brought out that the meat purchases amounted to no more than $200 monthly, Succop was cross-examined by Special Prosecutor Earl F. Reed, who asked:

"You knew that the general supply ordinance required you to buy from the lowest responsible bidder, did you?"

"Yes."

Reed then compared the bids of A. L. Brahm Company and Armour & Co., and extracted from Succop an admission that the meats would have been cheaper if bought from Armour. Reed asked:

"Did you find any place in these bids where meat was actually furnished at 1 cent per pound?"

"Yes. I tried to break it up. I had one contractor furnish it. I believe it was Simon Brahm."

Simon Brahm is not affiliated with A. L. Brahm.

Succop said:

"I told nobody to bid 1 cent a pound."

"You let these contracts on totals without making inquiries as to whether 1-cent meat was being bought. Is that right?"

"I am not a dietitian."

"Who did you tell of this 1-cent method of bidding?"

"I showed the tabulations to anyone coming in to bid, to give them an idea of what they were bidding on."

"Who did you show them to; give us the names."

"I will be able to do that this afternoon."

Succop then left the stand.

QUIZZED ON TIRES

After the examination of several other witnesses, Succop was again placed on the stand and questioned concerning purchase of automobile tires.

William Monaghan, superintendent of the city garage, highly recommended the tires which the city purchased from the Glick company, Succop testified. Succop added:

"We had to buy tires not only for price but for mileage and service."

The Glick Auto Supply Company was the successful bidder for tires, he testified.

On cross-examination Reed tried to show that no recognition had been given a 25 per cent discount offered by Cooper Tire Company. Succop admitted that the tabulations showed the list price offered by Cooper, but did not give the list price minus the discount. Succop retorted that he had compiled the actual Cooper price on paper and had determined for his own information just what it was.

Succop told of bids twice being rejected for this tire contract. The first time there were only six bidders, which, Succop said, he felt was not representative. He said he had promised other bidders he would notify them when second bids were invited. He testified:

"But inadvertently, somehow I did not live up to that promise, so I rejected the second bids because of that."

ONLY SIX BIDDERS

Succop explained only six bids were made on the second advertisement, too.

Succop testified there never was any formal contract for the purchase of any tires by the city. Reed asked:

"Why, if Mr. Monaghan said he preferred U. S. Royal tires, did you let contracts to other companies." (This obviously referred to other contracts than the one given Glick.)

SUCCOP ANSWERED

"The tires we bought from the other companies were good tires, and the records will show it."

Succop then went on to explain that when he requisitioned Glick's for U. S. Royal tires he was certain to get them. He stated:

"If I sent it to Kress Brothers I would not be sure. It is known among the trade that the Kress people are in blemished tire business."

Succop then admitted that Kress had been in business longer than Glick.

"Did you make any inquiries about these firms?"

"Yes, I did all that."

"Who told you these reports about Kress?"

"It was general rumor."

"Can you name any person who told you?"

"I can this afternoon."

"Oh, that, too, this afternoon?"

"Well, I have a right to think."

"Isn't it a fact that you placed that contract with Glick because Mr. Glick, a brother of the head of the Glick Tire Company, is a politician?"

"No."

"Is he a close personal friend of the mayor?"

"I don't know."

"Who was the head of the Popular Supply Company and Cooper Tire Company and were they friends of the mayor?"

Succop said that he did not know, of his own knowledge.

CLARK TESTIFIES

Public Safety Director James M. Clark, the first witness of today's session, presented the requisition for purchase of a Packard car by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh without bids.

Thomas Watson, vice president and general counsel of the Hillman company, was called. He identified the contract his company received for the Brilliant Pumping Station.

Fire Chief Richard Smith, who was fighting a fire on the North Side most of the night, was called, and testified that the responsibility for purchase of all hose rested with him. Purchase of $1,000 worth of fire hose at other than the low bids is on the counts in the joint indictment against Kline and Succop.

Of the samples of fire hose submitted, Smith said the Hewitt gutta percha hose ordered best fit the specifications.

COUNCILMEN READY

On cross-examination he admitted te Quaker City Rubber Company hose also met specifications but insisted that the Hewitt hose was better.

Smith testified that since this disputed contract was awarded to Hewitt other hose has been bought from Quaker City only to be criticized by his aides.

Reed brought out that the purchases of Quaker City hose have been made by the city since last October.

John J. Paine, engineer of tests in Public Works Department, was called. He said he examined all samples of fire hose submitted. Prichard asked:

"Which was best?"

"Hewitt gutta percha and I told Succop that."

The jury and all the principals in the case yesterday enjoyed a much-needed rest from the ardours of a trial which began one week ago today.

Kline 'Jury Fix' Trials Set for June 13

By M. V. BURGESS
Staff Correspondent

BUTLER, Pa., May 9.—The two embracery cases in connection with the Kline-Succop trial have been definitely postponed until the week of June 13.

This action was taken by Judge Thomas W. Watson on motion of District Attorney Edward H. Negley. Negley has also agreed to nolle pross the case against the Rev. Francis S. Clifford, of Murrinsville, who will be a witness for the state.

W. D. McBride, of Prospect, has had his bail reduced from $2,000 to $1,000 at Negley's request and is now at liberty.

McBride swore to a confession that he approached John Vogeley, one of the Kline panel, and telling him "in a joking way" that he might get as much as $500 out of the trial.

Green Denies Plan For Protest Strike

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, denied today that a proposal for a general 48-hour strike by organized labor to emphasize demands for federal unemployment relief and a 35-hour week had been brought to his attention.

He said the matter had not been discussed with him either formally or informally and he knew nothing of the move reported by the Philadelphia Record to have originated in Pennsylvania.

Lack of Permit Brings Cafe Raid

Homestead police last night raided a cafe in Third avenue and reported arresting the proprietor, Philip Jacobson, a waiter, Conrad Reim, members of the orchestra and two patrons. Police said the place had not been given a permit to operate. Those arrested were to be arraigned today.

BILLION DOLLAR TAX BILL NOW IN SENATE

Fight Promised on Floor Against Tariff, Auto and Income Levies Proposed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The new billion dollar tax bill, carrying heavy increases in income, corporation and excise taxes, was reported favorably to the Senate today with administration leaders predicting action on it before the end of the week.

Chairman Smoot (Rep.), of Utah, of the Senate Finance Committee, reported it to the Senate at noon. A half hour earlier, the committee gave it a unanimous indorsement after voting 12 to 6 against reconsidering the rates adopted last week.

A majority report will be filed Wednesday by Smoot with debate likely to start Thursday or Friday.

The bill in its present form will raise $1,030,000,000, according to Treasury experts. This figure was $20,000,000 in excess of the estimate given out Saturday. Smoot said the increase came through revised estimates of the revenue to be obtained from new administrative provisions affecting the collection of income and corporation taxes.

The unanimous consent vote on reporting the bill occasioned some surprise, as rumors had prevailed a Democratic-Insurgent minority would fight it. Senator Hull (Dem.), of Tennessee, explained that he would fight to strike out the import duties on coal, oil, copper, lumber and rubber. He said he would make his fight by offering amendments on the floor of the Senate instead of filing a minority report against the bill as a whole.

Senator Couzens (Rep.) of Michigan, threatened a similar attack on the 4 per cent manufacturers sales tax on automobiles. The Insurgents probably will move to reduce the income taxes.

Smoot said he had hopes of passing the bill within two weeks.

AUTO MAKERS PROTEST TAX

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—A sharp protest against the new revenue bill's taxes on automobiles, trucks, parts accessories and rubber was filed with the Senate Finance Committee today in telegrams from the leaders in the automotive industry.

News the committee had voted the tax, the messages said, "is a distinct shock" coming when practically all of the automotive business is operating at a loss." It added:

"This burden placed upon our industry and its users is certain to make itself felt in increased unemployment and additional hardships upon the 4,000,000 workers dependent upon the automotive trade."

Signers of the protest were Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president General Motors Corporation; Edsel B. Ford, president Ford Motor Company; Walter P. Chrysler, president Chrysler Corporation; Alvan Macauley, president Packard Motor Car Company; A. R. Erskine, president Studebaker Corporation; C. W. Nash, chairman of the board, Nash Motors Company; Roy D. Chapin, chairman Hudson Motor Company, and R. P. Page, Jr., of the Autocar Company.

NEW LINDY TIP FAILS HERE

Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd today received the following telegram:

"Investigate D. M. Lamobly, Jr., 508 Forest street, immediately regarding Lindbergh baby."

The wire was from E. M. Kyle, 1011 Greenwood avenue, Chattanooga, Tenn.

City detectives found Forest way, the nearest thing to the address given by Kyle, but discovered the numbers there started with 7700, and Lamobly was unknown.

They also discovered, later, that Kyle's information came from a clairvoyant. Not being a believer in spirit communication, Inspector Boyd ordered the search for Lamobly discontinued.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(INS.)—Roger Wolfe Kahn, who plays the saxophone even though his father, Otto Kahn, prefers the opera, and Hannah Williams, who came from the Pennsylvania coal fields and won stage fame with the song, "Cheerful Little Earful," today were definitely out of tune.

URGE U. S. AID FOR JOBLESS

Many of the sources of private aid have dried up."

Prentice Murphy, Philadelphia relief worker, stated:

"The evidence is overwhelming that the relief problem calls for extraordinary treatment. On the basis of purely state activities relief needs cannot be met."

STATE FUND INADEQUATE

Pennsylvania's special $10,000,000 relief fund will be exhausted in August or September, declared Karl de Schweinitz, of the Community Council of Philadelphia. He said:

"Relief is being distributed to 298,000 in the city. We are giving out only two-thirds of the ration of food needed to maintain the health of these destitute people."

Harrowing stories of Philadelphia citizens eating food from garbage pails, living on a diet of carrot soup and subsisting for several days on crusts of bread, were related.

Edward F. McGrady, representing the American Federation of Labor, declared:

"If something is not done and starvation is going to continue and perhaps increase, the doors to revolution are going to be thrown wide open and leaders of the country ought to know it."

CONDITIONS 'DESPERATE'

H. L. Lurie, of the American Social Workers, declared:

"The longer a federal program of relief is delayed, the more desperate conditions will become. We need a large public works program and also a liberal plan of federal contributions to the states, for the relief of the destitute."

Lurie estimated the number of unemployed at 9,000,000 to 12,000,000.

AUTOS TRAPPED IN FATAL STORM

Man Killed as He Steps From Trolley; Nine Held In Submerged Cars Saved

The Pittsburgh district today was digging out of debris choked streets and highways in the wake of a violent rain and electric storm which late yesterday caused considerable damage, was indirectly responsible for the death of a 78-year-old man and marooned numerous motorists in flooded roadways.

William Abery, 78, of 1712 Scott street, McKeesport, received injuries which resulted in his death as he stepped from a street car in Monongahela avenue, Glassport.

BLAMED ON WIRE

A broken high tension electric wire had fallen near the car and Abery and other passengers were alighting from it when an auto driven by George Skodal, 40, of 709 Monongahela avenue, swerved to avoid contact with the sparking wire and struck the aged man.

Skodal went to the Coroner's office today and posted $1,000 bond for an inquest.

Firemen were called to rescue the occupants of nearly a dozen automobiles inundated in Washington boulevard, while scores of motorists were marooned in the West End when flooded highways made vehicular traffic impossible.

Hail of varying intensity accompanied the storm.

The deluge caused a rapid decline in temperature, the mercury dropping from a high of 81 to 60 degrees in less than 30 minutes.

TRAPPED IN AUTOS

Nine persons marooned in automobiles in Washington boulevard near the Highland Park Bridge were rescued by firemen.

Batallion Chief Fred S. Beckett, with two engine companies and one truck company, directed the rescue work. Earl Kuhn, of Hollidaysburg, used his automobile as a tow car. Firemen tied ropes to the other machines, and Kuhn towed them out. His wife and son, Earl, Jr., and his nephew, Robert Findley, sat in the machine throughout the time the rescue work was going on.

Caught in the swirling waters, Sergt. John O'Connor, of the motor division of city police, held his baby daughter, Rose Ann, 1, close to the roof of his machine until the flood had receded. Driven to the side of the roadway by the storm, O'Connor's automobile was flooded to the side pockets. With him were Mrs. O'Connor, his son Jack, 7, and another daughter, Mary Louise, 3. The O'Connors live at 6834 Kelley street.

MAN ENDS LIFE IN BRENTWOOD

Locking himself in the bathroom of his home, John Niedermeier, 36, a tinner, of 437 Bracken avenue, Brentwood, shot himself fatally this morning, borough police notified the Coroner.

John, 15

A son, John, 15, failing in an attempt to open the bathroom door, summoned Frank Texak, carpenter, who arrived at the house for repair work. Together they forced the door and found Niedermeier dead, with a bullet wound in his head and his right hand clutching a revolver.

According to his son, his mother, Mrs. Lucy Niedermeier, went to the home of her mother, Mrs. Mary Penner, 2709½ Sarah street, last Friday, because Niedermeier had been drinking. She was recovering from an automobile accident.

Unidentified Woman Found Slain in Ohio

MILLERSBURG, O., May 9.—(AP.)—The body of an unidentified nude woman was found in a small stream two miles [illegible] of here early today. Her head had been crushed.

Evidence was found nearby indicating that the woman, a brunette, about 30 years old, had been killed after a struggle.

Radio Trial of Vivienne Fast Nearing Climax

The Trial of Vivienne Ware will begin its fifth session over WCAE tonight at 8 o'clock.

The famous radio drama, which in motion picture form, will appear at the Stanley Theater, is drawing to its close. The final session will be Wednesday night, also at 8 o'clock. After that, radio fans who have followed the trial, may send a verdict of less than 100 words to the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The doors of the court room are locked and attaches are searching for the revolver that, Saturday night, mysteriously disappeared when someone dimmed the lights and placed the court room in darkness. The mysterious theft followed cross-questioning of Mike Spelluci, who "has a piece of the Golden Bowl." Mike giving the stirring testimony that Miss Devine wore light clothing and a drooping hat, similar to that Miss Ware wore the same night.

Tonight—over WCAE at 8 o'clock.

POLICE HELD AT BAY AS MASSIES FLEE FROM HONOLULU

NAVAL OFFICER BLOCKS WRIT SERVER

U. S. Captain Clashes With Natives; 'Sub' Tender Puts Americans on Ship

By WILLIAM H. EWING

HONOLULU, May 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. Thalia Massie and others who became enmeshed in Honolulu's episode of tragedy and crime, have left Hawaii with tumult, tears and anger marking their departure.

With Honolulu police seeking to serve her with a subpena, Mrs. Massie, her husband, Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, and her mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, were put aboard the liner Malolo Sunday by a naval submarine tender and with the aid of a high naval officer who held police at bay.

The police had sought to serve Mrs. Massie with a formal summons to appear at the scheduled retrial of four men accused of attacking her last September. She was unwilling to proceed with the case in view of the outcome of its sequel, that in which Mrs. Fortescue, Massie and E. J. Lord and Albert O. Jones, navy enlisted men, were convicted of the lynching of Joseph Kahahawai.

This departure of the principals and their attorneys, Clarence Darrow and George S. Leisure, was, perhaps, the strangest ever witnessed on Honolulu's waterfront, with its inevitable "aloha" ceremony for every passenger ship.

TENDER UNNOTICED

Almost unnoticed, the submarine tender from Pearl Harbor Naval Station 12 miles away edged up beside the big liner. Mrs. Fortescue appeared on its deck. Then came Bluejackets with Lieut. Massie's dog "Chris," and an assortment of baggage. Lieut. and Mrs. Massie then emerged, accompanied by Capt. Ward K. Wortman, commander of the submarine base, to which Massie had been attached.

The party stepped into a cargo port of the Malolo. Subpena in hand, Dewey Mookini, a Honolulu policeman, stood there waiting for Mrs. Massie.

Capt. Wortman lowered his heavy shoulders and collided with Mookini, while Mrs. Massie darted up a corridor to her stateroom. Wortman stormed:

"I shall report you to your superior officer."

The policeman shouted:

"You assaulted me!"

Wortman, panting, thrust Mookini against a wall while Mrs. Massie got into her stateroom and Mrs. Fortescue followed. Mookini wiggled away, pushed the door open and tried to read it to Mrs. Massie. The door slammed shut in his face. Then Mrs. Fortescue emerged, eyes blazing. She pleaded:

"Will someone go for Mr. Darrow?"

ANGRY EXCHANGE

There was an angry exchange of words between Capt. Wortman and the policeman. Massie approached them, extending his hand to Mookini. Massie said:

"No hard feeling here. I know what your duty is."

Capt. Wortman then extended his hand to the policeman and they also made up. The Lieutenant then invited Lono McCallum and Arthur Stagbar, detectives accompanying Mookini, into the Massie stateroom. They remained several minutes and signed Massie's scrap book.

As the moment for sailing neared, Massie knocked at the stateroom door and Mrs. Massie appeared. Her eyes were wet with tears.

Turning to the police officers, Massie pleaded:

"You won't try to go in again?"

They assured him they would not. Stagbar extended his hand through the door to say good-bye to Mrs. Massie. Mrs. Fortescue saw him and seized him by the arm, thinking he was trying to force his way in. She apologized when she saw she had misunderstood his motive.

His shoulders piled high with leis, Darrow went to the stateroom and conferred with Mrs. Fortescue and the Massies. On emerging he said the subpena had not been served.

No member of the Fortescue-Massie party cast his lei into the harbor as the Malolo headed out for San Francisco. There is an old belief that if a departing visitor casts his lei into the waters he will come back.

Their sailing left none of the lynching case principals in Honolulu, Jones and Lord, the enlisted men, having sailed yesterday on San Francisco-bound destroyers.

SEE END TO CASE

Mrs. Massie's departure was generally interpreted as putting an end to the attack case retrial. She had told her story twice in court, once in the first attack trial in which the jury disagreed, and again as a defense witness in the lynching case. Darrow had urged her not to go on with it.

Public Prosecutor John C. Kelley, at whose instance the strenuous efforts were made to serve the subpena, seemed bitter at her departure. After the ship had sailed, Kelley asked:

"Have you ever made a study of masks? The artist, Benda, depicts them cleverly and grotesquely. I wish he were here. I would set up one for Thalia Massie and proceed with the retrial."

CLARK HUNTING HER

NEW PICTURE OF MISS BARBARA MOREHEAD . . . TECH CO-ED

The missing 20-year-old Miss Morehead, Carnegie Tech co-ed and daughter of one of the school's professors, missing since Friday. Public Safety Director James M. Clark is taking a personal interest in the case, directing the search of his entire bureau of police.

IDA CONFESSES MASSIE ATTACK

SAN FRANCISCO, May 9.—(AP.)—The Chronicle, in a story vouched for by Rear Admiral William C. Cole, commandant of the 12th Naval District, says Horace Ida confessed to a group of nine men who kidnaped him last December 12 he was one of five natives who attacked Mrs. Thalia Massie in Honolulu.

Further, the story says, Ida implicated Joseph Kahahawai, for whose slaying Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue and two Navy enlisted men were convicted of manslaughter, sentenced to serve 10 years in prison and saved from serving all but one hour by the Hawaii Governor's commutation.

Other than Kahahawai, Ida named Henry Chang, another of the five men who were tried for attacking and brutally beating Mrs. Massie. The trial ended in a jury disagreement and a retrial set for May 25 probably will not be held, since Mrs. Massie left Honolulu yesterday.

$100,000 Brookville Fire Razes Block

BROOKVILLE, Pa., May 9.—An entire block of buildings is in smouldering ruins today, with loss estimated at $100,000, following a fire, fed by three carloads of oil, last night. Lightning, striking the Brookville Wagon Works, started the fire. Thirty-five automobiles, three carloads of oil and two of tires in the building were destroyed. Two hundred firemen from Dubois, Punxsutawney, Reynoldsville, New Bethlehem, Clarion and Brookville fought the flames.

150 Ohio Strikers Halted Near Mine

SALINEVILLE, O., May 9.—Sheriff W. J. Barlow and 11 deputies today halted a march of 150 striking coal miners from Belmont, Jefferson and Harrison counties upon the Columbia Coal Company's mine, where 80 men are working.

GIRL GIVES CLUE TO LOST CO-ED

Barbara Moorehead, 20, of 4815 Bayard street, missing Carnegie Tech co-ed was seen last Friday evening, the day of her disappearance, by a girl friend in Fifth avenue near Wood street, Public Safety Director James M. Clark, who is taking a personal interest in the case, made known today.

According to information he obtained, Clark said, the young woman broke a "date" with a boy friend Friday evening and his inquiry as to her whereabouts started the search.

The hat with which she left home for Tech Friday morning, was found in a locker. Another which she had kept there had been substituted, it is believed. No motive for her disappearance has been developed, police say.

Mrs. Connelley, Wife Of Councilman, Dies

Mrs. Katherine Seifert Connelley, wife of City Councilman C. B. Connelley, died in her home, 300 Marsonia street, North Side, yesterday. She was a lifelong resident of Pittsburgh, and was recognized for her skill in ceramic art, needlework and graphic arts. She assisted the committee on courses of study which worked out the art designs for Carnegie Institute of Technology, of which her husband was a member.

She leaves her husband, two daughters, Miss Katherine Connelley, at home, and Mrs. E. Howard O'Flyn, of New York, and three sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Weisser and Mrs. Louise B. Drave, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. Ettie O'Brien, of London.

Constable, Dry Free Of Robbery Charge

F. J. Kovacs, Constable of Haysville, and George Fields, a prohibition agent, 612 Hill street, Sewickley, were found not guilty in a sealed verdict in Criminal Court this morning. They were charged with entering the home of John Wozczehowski, of 325 Oliva street, McKees Rocks on December 10, and taking $97 and two rings valued at $80.

Wickersham Urges Referendum to Bring Verdict on Dry Law

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—George W. Wickersham believes more strongly than ever that a referendum on prohibition is needed.

Sixteen months after winding up the work of the notable crime-study commission which bore his name, Wickersham expressed the conviction in an interview yesterday that a vote on altering the Eighteenth Amendment through state conventions would do much good by crystalizing what he termed the "sober, informed and deliberate opinion of the people."

He knew, he said, that several members of his commission held the same opinion. In this interview Wickersham broke the complete silence he had clung to steadfastly in regard to the commission's work.

EXPLAINS CONFICT

He was asked about the apparent discrepancy between the conclusions appended to the report and the views expressed by a majority of the members in their individual expressions. While the summary set forth that "the commission is opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment," the greater number of the commissioners argued the dry law should be changed in some way.

Wickersham said:

"Six of the members felt in varying degrees that prohibition was not a success in its form at that time. Four of us felt that it was not being enforced properly, but that sufficient opportunity had not been given to judge it a failure. One member (Newton D. Baker) felt that the whole question should be resubmitted at once to the states. All were opposed to a return of the saloon.

"The summary represented the best view we could obtain from the conflicting opinions. A majority agreed that if the amendment was revised it should be made to read that Congress shall have power to regulate or prohibit the manufacture and transportation within the United States."

Wickersham said he felt the prohibition investigation and report had overshadowed unduly the great body of work done by the commission on other angles of law enforcement, but he believed that results from this other and more valuable labor were in process of realization.

SLEUTHS DODGE GANG BULLETS

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP.)—Five gunmen resented being chased by a pair of detectives across the West Side early this morning. They had recognized the plainclothes men and jumped into their car, outdistancing the police while revolvers barked back and forth.

A half hour later they came back to the Roxy Hotel on West Jackson boulevard to get their revenge. They had a machine gun this time, and sprayed lead over the police car and the restaurant where the detectives were eating. The policemen and four others in the restaurant dropped to the floor and missed death.

They put in a request for permission to carry shotguns or rifles from now on. Revolvers, they said, were not much help in a boulevard battle.

Hurled to Death When Autos Crash

SHARON, Pa., May 9.—L. Robert Houston, 50, of Youngstown, was killed today when thrown from the rumble seat of H. M. Helfrich's automobile in a collision with the car of William Thomas. Seven other passengers escaped unhurt.

PERU REDS LOSE NAVAL REVOLT

LIMA, May 9.—(AP.)—The Peruvian Navy lost a shortlived Communist revolution yesterday, being subdued by four shots from a submarine's guns.

The revolution took place in the port at Callao, near here. The communists seized the only two cruisers in the navy and for a while the situation seemed so serious that a state of siege was declared.

Almost the entire population of Callao gathered on the docks to watch the battle. Four submarines and a destroyer hemmed the cruisers in and airplanes flew overhead, dropping messages and then a few bombs. One of the cruisers ran up the red flag and fired twice at the nearest submarine. The submarine replied with four shots.

That ended the revolt. The rebels ran up the white flag. They were arrested and thrown in jail, amid great hurrahs for the government of President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro from the crowds on the docks. A naval war council was called to start proceedings against the mutineers. Punishment is usually death.

Slayer of Wife Guilty of Murder

WARREN, O., May 9.—(AP.)—Arch F. Knisely, prominent Warren businessman, today stands convicted of first degree murder in the slaying of his wife. The jury recommended mercy, and Knisely faces life imprisonment.

Mrs. Knisely was slain January 13 in a downtown office building.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that was centered over Iowa Saturday morning is moving very slowly. It is centered over the lake region this morning, moving towards the St. Lawrence Valley. The disturbance produced generous rains nearly everywhere from the central plains eastward over the Ohio Valley states and the lake region, and it is raining this morning at scattered places. From the central plains westward the skies are mostly clear this morning while over the eastern states it is generally cloudy. Thunderstorms occurred nearly everywhere over the Ohio Valley states last night. The weather continues mild over the country from the central plains eastward while over the western plains and the Rocky Mountain states cool weather prevails.

River Conditions.

The rivers are rising due to heavy rain over the Upper Allegheny Saturday night and light to moderately heavy rains over the district last night. Stage at Franklin is 11.1, Parkers Landing 11.6, Lock No. 7 (Mon.) 11.9, Pittsburgh 12.4, Dam No. 4 9.9, Dam No. 6, 16.1, Dam No. 10 10.5 and Dam No. 12 10.6. The dams are up this morning, but will be lowered today. About 17.5-foot stage indicated at Pittsburgh shortly after midnight.

BANDIT BOASTS HE'S KIDNAPER

A well-dressed man who described himself as "the Baby-Faced Kid" from New York and claimed to have "the Lindbergh baby here," led Jacob Hauptman, of 2120 Webster avenue, a Yellow taxicab driver, a merry chase early today.

Hauptman told police he picked the fare up at the William Penn Hotel. The man asked to be driven to Bettis Field. Arriving there, the airport to all purposes was closed. The passenger asked to be returned to the city. As they neared the destination, he asked to be taken to Pine street in St. Clair Township. He again changed his mind and requested the cabman to drive to Bettis Field, saying:

"I've got to get a plane to Philadelphia."

Two blocks from the airport, the passenger drew a gun and commanded:

"Give me your money. Don't hesitate. I'm the Baby-Faced Kid from New York and I've got the Lindbergh baby here, so if you want to see your loved ones again you'r better comply."

He then instructed Hauptman to return to the downtown section. At Ross and Second avenue, the "passenger" abandoned the cab.

Bogus Grand Duke Recaptured in N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(INS.)—Even though Harry F. Gerguson, alias "Michael Romanoff," bogus grand duke, was again in the hands of authorities after escaping from Ellis Island. An investigation was ordered started today into the manner of his vanishing.

Gerguson, nattily dressed but with his black mustache shaved off, was found yesterday by Department of Labor agents in an apartment on the East Side. He was being held on the island under deportation proceedings.

TARDIEU READY TO RESIGN AS PREMIER

Herriot Expected to Form New French Cabinet After Decisive Victory at Polls

PARIS, May 9.—(AP.)—Defeated by a decisive margin in yesterday's parliamentary election, Premier Andre Tardieu will resign tomorrow night with a request that his successor be chosen immediately.

An official announcement after a cabinet meeting this morning said that the resignation will be presented as soon as the Parliament has elected a new president to succeed Paul Doumer, and that it will be accompanied by a request that the present government not be asked to continue in office until the new Chamber of Deputies just elected convenes in June.

HERRIOT FAVORED

Edouard Herriot, who was premier in 1924, is the most likely choice to succeed M. Tardieu. With returns practically complete from yesterday's voting, his party of the Left had swept away the Republican majority in the Chamber, giving the Left groups substantial control.

The cabinet communique said its course of action had been decided upon "in view of the situation created by the coincidence of a presidential election, coming so closely after a general election which changed the chamber majority."

When the decision was made known, many members of the chamber considered it as implying that M. Tardieu would not continue to take part in the disarmament conference at Geneva or in other impending international meetings.

Contrary to predictions, the assassination of President Doumer failed to check the swing to the Left, set well on its way in last Sunday's elections.

PAINLEVE CANDIDATE

Two candidates succeeded President Doumer officially in running today. The election is to be held at Versailles tomorrow. Paul Painleve, former premier, formally consented to be a candidate. Albert le Brun, president of the Senate, presented his candidacy formally yesterday.

The new President will be chosen by a joint session of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate.

At the special request of Mme. Doumer, the body of the President will not be interred in the Pantheon with the group of celebrated French heroes, which includes Voltaire, Jean Jacques Rousseau and Victor Hugo, but in the family vault at Vaugirard Cemetery, the cabinet decided this morning. Other plans for the national funeral at Notre Dame Cathedral Thursday remain unchanged.

Wales Will Fly To Doumer Rites

LONDON, May 9.—(INS.)—The Prince of Wales will fly to Paris Wednesday for the funeral of President Doumer, of France, it was announced today.

He will return to London the following day, in time for the second of the royal courts at Buckingham Palace.

The Making of an American

John N. Garner

yet. But he is taking it all in as he takes in the air and the feel of the soil. He is making it a part of himself. He will never forget it.

He will leave this world and take his place in a very different world but he will never forget the meaning of the land, the meaning of men who take raw land and make it into a nation by their own effort, the cost of that effort, the cost of work, of food, of clothes and schools and horses and lands and homes.

Always he will remember these things instinctively. They will come first with him for they are his first contacts and impressions. They have been built into his body, his imagination, his affections.

A rabbit [illegible] brush. The [illegible] suddenly in a [illegible]. The boy starts, whacks [illegible] once more [illegible] across the broad [illegible] backs.

"Giddap!" [illegible] a young high [illegible].

Lurching [illegible] John Nance Garner starts down the long new [illegible] of his life.

What lies at the end of that furrow? He sees nothing yet. Perhaps some famous statesmen have plowed [illegible] at 15 but no such worldly cogitations move young [illegible] Garner, [illegible] leader of the Blossom Coon Soup Hollow Baseball Team. Isn't that career enough for anybody? It is. They're a swell team. Maybe the world hasn't heard of them but they themselves know and in particular one J. N. Garner knows—that they are the sweetest team in the U. S. A.

Of course they do much more than play baseball. They do everything there is to be done on a Texas frontier in the 70s which is plenty. Before their milk teeth are gone they have a gun over their shoulder and a skinning knife in their belt. Rabbits and quail on the uplands, squirrels and doves in the river bottoms. Deer sometimes. Fish always. Hunting isn't just fun. Back in the cabins there is always an iron pot waiting for whatever the youngster finds.

Fiercer foes than skunk or wildcat lurk along the trail. These are Indian days. Dark faces peering from the underbrush; dark forms scurrying by on pinto ponies—sometimes grunting amiably, sometimes passing in hostile silence.

And when hunting and Indians pall, there is always a fight to be worked up with the rival 'Possum Trot outfit. Jack is a great fighter. Skinnier than most of the other fellows and kind of spindling, he can yet whale the tar out of any 'Possum Trotter that tackles him.

It is funny to watch him fighting. Some fellows make a lot of faces when they fight. He doesn't. His face doesn't move very much, ever. He nearly always is grinning. He grins even when he fights. You never are sure what his grin means. It is one of those grins that may mean almost anything.

But his eyes get excited when he fights. His eyes are always more excited than the rest of his face. They are always running ahead of him, taking things in, making plans.

Fights Big Boy

An Epic Combat With 'Possum Trotter

Just now his eyes are joyously intent on pasting the 'Possum Trotter one in the snout. The 'Possum Trotter is a big fat boy. He claims to know a lot about fighting. Young Jack doesn't claim anything. He just fights. He dives in. His tough little fists hammer. His skinny legs kick. He yells.

The big boy goes down, young Jack on top of him. The big boy bellows. Young Jack grins, hangs on like a terrier, butts and batters with every scrawny inch of him.

The black Texas dust rises in a cloud. The other Coon Soupers and 'Possum Trotters crowd closer, cheer, shout, jostle, jump up and down. A dozen yellow, flea-bitten pups yelp, bark, scuffle between the boys' legs, start a fight of their own.

Presently the big boy whimpers "Uncle." Young Jack crawls off him, sits up happily, wipes the dirt out of his eyes. Blood is trickling from his nose over a split lip. He runs out his tongue—licks the cut proudly. The Coon Soupers whoop "Ya-ya, the 'Possum Trotters'!"

Young Jack pretends not to notice. But he notices all the same. He feels great. He thinks it would be grand to go through life pasting the tar out of 'Possum Trotters.

But in the meantime he's got to go home and milk the cow. Or weed the beans. Or draw the water. Or split the kindling.

Chores! He hates chores. Gosh! it makes him sick the way they're always picking on a feller, making him do chores. Daggone the ole cow! Daggone ole weeds! Daggone ole kindling! Wouldn't it be great to be growed up and not ever have to do any more chores!

The old cow gives her tail a final flip. The boy stands up, brimming milk pail in one hand. It is growing dark. Beyond the corral the prairie stretches, shadowy, immense. He wonders vaguely what is out there beyond the home corral, beyond the prairie. What is out there for him? More fights? More chores? He wonders. His face is stubborn, expressionless, but his eyes are eager.

The wind whines suddenly. He shivers, turns away. A light glows warmly in the cabin window. A woman calls. There is the smell of cornbread freshly baked, of homeroasted coffee and fried pork.

He's hungry. He's always hungry!

"I'm coming, maw," he answers.

He is grinning. He's thinking how the corn bread and molasses will taste. He's thinking it was great to whale the stuffing outta that 'Possum Trotter.

The door closes.

Beyond the corral, the shadowy world waits.

COX WEIGHING TOWN SITES

While Father Cox expects to open up only 100 acres for his new farm community to be known as "Coxtown," he is selecting his location so that the community can immediately expand to contain more acres should the demand warrant it.

Father Cox

Father Cox has several sites under consideration, but is waiting for reports from soil experts before making the final selection. Many owners of tractors have already offered their machines for breaking the ground.

Then there is the matter of what to plant in the way of vegetables and the selection of seed that will bring the best results. Father Cox anticipates that much of the seed will be donated by wholesale firms delivered to him in bulk to be sorted and packeted by his new unemployed. Each packet will, it is designed, contain enough seed for one family's garden plot.

Father Cox, speaking of "Coxtown," said yesterday:

"I will be better able to ascertain the actual acreage required from the number of applications received for garden plots and from these reports will depend whether or not I will go beyond the 100 acres this spring. However, it already looks as though 100 acres will hardly scratch the surface to take care of the demand."

In the meantime the Father Cox-Sun Telegraph Home Delivery Drive, by which this friend to the needy will get a liberal commission for every new order for the delivery of the Sun-Telegraph, is going along with gratifying results.

The funds thus secured will help to feed from 2,500 to 3,000 unfortunates in his daily breadline at Old St. Patrick's and will also help to furnish baskets of food for hundreds of Pittsburgh families in distress.

If you wish to help Father Cox send in your order either to Father Cox or to the Sun-Telegraph to have this paper delivered to your home by carrier. A subscription blank will be found in this issue.

He's a

MAN

in the making!

How proud you are of him! How carefully you safeguard his food, his rest, his play—for you want him to grow up the healthiest boy in the land. Of course, you worry when he doesn't want to eat. And that's why we are reminding you of a cereal so tempting children can't resist it.

It's Kellogg's Rice Krispies. Delicious, toasted rice bubbles that actually crackle in milk or cream and simply fascinate youngsters.

And Kellogg's Rice Krispies are one of the best of cereals for children. Nourishing. Yet so easy to digest, they do not overtax. Fine for breakfast, lunch, or the evening meal.

Always oven-fresh in the red-and-green package with the sealed inside WAXTITE bag. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Society Happenings

In Maytair
—With—

Patricia Pitt

This time of the season members of the younger set are always agog about the Princeton [illegible] and other of the university's festive activities, and there are always a number of [illegible] who go to Princeton. This year there are seven from Pittsburgh and two from Sewickley.

They planned to attend the annual house parties conducted by the 18 upper class clubs of Princeton and the track meet with Harvard and the [illegible] races with Massachusetts [illegible].

And among the guests are Elizabeth Clark, Hazel Hopkins and Violet Starr of Pittsburgh and Barbara Merrill and Elizabeth Dunsford, both of Sewickley. Other Pittsburghers are Jean Morton, who was with Barbara Merrill; Marie Armstrong, Dorothy Hagan and [illegible] Ross. They also attended the [illegible] performance of the Theater Intime in Murray Dodge Hall Friday to see "Nerissa." And an interesting note was that flowers for the girls were omitted this year.

Speakers at the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae Mother's Day program yesterday were Mrs. William F. Connell, Jr., and Miss Naomi Larkin. Mrs. Connell spoke of the August biennial which is to be held in Denver and Miss Larkin told of the foreign "Legion of Mary." Miss Janet Haverty, accompanied by Miss Jane Beck, sang several numbers. The meeting took place in the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, Fifth and Bellefield avenues.

* * *

One of the largest audiences a Congress of Clubs dance revue has ever had witnessed the biggest and best performance the school of physical education has ever presented on Saturday night in the Nixon Theater. The entire performance went through smoothly and without a single halting moment, the little folks doing especially well and receiving the heartiest sort of reception.

The work of Miss Helen Bennett and Bert Layton, the instructors, added a professional tone to the program. Mr. Layton, who has been known primarily as a tap dancer, exhibiting an unsuspected versatility in ballet and Spanish numbers. Charlotte Enty Catlin was an admirable "orchestra." The costumes, original and striking, the handiwork of the costume committee, elicited considerable comment from the spectators.

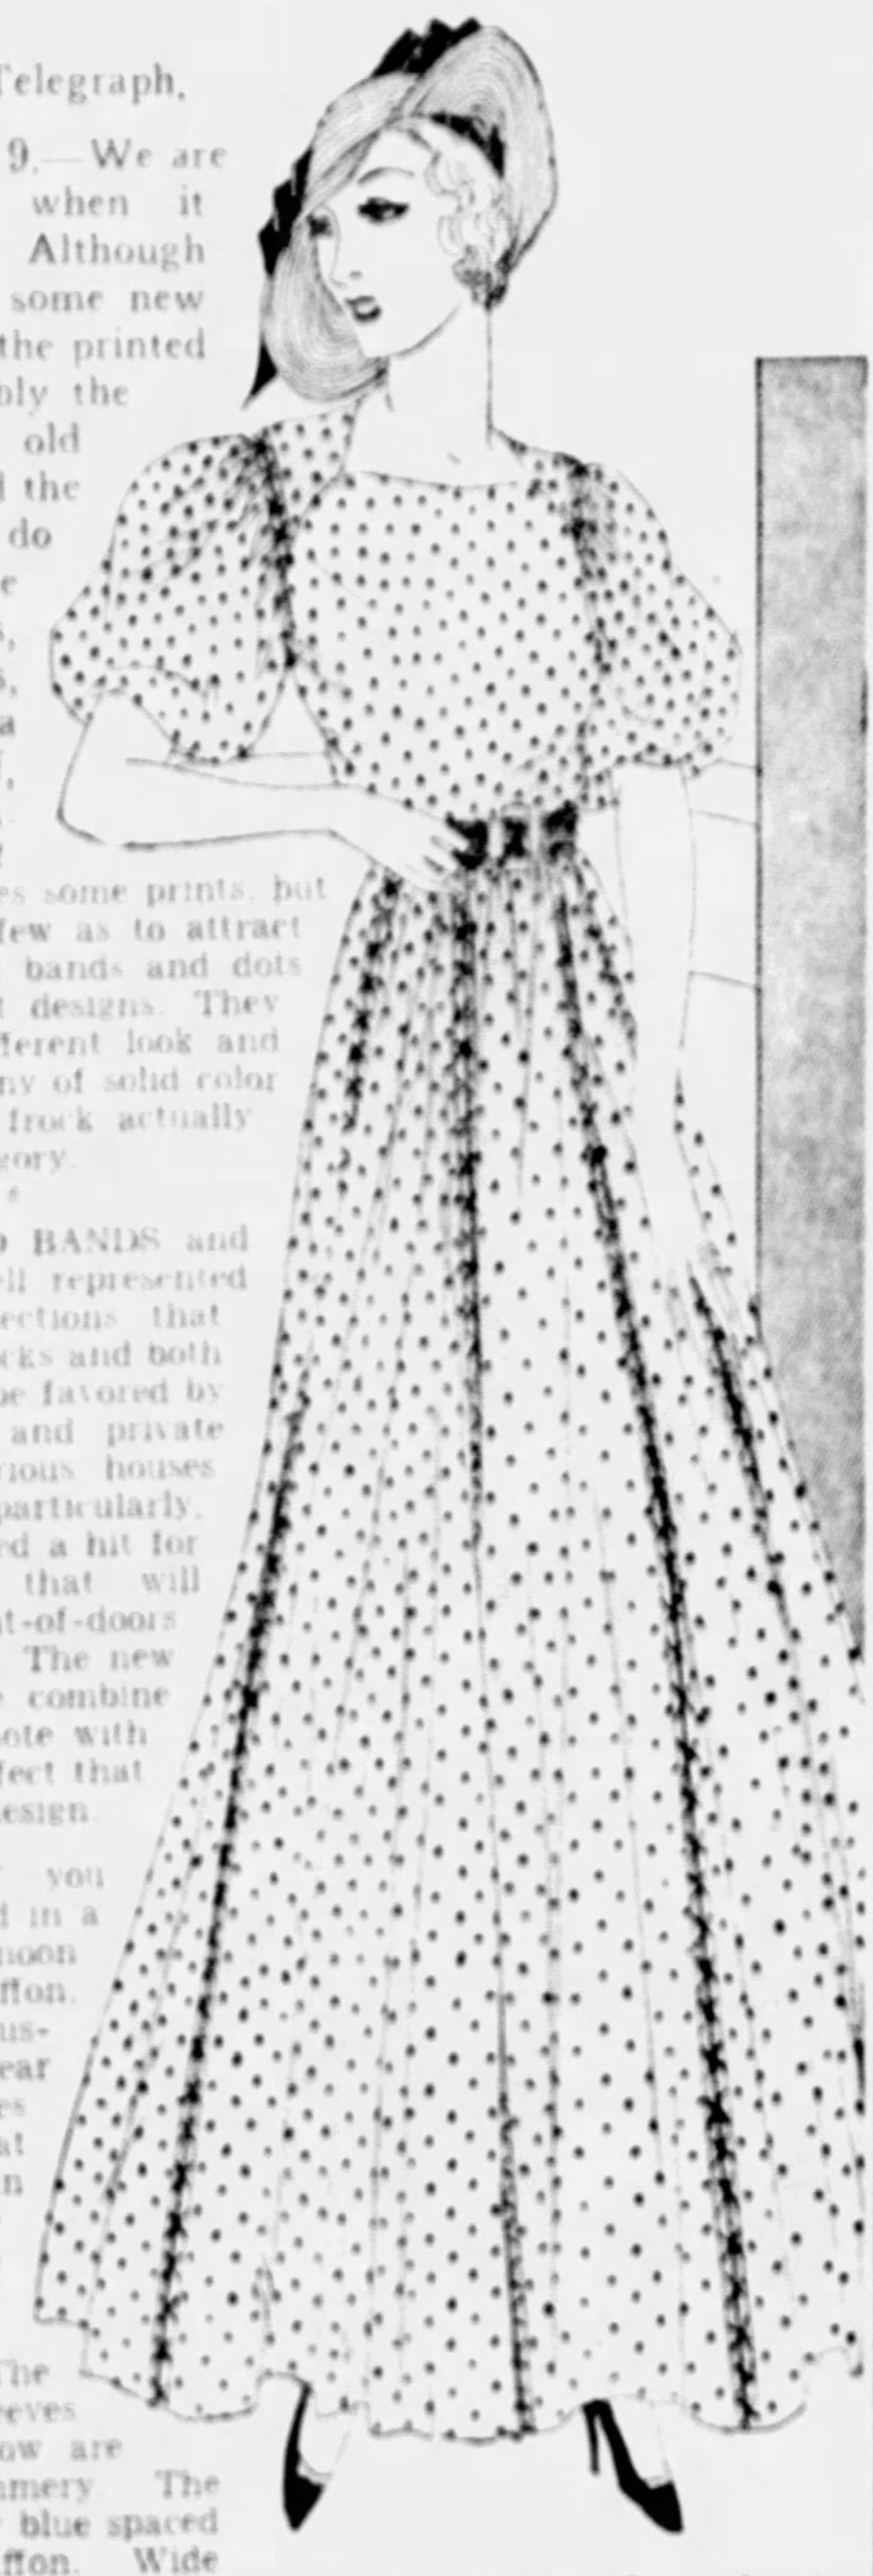
AFTERNOON FROCKS OF DOTTED CHIFFON

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, May 9.—We are not pioneering when it comes to print. Although there have been some new designs noted in the printed fabric field, notably the steel prints, the old reliables still hold the field. When we do wear prints we stick to stripes, dots and checks, with sometimes a tiny flower motif, that is ever so discreet and neat. Of course one does sees some prints, but these are still so few as to attract attention. Striped bands and dots are really the best designs. They give a frock a different look and relieve the monotony of solid color without bring the frock actually into the print category.

* * *

BOTH STRIPED BANDS and dots have been well represented in the latest collections that feature summer frocks and both designs seemed to be favored by both professional and private clients of the various houses. Dotted chiffon, particularly, seems to have scored a hit for afternoon frocks that will grace important out-of-doors events next month. The new frocks of this type combine the garden-party note with a neatly tailored effect that makes a splendid design.

* * *

WE THOUGHT you might be interested in a long-skirted afternoon frock of dotted chiffon, that is quite obviously designed for wear at the polo matches held every year at lovely Bagatelle in the Bois. Bruyere has named this model "Le Polo" and it certainly should score. The wide, puffed sleeves ending at the elbow are feminine and summery. The small dots are navy blue spaced on the white chiffon. Wide bands of "entredeux" worked by hand in a pattern of flower-fagotting, also navy blue, define the sleeve attachment and separate the breadths of the vertical skirt godets. A stitched belt of navy blue kid lends an unexpected tailored note.

'LEAK' PROBED IN CLARKE CASE

MIAMI, Fla., May 9.—(AP.)—State Attorney N. Vernon Hawthorne plans to ask assistance of the federal government in locating an alleged leak of evidence presented to the Dade County Grand Jury in connection with the fatal shooting of Haden Clarke, it was learned today from an authoritative source.

The State Attorney has failed to locate the source of news reports quoting diaries written by Capt. W. N. Lancaster, British flier, who is held under a first-degree murder warrant in the case.

The jurors, who have heard two days' presentation of evidence by Hawthorne, were to report today whether they indicted Lancaster or freed him.

Lancaster and Mrs. J. M. Keith Miller, at whose home the two men were living when Clarke was shot, have expressed their belief that he will be held for trial on a first-degree murder count. Both have insisted that Clarke killed himself.

BALTIMORE'S SUNDAY QUIET

BALTIMORE, May 9.—(AP.)—The quiet, soothing atmosphere of Baltimore was unaffected yesterday by its newly-liberalized Sunday as its residents observed the first Sabbath freed of many of the 200-year-old Blue Laws.

Lexington, Charles, Howard and Liberty streets, in the heart of the business section, were much the same as on past Sundays. The traffic was light and a large number of the automobiles were from other states.

Most of the motion picture theaters, open on Sunday legally for the first time, had scanty attendance.

The parks, highways into the country, homes and golf links claimed as much attention today as in Sundays past.

By a majority of almost 84,000, the voters last Monday passed an ordinance liberalizing the ancient Blue Laws to permit motion pictures, sports and restricted retail sales on Sunday. The ordinance became effective yesterday.

Homestead Senior Play on May 11-12

The senior class of Homestead High School will present a three-act comedy-drama, "Wild Oats Boy" on May 11 and 12 in the school auditorium, under the direction of Claire E. Frysinger. The cast includes Dorothy David, Mary Polamch, William Kihut, Helen Droza, Margaret Poch, John Hyle, Carl Anderson, Mary Posey, Margaret Halman, Joseph Tomsula, Elmer Pringle, Ralph Mervis, Joseph Greco and Rose Liprich.

2 Injured in Brawl, 5 Held at Hearing

Four men and a woman, arraigned in Center Avenue Police Court this morning, were held pending the outcome of injuries sustained by John Morken, 38, and Nick Klemenko, 42, in what police termed "a drunken brawl" in Orr street last night.

Those held were Ben Matauski, 24, of 1208 Forbes street; Stanley Kozier, 45; Joseph Kroit, 46; Anna Kerns, 46, and Alexander Sople, 24, all of 45 Orr street.

West End Man Hit By Auto, Driver Held

Calvin Mitchell, 28, of 59 Steuben street, was injured seriously today when he was struck by an automobile while crossing Steuben street, near Carson street. Police arrested P. F. Fisher, of Chicago, who they said, was the driver of the car. Mitchell was removed to the South Side Hospital, where he was reported suffering from internal injuries.

3 Accused of Theft On Trial Wednesday

Bernard A. Friedman, former assistant cashier of the Pennsylvania Deposit Bank of McKeesport, is listed to go on trial in Criminal Court Wednesday on a charge of embezzlement. He is accused of taking more than $4,000 from October 14 to November 27. There are 10 indictments facing Friedman.

Electric Eye Foils Burglar As Radio Fans Listen in; Famed Britons on Air

A novel scientific experiment showing how a backstairs burglar may be checkmated and photographed for police by a hidden [illegible] is conducted by Orestes H. Caldwell on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock. During an attempted robbery in the studio listeners hear the stealthy footsteps of the intruder, the [illegible] transmitted by the [illegible] intercepts the concealed radio eye, and snaps a photograph of the burglar and [illegible] police sirens.

In connection with the broadcast, the use of photo amplifiers in modern [illegible] alarm and police short-wave radio systems is discussed. Caldwell also explains how a radio eye in the driveway of his home turns on high-powered electric lights and rings electric chimes when a car approaches and how another "eye" opens the garage doors when an automobile's headlights are focused on it.

Mr. Caldwell

A new series of reminiscences in which famous Britons tell the stories of their careers is inaugurated on WJAS today at 4:20 p. m. J. H. Thomas, M. P., is the first speaker on the series of 10 weekly talks arranged by the British Broadcasting Company and heard simultaneously in Great Britain, United States and Canada.

* * *

Program Pointers

Yvonne D'Arle, soprano, and Phil Dewey, baritone, are heard in duet and solo numbers as guest artists on the Parade of States program on WCAE at 8:30 tonight. The state of Maryland, whose racing season reaches its height Saturday with the running of the Preakness, is honored. Betty Brown, cowgirl and ranch owner of New Mexico, tells about her first experience at rounding up horses and sings cowboy songs on KDKA tonight at 10:15. The broadcast marks her second program from the pioneer station.

Miss D'Arle

Two compositions by Percy Grainger are featured by the Gypsies on WCAE at 8. They are "Molly on the Shore" and "Shepherd's Hey."

Harmony reigns on WJAS tonight with the Boswell Sisters at 10:30 and the Singing Strings at 6:15. The latter are three Charleroi boys who achieve unusual effects with violins.

W. A. Lynn, Mayor of Warren, O., is guest speaker during the Westinghouse Parade on KDKA at 6:15 when tribute is paid to his home city.

Kay Donna, the Pittsburgh girl who is making good on the networks, is scheduled to present another of her "Do You Remember" programs of old favorites in the style of the late Nora Bayes on WCAE at 10:30.

The true story of a desert girl who won Hollywood fame in the early days of the movies is dramatized on the Death Valley program on KDKA at 8:30.

In response to insistent requests Lawrence Tibbett sings "The Peanut Vender" on WCAE at 8:30.

"Student Prince" music is featured on KQV's "Musical Vignettes" program with Sara Manno, soprano; William Silk, tenor and violinist, and Charles Jones, organist, at 10.

* * *

Fan Fare

Martha Boswell is the one who plays the piano and not Connie, as many imagine . . . Amy Goldsmith, NBC soprano, sings in Italian, French and German as well as English, and is an accomplished pianist . . . Eddie East, one of the Sisters of the Skillet, used to be a barker for a carnival company . . . When Jacques D'Avrey, the French tenor, first came to America the only English expressions he knew were "ham and eggs" and "ham sandwich" . . . Countess Albani has gone to Atlantic City for a two-week rest.

Martha Boswell

Jessica Dragonette describes her radio career as "years of romance," and says she would rather be a queen of American radio than share a throne with any monarch. She sails for Europe in June.

Phil Lord is spending much of his time aboard his new yacht off Long Island. He's hard at work on his new series in which he is a country doctor. The series, scheduled for five days a week, starts around May 23. The programs, 10 minutes long, require a complete change of cast each time except for the principal and one or two others.

Norman Brokenshire is turning carpenter in his spare time . . . Cliff Edwards, the "Ukulele Ike" of vaudeville and movie fame, has been given a place on WEAF-NBC beginning May 17 . . . Dogs and canaries, according to a recent census, are the favorite pets of the radio stars . . . Muriel Pollack has a canary, Jimmy Wallington, a bull terrier; Ray Perkins, a Scotch terrier; Frank Munn, both a shepherd dog and a canary, and Frank Black, a bald headed canary. Alois Havrilla has a cat that's proficient at tricks.

Question Box

Who are the Jinks Boys on the Barn Dance programs on KDKA Saturday night? Does Gus of the Little German Band take any part? And who are Jack and Jerry Fox on the air?—Y. E. F., White Valley.

Ed Harvey of the KDKA staff answers your questions for you: The Jinks Boys are a trio of veterans of the World War German army. Their real names are Max, Hans and Gus Roth. "Gus Schmaltz," director of the Little German Band, is "Jerry" on the barn dance program. His real name is R. P. Griffith. Jack and Jerry Fox, the Hillbillies, are taking a vacation at their home in Tennessee at the present time. It is probable they will go to Boston to continue their broadcasting after their rest.

Radio to Replace Old-Time Fog Horn

NEW YORK.—Foghorns may soon give way to the radio as a means of preventing collisions at sea. A portable radio transmitter has been developed especially for this purpose at the Detroit, Mich., shops of the United States Lighthouse Service. Should a ship carrying such an apparatus run into fog, the set, put in operation, sends out wireless signals in a distinctive code, says Popular Science Monthly. Any radio compass equipped vessel near at hand can pick up this signal and so determine the exact position of the sending vessel, and by repeated observations, detect the course of the approaching ship. The transmitting set has a 10-mile range.

'Girl Crazy' Stars In Nite Club

All the principals of George Gershwin's "Girl Crazy," the musical extravaganza being shown on the stage at Loew's Penn Theater this week, come to the WCAE microphone to present a program believed to be an innovation in Pittsburgh broadcasting for the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air tonight at 11 o'clock.

Bert Gordon

Frances Upton, who plays the feminine lead and was seen with Eddie Cantor in Ziegfeld's "Whoopee," offers a routine of specially selected numbers, and Bert Gordon, famous dialect comedian, is heard in a group of comedy songs and wisecracks. Other headliners featured in the gala broadcast are Florrie West, blues singer, the Vitaphone Four, harmony quartet, Lew Parker and John Lock, who acts as master of ceremonies.

An extraordinary program, featuring talented kiddies of Pittsburgh, is presented for the children during the Sun-Telegraph Family broadcast on WCAE today at 4:45.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, gives the latest news flashes from the Sun-Telegraph editorial rooms on WCAE at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

Madelon discusses topics of unusual interest to women on WCAE tomorrow morning at 10:30 when she gives her "Reflections of Madelon's Mirror" talk.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

(During illness of Mr. Winchell this column is being conducted by Paul Yawitz.)

A Columnist Who Thought a Sec'y Was a Disguised Voice on the Telephone Writes to Himself, the Idiot

Dear P. Y.: A fellow who said he was the checker at the Astor Hotel laundry called . . . He wanted to be appointed an official spy on your staff as he gets a lot of hot news off the soiled table cloths . . . I told him O. K., but not to send in any original manuscripts . . . Don't forget that wire to Al Jolson, he'll get a kick out of it . . . Fritzi Scheff called . . . Said she and Charles Ray got no pay for the 2 wks. with that road company, so they decided to come back to NY where you can lay off without making up every night. Guy Lombardo wants you to come up to his recording next Wed . . . Paul Whiteman LD'd from Chi . . . He wanted to congrat you and also say he has hit a new low of 186½ lbs. . . . Too bad about that upper Broadway hotel that reconstructed its parlor into a dozen stores five yrs. ago and hasn't rented one since.

Call James Montgomery Flagg . . . He has a story . . . There's going to be a Big Fight between Lew Leslie and Billy Rose over the show-title "Clowns In Clover" . . . Both producers have musicals under that label well in the work . . . There's a anonymous letter in the left drawer . . . The Choral Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association gave its closing concert in the "Y" auditorium last night. Harvey Gaul, its director, departed from the usual program and chose for this concert from among operatic ensembles. There were many solo airs as well from opera, and a group of Hebrew folk music, which as always was the best performance of the evening.

Mr. Lissfelt

Mr. Gaul himself enters so whole-heartedly into this music that he obtains not only a fine spirit but beautiful musical effects. His problem with this chorus was never so patent as last night when he assigned so many solo parts and when these soloists demonstrated the worst in vocal technique. Throaty singing, incomprehensibly defective diction, lack of fundamental principles in music were all there in abundance.

At the close of the season a word of praise for the accompanist, Mrs. Balter, is in order, for with her virile rhythms and unshakeable security, no matter what happens, she is a good second for Mr. Gaul in welding this singing into unison.

J. FRED LISSFELT.

Trade Board Plans Meeting Tomorrow

The regular monthly meeting of the Oakland Board of Trade will be held tomorrow night in the grill room of Hotel Schenley.

Economist to Talk On Preparing Food

Miss Alice McCarren, chief home economist of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, will give daily lectures on preparing food at the display of household appliances being held at the Westinghouse Club, Penwood avenue, Wilkinsburg. She will speak at 2:30 and 8:30 p. m. Several new scientific devices will be shown, including those demonstrated last week for Robert L. Ripley, creator of "Believe It or Not," whose cartoons appear daily in the Sun-Telegraph.

Arnold Headmaster To Address Parents

C. W. Wilder, headmaster of Arnold School, Braddock avenue, will be the principal speaker at a junior school conference of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the school, Wednesday at 8 p. m. Other speakers will include Mrs. Dorothy T. Metzger, instructor of art, and Mrs. Mary W. Floyd, head of the music department; Claude H. Hubbard, physical education director, and John S. Adams, assistant supervisor of the upper forms.

Milk Dealers Urged To Protect Autos

Retail milk dealers of the county were asked by the Pittsburgh Motor Club today to co-operate in keeping the streets and highways free from broken glass. In letters to 26 of the dealers, the club cited injury to tires caused by broken glass and requested the dealers to urge their deliverymen to remove broken bottles from the streets. It was suggested each truck or wagon be equipped with a broom.

Bridge Pair Match Scheduled Saturday

A contract bridge contest for pair championship in the Penn-O-Va League will be held by the Pittsburgh Bridge Club in its rooms in the William Penn Hotel Saturday afternoon and night. The Mrs. H. C. Phillips trophy will be awarded. The contest is open to all players in the tri-state district. More than 30 pair are expected to play.

Lone Pittsburgher In Missouri Class

John Ross Bickley, of 2208 Shady avenue, is the only Pittsburgh boy in the graduating class of 815 students who are candidates for degrees at the nineteenth commencement of the University of Missouri, June 7. He will receive a master of arts degree.

Dietrich's Ire Laid to Cut In Scenes

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, May 9.

A night operator in a 30 cent picture show can tell the most interesting development in the Marlene Dietrich-Paramount row.

Several evenings ago, when the last show was over in a small Hollywood theater, attendents were surprised to see the glamorous German star bearing down upon them with a determined gleam in her eye. They became even more google-eyed to discover that her husband, her little girl and Maurice Chevalier also had been guests in their little third-run theater.

The film had been "Shanghai Express" and it, they soon found out, was the cause of the Dietrich wrath.

Scenes had been left out. Miss Dietrich wanted to know why. She demanded to talk to the operator, so they took her to his little booth. There she repeated her questions and the operator, an independent fellow, explained that he ran the film exactly as it came to him, and if she wasn't satisfied she would have to take it up with Paramount.

WOULDN'T BUDGE

And talk wouldn't budge him. When presently the star rejoined her companions, who had been pacing in the lobby, she still had the determined gleam in her eye. No one in the party offered any cheers for Paramount.

It seldom happens, but Groucho Marx was topped yesterday at a meeting of the West Side Asthma and Riding Club.

Waiters were clearing away the luncheon dishes when Groucho flipped, "Say, what's the idea of starting the speeches before I've had my desert?"

Sitting beside him was Don Marquis. He smiled benignantly.

"There was a theory, Groucho," he said, "that if you were eating someone else could make a speech."

YOUR DAILY GOSSIP

They are saying that the tag lines of Gene Fowler's coming book on Hollywood will tack a well known film executive (not at R-K-O) on the cross . . . The most unexpected people wear the brightest clothes. Lawrence Grant, portrayer of dignified Prime Ministers or sinisted heavies, has a penchant for white flannels and flaming red blazers. . . . If you've not heard it yet, there's a kick in the news that Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen are going out in vaudeville together. They'll do a pair of Flagg and Quirt characters . . . By doctor's orders, Constance Bennett goes home at 4:30 p. m. every day to take a nap . . . There'll be a week of added scenes on Greta Garbo's new picture, "As You Desire Me" . . . While on location, Ralph Bellamy met an old man who was the first white child in Monterey, Cal.

"We had a picture company up here two years ago," said the old fellow. "They were making a film called 'Terrible David'." . . . Bill Rankin, now writing stories for Universal, is the only ex-member of the famous Gridiron Club in Hollywood . . . Wallie Smith sends me a copy of his novel, "The Little Tigress." It's being reprinted after several years' time . . . Norma Shearer's next film for M. G. M. will be "Smilin' Thru." . . . Pansy, the 310-pound turtle the "Bird of Paradise" troup brought from Hawaii, has been sold for $15. It will join the exhibits in an aquarium on the Long Beach pike . . . Dick Arlen's next picture at Paramount will be "Hot Ice." It will feature a thrilling game of ice hockey.

In Lead

Marian Nixon plays the feminine lead in "The Amateur Daddy," coming Wednesday to the Fulton screen.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Tonight in the Alvin the Professional Players will present the last play of their subscription series, the Noel Coward comedy, "Hay Fever," with Constance Collier in the role of a temperamental woman. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday. Patterson McNutt produced the comedy.

* * *

Next Monday the Nixon will reopen for a week of Gilbert and Sullivan opera in which the opening bill will be "Trial by Jury" and "Pinafore." In the latter will be Fay Templeton as Little Buttercup, a role in which she is said to be most fascinating. This will be given the first four days of the week. "The Mikado" will be sung Friday night and Saturday matinee. The closing work will be "The Pirates of Penzance."

* * *

Friday evening only there will be a Yiddish musical play, "The Great Miracle," in the Nixon, with Leon Blank and Aaron Lebedeff, popular artists of the Jewish stage. They will be supported by a company from one of the leading Yiddish theaters of New York.

* * *

After the current week is finished the Alvin will be dark until Saturday, May 21, when the Friars' Frolic, which opened in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York last night, will come for matinee and evening performances. There will be a large company, including some famous actors of vaudeville and musical comedy.

* * *

When the Civic Light Opera Company completes its engagement in the Nixon next week, the company will rest until August, when it will be reassembled in New York for an important Gilbert and Sullivan revival, "Utopia, Ltd.," a work that has not been produced in years. It is a satire on Socialism, which should be peculiarly timely just now, when "Of Thee I Sing," satire on government, is a big New York hit.

Will Put Noel Coward Drama on Screen

Frank Borzage, Fox Film director, is back from a two-week stay in London, where he made a study of the English stage production of "Cavalcade," the Noel Coward drama which he will shortly transfer to the screen. With Borzage is S. N. Behrman, the author, who will adapt "Cavalcade" for the films, in collaboration with Sonya Levien.

Syria Daughters And Sons to Dance

Sons and daughters of members of Syria Temple will be entertained at a dinner dance Friday evening in Syria Mosque. Each will be permitted to bring a girl or boy. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock, to be followed by motion pictures, vaudeville and dancing.

Oakie Is Star In Enright

By MARY SHINE

The cinema world is overflowing with films portraying romances, trials and tribulations of the little taxi-dancer recently and among them is one called "Dancers in the Dark," showing in the Enright, in which Jack Oakie makes the most of a sentimental role to which he is badly fitted. The versatile Jack, as Duke, the leader of an orchestra, tried all for the best, of course, to thwart the romance of his foster brother, a saxtooter in the orchestra, and a taxi-dancer in a tawdry joint.

The dancer, Gloria, is played by Miriam Hopkins in the usual blonde, frowsy, gum-chewing manner. It all begins when Duke, who seems to know all about Gloria's unsavory past life, decides to get his brother out of town for a month, and during that time to prove Gloria after all just another gold digger, and save his brother from an unfortunate marriage. However, he falls in love with her, himself, and Brother Floyd, returning, finds Duke kissing Gloria against her will, but how is he to know? But all's well that ends well, and the picture does get around to a happy ending, after many feet of film, some high powered drammer in which a poker-faced villain, also in love with Gloria, fires a few shots, murder is done, policemen arrive and the villain is done away with. "Heavens, My Husband!" an amusing skit, furnishes the much-needed comedy relief.

Red Gown Weakness Of Actor Howard

It is the easiest thing in the world for anyone to locate Leslie Howard on the studio stage during rehearsals for he always wears his famous red dressing gown which has been a faithful companion on all his pictures.

He bought it in Beverly Hills when he was working on his first screen production, "Outward Bound" and has since worn it between scenes of "Never the Twain Shall Meet," "A Free Soul," "A Daughter of Luxury," "Devotion" and now in Paramount's "Reserved for Ladies."

'Freedom' Lead Goes To Eric Linden

Since it's quite clear that Joel McCrea can't be two places at once, Eric Linden has been assigned by Radio to play the masculine lead in Agnes Christine Johnson's story, "Freedom." This is the picture that Roland Brown will direct for the Selznick organization. McCrea, in the meanwhile, will have his time filled up with a part in "The Most Dangerous Game."

'Tarzan, the Ape-Man' Now in Sheridan

The story of the white man who was brought up in the jungle and lived in the tree-tops like the apes is told in "Tarzan, the Ape-Man," now showing in the Sheridan Square. It is a screen version of the adventure novel by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Fights with lions, apes, blood-thirsty pygmies, are shown. Then too, there is the romance of Tarzan and an English girl. Johnny Weissmuller, world champion swimmer, plays the title role. Maureen O'Sullivan, Neil Hamilton, C. Aubrey Smith, Doris Lloyd, Forrester Harvey and Ivory Williams are in the cast.

Chic Sale as 'Expert' In Harris

Charles "Chic" Sale and little Dickie Moore, who played together in "The Star Witness," are a similar team in "The Expert," by Edna Ferber, now showing in the Harris. In "The Expert" Sale is the well-intentioned but meddlesome old man who does not hesitate to tell everyone what should be done. Misunderstood generally, he fails to carry through his "reforms." The humorous side of the character is stressed. Others in the cast are Lois Wilson, Earle Fox and Ralfe Harolde.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

The Sucker

WHEN JIMMY Durante was in town a short time ago, he told me a story that I've been wanting to print ever since. The trouble with the situation was that, after writing the gag very carefully on a sheet of paper, I was unable to read what I had written the following day. Now it all comes back to me and I will be able to tell you the yarn. Which only goes to prove that we never know when we're well off.

Incidentally, I'm tickled plenty with Jimmy's success in the picture world. And so is everyone else, I imagine. I know of no one on Broadway who has more friends and well wishers than the mug with the funny map. Durante should be a full-fledged star in his own right by the time another year rolls around, provided they don't toss him into too many pictures. At any rate, the story:

A handsome Pullman porter fell deeply in love with a sweet little gal in Birmingham, Ala. So completely did he fall, in fact, that he asked the lady to become his wife.

The lady agreed that it might not be a bad idea to enter the state of holy wedlock, which is just across the border from the State of Alabama. And when the porter left on his train for New York that night, it was with the understanding that they were to be wedded as soon as he had outfitted an apartment in Harlem.

The wife-to-be was a damsel who wished to be supported in a style to which she was unaccustomed. Never having had too much, she was going to make the very best of this opportunity.

"Honey chile," she informed him, "Ah wants a place dat is de fines' you can provide. When yo' an' me is livin' in de matrimonial state, Ah wants to be proud of mah home. Remember what Ah'm tellin' yo.' Ah wants de bestes' of everything."

Her fiance kissed her devotedly.

"Esmerelda," he murmured, "dere ain't nothin' in de world what's gonna be too good for yo'.

"Ah'm a man dat don't make no idle boasts. No indeedy, Ah'm gonna furnish a flat what's gonna be the talk of Harlem."

But alas and a lack of funds! The Pullman porter was suffering from an acute attack of Hooveritis. He had very little funds with which to make good his boast of a fine home. He wracked his brains and he finally hit upon the only possible solution. He rented an unfurnished flat in Harlem and then, to furnish it, began a systematic method of swiping things from the Pullman company.

From an upper berth, he took an alleged mattress. From another he took a pillow. From a drawing room, he copped an electric fan. From the diner, he smuggled off plates and knives and forks. From underneath a chair, he took a foot rest. This went on for some time—with the porter growing so rash that he finally took a gate from one of the cars to place it in the entrance to his parlor.

In due time, the apartment was outfitted in tasty Pullman fashion. He wired his wife-to-be and told her to come to New York immediately. On the night before she was scheduled to arrive, however, he invited a few of his male friends around for a farewell party.

They arrived, and he promptly proceeded to show them this little nest he had built. He showed them the apartment from top to bottom. Proudly he displayed his train gate and the dishes that were marked with the Pullman insignia. And then he brought the boys back into the parlor.

"How 'bout a lil' drink, boys?" he asked smilingly.

One of his friends reached into a pocket and looked anxiously at a battered watch.

"No, suh, John," he cried hurriedly, "we won't have time. We gotta get off dis train before she pulls out!" . . . .

CREDIT the genial Buck Gompers with the story of the healthy Scotchman who brought his wife to America at the age of 20 and went to work to support her. As the years drifted by she presented him with eight children. Then, closing her eyes, she went to whatever spot it is that good Scotch ladies go when they die.

After her death the widower worked hard and faithfully to support his children. At 8 in the morning he was in his store. And it was after 6 at night when he finally called it a day.

The years drifted by. One by one his children married. When he was 58 his last child married. Then the old man was happy. He had done well.

Came the Scot's sixtieth birthday. The children came together, discussed the matter and decided to honor him with a dinner. Accordingly, they hired a private room in a hotel, ordered some wine for this special occasion and gathered there on the night in question to pay tribute to their father.

Toward the end of the dinner the oldest son arose and rapped for order. He turned to his father.

"Father," he began, "you know why we are all here tonight. We have gathered here to honor you on your sixtieth birthday. We all love you and we thank God we are all able to celebrate this milestone with you.

"We appreciate the fact that you have been a devoted father to us. We know how you worked and slaved to take care of us after our dear mother passed away. You have been a marvelous man, father."

He paused for a moment.

"And now, father," he continued effectively, "we want to show our appreciation on this, your sixtieth birthday.

"From this day on, we don't want you to worry about us any longer. All you have to do is to make enough money to take care of yourself!" . . .

Cecilia Parker Gets Lead in 'The Killer'

Cecilia Parker, who made her screen debut as George O'Brien's leading lady in "The Rainbow Trail," has been assigned the feminine lead in O'Brien's forthcoming Fox outdoor drama, "The Killer."

David Howard is directing the new production, whose cast also includes Charles Stevens, Forrester Harvey, Charles Middleton and Noble Johnson.

Joan Bennett to Play 'Week Ends Only'

Joan Bennett, recently returned from her honeymoon trip, will soon begin work at Movietone City on her new starring assignment in "Week Ends Only." Alan Crosland will direct the production of the picture, which was taken from the story by Warner Fabian. Miss Bennett's newest Fox picture, "The Trial of Vivienne Ware," will soon be released.

Chico Marx Returns To Hollywood

Chico Marx, who recently fractured a knee cap in an automobile accident, has left the hospital and returned to his Hollywood home where he will remain until sufficiently recovered to resume work in his role in "Horse Feathers," the Four Marx Brothers starring picture, which was halted by the accident. It will be several weeks before the fractured bone will knit completely.

Paramount Signs Randolph Scott

Randolph Scott, former athlete and stage director, has signed a new contract as a Paramount film player. Scott attracted the attention of film executives last summer while appearing in the stage production of "The Broken Wing" and made his first screen appearance in "Sky Bride." He now is preparing to work in his first leading part in pictures, the title role in the film version of Will James autobiography, "Lone Cowboy."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Make Sure Your Child Has No Signs of Tuberculosis

Dr. Copeland

Not long ago I told you about tuberculosis and how it attacks children. Since then many mothers have asked what to do about it.

It all depends on the case. If the disease is not active and the home conditions are favorable the child may be kept with the family. Your doctor will advise you about this.

But if the case shows active signs admission to an institution is desirable, because here is strict supervision. Here the necessary attention is given to food and rest, life in the open air is maintained and breathing exercises are taught.

Under favorable conditions tuberculosis is a curable disease in the beginning. This is true both in adults and in children.

Home treatment for the child may be successful if the surroundings are good. It is proper if the existence of lung trouble in the other members of the family can be definitely excluded; but to carry on proper treatment at home requires a mother of exceptional intelligence and patience. She must be well grounded in the whys and wherefores of the several things essential to successful management of the case.

It is important that parents gain some appreciation of the educational work essential to the control and eradication of tuberculosis. We are not dealing with a self-limited disease like pneumonia or scarlet fever or typhoid. We must fight an ailment that is restless and sleepless, ever alert to attack and destroy the cells and tissues of the body.

Where the tendency of every other infectious disease is to get well, the demand of untreated tuberculosis is for the life of the victim. Unless we can defeat the disease in its first stage, the outlook becomes increasingly grave.

I must impress upon you the importance—the very necessity—of early diagnosis. That is perhaps the most important advice I can possibly give.

If you have the slightest suspicion that the child's lungs are not right, talk with your doctor at once. He will make a careful physical examination and, if necessary, advise an X-ray examination.

You must learn the exact truth regarding the situation. Then by following well-established rules of procedure full recovery may be expected.

Answers to Health Queries

A. L. K. Q.—Do you advise a tubercular patient to remain at home, where the conditions are almost ideal, rather than to go to a sanitarium? The patient in question has been ill over three months in bed and his physician has suggested the change in question. Would the other members of the family be apt to contract the disease under the circumstances?

A.—The systematic care and attention given such patients in hospitals and sanitariums will usually bring about results quicker than home treatment. I would suggest that you be guided by your doctor's advice and judgment. If precautions are taken to avoid coming in actual contact with the sputum, etc., there should be a minimum of danger.

A story is told of B. H. Kroger that is typical of him and of our methods of operation today.

A long time ago, a certain salesman entered his store. With a practical flourish, he placed a can of corn on the counter and tapped it with an impressive forefinger.

"Ever see anything classier than that wrapper?" he demanded of B. H. Kroger. "Makes you hungry the minute you see it. That wrapper will sell more canned corn in a day than you've been selling in a month. What d'yuh say?"

He stopped short—then stared in astonishment, as Kroger stripped off the pretty wrapper, opened the can, and tasted the corn.

"My customers eat corn," said Kroger crisply, "not wrappers."

Today, Kroger buyers work like that. It's what's in the can that counts!

In fact, we developed the Kroger Foundation to accurately determine the quality of foods—to improve methods of bringing them from their sources to the consumer's table. It is primarily dedicated to the study of foods and food values for American housewives and their families.

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

Is Motherhood the Right of Every Married Woman?

Has a wife a right to be a mother? And if her husband flatly refuses to allow her to have children, what should she do?

Should she go on with hunger in her heart—a hunger that her husband alone can't satisfy, even though she loves him?

"I don't know! I don't know!" wails Dolores. "Sometimes I think I'll leave him, and try to find happiness with someone else. Yet, I worship him!"

What is your answer?

What would you do, if you wanted children, and had a husband like that?

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I have read your column for a long time, but I have never seen a problem like mine discussed there, so I am coming to you myself. And my letter is coming straight from a heart that aches sometimes so I can hardly stand it. Please help me.

"Here is the problem. Seven years ago Arthur and I were married. We were so happy that it seemed like a heaven on earth. I worshiped him—and still do.

"I have done everything that I could to be a good wife, and I still do. And he is sweet to me, too, except for one thing.

"I will admit that even when I married him I knew that he disliked children, and said he never wanted any, but I thought he would change.

HAS NOT CHANGED

"Well, he hasn't, in spite of the fact that I have prayed with misery in my heart that he would. And so that is the sad part of my story. For I live and adore children. I would gladly give my right arm if I could have a little baby of my own.

"But he flatly refuses me that great joy, and the sole reason is that he 'doesn't like children.'

"Sometimes I hate him for his selfishness in this matter, but I can't hate him, either, for outside of that one thing he is wonderful and good and kind, and when I think of that I can't help loving him, in spite of everything.

"I have felt sometimes like giving him up—getting a divorce—and that maybe my dream of having children might come true if I married someone else.

HEART IS BREAKING

"But I shrink from that, for there is no one else who could take his place. I love him and I want his children, and my heart is simply breaking because of it all. Then sometimes I think that maybe it is the will of God that I be childless.

"Can somebody help me? What do you think? What shall I do? I am so wretched.

"DOLORES."

All right, stranger! What shall Dolores do?

Did you ever have a problem like hers to solve? If you did, tell us what you did about it, and what happened?

Personally, I suspect that if Arthur just once saw his own little son or daughter, he'd change his notion. I knew a man once who "hated" children. He hated them so badly that he actually made his wife promise, before their baby came, that she would give it away. But when it arrived he was so proud of it that he would hardly let it out of his sight!

So my answer to Dolores is—go ahead and have your baby! See what happens. I'll gamble that what'll happen will be that Arthur will be transformed, and no longer dislike children.

Leading Authorities

By E. V. SHEPARD

Think Before You Play.

Some bid better than they play. Others play better than they bid. Many fine players at times fail to think before they play. The hand below affords an illustration of the latter happening.

♠AKQ54
♡108
♣AK532
◇Q

♠1032 ♡A2 ♣Q9 ◇976543 — Y — ♠986 ♡97543 ♣J74 ◇J10

Z made an opening bid of 1-Heart. His partner saw an almost certain game, with slam possibilities, and signified this by an overcall of 2-Spades. Z responded with 3-Diamonds, to show his shortness in his partner's suit. Y shifted to 4-Clubs, and Z's answer was 4-No Trumps. A small slam could have been made at no-trumps (five spades, three hearts, two clubs and two diamonds), but Y believed that a two-suiter could not be played to advantage at no-trumps. Of course that general rule is absolute only when neither partner can bid one of the four suits, upon top cards. In the case under review each partner held powerful honors in two suits, and no-trumps would have scored more; also that make would have been easier to negotiate. From Y's viewpoint one of his two black suits must be trumps. It was a question which suit Y would bid. Finally he bid 5-Spades, and Z carried the contract to 6-Spades. A rattled the declarer by doubling.

B thought than an opening lead of hearts was safest, as he was so long in that suit. A refused to put up his Ace, and the trick was won by the declarer's 10. Fearing a ruff, in addition to the one heart trick that must be lost to the Ace, Y paused only to make a fatal play, leading his Q of diamonds, before pulling trumps and establishing hearts. Having led his good diamond, he won the first trump trick with dummy's J of spades. He had intended to throw off three clubs on dummy's hearts and diamonds, but not until he had entered dummy did he discover that he must now go down a trick through his hasty play.

There was nothing that could be done excepting to run off three more rounds of spades, hoping that one player would discard clubs, but A discarded one diamond on the fourth round of spades, and B let go a heart. Not daring to lead another trump, Y led his last heart and lost the trick to the Ace. A return lead of B's Q of clubs put Y in, but he had to lose a club trick to the J, going down one trick.

The declaration might have been defeated, depending upon what Y did, had B made an opening lead of diamonds. But that opening lead of hearts was at least a chance to make the small slam. All Y had to do was to take three rounds of spades, to protect himself against a ruff. Then he could have led his last heart, putting A in the lead. Anything that A returned would have been won by the declaring side. Z would have played the A-K of diamonds, killing Y's Q, but affording Y two club discards. Then one of Z's two good hearts would have allowed Y to discard his last losing club. An opening lead of spades, hearts or clubs would have insured a small slam, provided Y played to best advantage, but an opening lead of diamonds might have defeated the small slam contract.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridal Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The other evening the question was asked whether the bridal attendants should pay for their outfits. That is a question which has aroused much misunderstanding between a very dear friend and myself. I sincerely hope you will be able to clear up much confusion in the minds of all concerned.

When I was asked to be the maid-of-honor I was told that I had the privilege of wearing anything I thought would be appropriate. Later, the bride wanted all the dresses alike and had a buyer from one of the stores bring them back from New York at her quoted price, all of which was put forth before asking the girls about it.

It was all most embarrassing, as I was not able to pay such a price and at the same time I did not like to hurt the brides feelings by refusing to accept the arrangements. What would you advise in such a case?

CONSTANT READER.

This is an embarrassing situation and one that the bride-to-be should never have allowed to happen. True it is that usually the attendants of the bride and of the groom buy their own attire for the wedding. As a matter of fact, I have heard of only a few, a very few, brides who bought the outfits for their attendants . . . very rich brides, and very generous ones.

The bride, your friend, should have made it very clear about all plans. I cannot understand her indecisive way of doing things and of making her plans.

I suggest that now, however, since the plans have gone so far, and since the bride is such a dear friends of yours, that you strain every effort to be the maid of honor and buy the costume, even if it means a great deal of sacrifice on your part. This is distinctly the kind of circumstances when we must be "good sports" . . . even if it does pinch and hurt.

The Maid of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if a young married girl could be bridesmaid for her older sister? My sister is to be married in three weeks. She wants one bridesmaid, and has refused to have me because I am married. She is to be married in a Catholic church. I have heard of married girls being bridesmaids, and I feel very disappointed that my own sister refused me.

ALICE.

I am sorry, too, for your sake that your sister took this quite unwarranted point of view toward this question of married bridal attendants. Nowadays no distinction is made between married and unmarried people as attendants of either the bride or the groom. It is not unusual now for a bride to choose all, or nearly all, of her attendants from among her married friends. And why not? There is no possible reason that I can see why she shouldn't.

-:- The Beauty Box -:-

By HELEN FOLLETT

Gaiety and laughter quicken the heart beats, stimulate all the vital elements of the body. Low spirits, bawling, whining, fussing are agents of depression, having a bad effect upon the functions of the skin and the digestive organs. What these destructive emotions do to the human portrait need not be told; almost every family has a victim of self-pity ghosting around to dampen the spirits of more courageous members. Everybody has troubles of one kind or another. Bawling doesn't lessen them; all it does is to put ditches and ugly gullies in a woman's face. Also, it's out of date. The melancholy beauty belongs to the period of high shoes and bust ruffles.

No matter how pretty a girl may be, if she isn't neatly harnessed she doesn't make the grade. A crease in a stocking or a stocking seam doing zigzags throws the beauty composition into a state of discord. An elegant and attractive appearance depends upon numerous details; it isn't a mere matter of buying the perfect water wave, powdering the skin with care and discretion, having the fingertip shells glittering. Oh, no, Peggy Ann. It includes so many forms of fastidiousness that a catalogue of them would have to be printed in two volumes.

By holding in the tummy muscles, the chest lifts naturally and the back takes on a graceful line. By wearing a foundation garment that snugs in the hips and holds abdominal muscles in place, a plumpish femme is more likely to assume the correct posture, carry herself splendidly than if she were to trot around unharnessed. A good exercise consists of lying flat on the back with toes under a radiator, lifting and lowering the upper part of the body. Difficult at first, but elegant in results.

Fine Molds

Use the muffin pans when you want to make a molded salad. They make just the size required for serving and take up less room in the refrigerator than many smaller molds.

-:- The Moody Child -:-

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

Logically, the first thing to do for a child that is a victim of sulky moods, is to try to discover how he gets that way. Find out, through friendly interest, just what it is he thinks about—after what activities the moods present themselves.

Is he by any chance jealous of a brother or sister? Is he behind in his school work and in fear of failure? Has he already failed, either in his studies or in his adjustment with young companions on the playground? Have you compared him to seemingly brighter brother or sister in his presence, thus giving him a shamed feeling of inferiority?

Any one of these, or of a thousand other feelings and thoughts, may be at the root of the matter.

Moods are retreats—a shutting out of actualities—and if indulged in too long they become dangerous things, indeed.

If you suspect a feeling of jealousy, go out of your way to make the moody child feel that he is very necessary to the family circle. Give him something to do in which he can shine in the home group, and praise him for it.

Too much parental emotion over report cards may give a child the suspicion that he has fallen down on the job, made mother and father ashamed of him, and instead of trying harder he may take refuge in dreams of great prowess in some other direction without actually making any move to execute those dreams.

Talk with his teacher and find out whether he gets along well in play as well as work. If he seems hopelessly inferior in competitive games, invite a few younger children to play with him, so that he may excel a few times before an audience. The feeling of confidence comes quickly after a few victories.

There is always a reason for the moodiness of a child, and it is important to discover it and remove it.

WATER FIRM'S INCOME GAINS

An increase in net income of $116,411 in 1931 over 1930 is shown in the financial report of the South Pittsburgh Water Company, just issued by the company. The company receives huge sums yearly from the City of Pittsburgh for water supplied to several South Hills wards. The contract provides for payment by the city at company rates and the city bills the consumers at the municipal rates.

The report says the gross revenue dropped $1,000 from 1930 to $625,830 last year.

Boy Hurt When He Runs Into Trolley

Donald Gordon, 4, of 3045 Wadlow street, was treated at St. John's Hospital yesterday for cuts and bruises suffered, police said, when he ran into a street car at Brighton road and Leckey way.

CHIMES HERALD DRIVE OPENING

Reveille, the military call to duty, was to ring out on the chimes of Trinity Cathedral today, formally opening the Salvation Army's drive for $112,000 to sustain relief work for another year. And at the same time young men and women buglers were to play the reveille before the Army headquarters building in the Boulevard of the Allies.

R. Lenhart, who plays the chimes at Trinity, announced he would present a program of hymns after the reveille.

"So This Is London," a three-act comedy, will be presented by the junior class of Avalon High School Friday. It will be under the direction of Miss Guiletta Plympton.

Fined for Starting Card Game With Wharf Jobless

Alleged to have instigated a card game among the homeless men who frequent the Monongahela River bank near Smithfield street, George Miller, Negro, living at the Helping Hand, was fined $10 in Central Police Court yesterday. According to Attorney Harry I. Miller of the Helping Hand, George Miller found a card table and set it up on the river bank and soon had a poker game in progress.

Police were called and all ran but Miller, who was arrested. Police confiscated the 3 cents found on the table but gave it to Miller to help him pay the fine. He was $9.73 short and went to jail.

FIGHT WRECKS DENTAL OFFICE

Arthur Whalen's visit to Pittsburgh to see his sister dance in her school's kirmes at a downtown theater resulted in his landing in Central Police Station because, police say, he became intoxicated before the performance, wrecked a dentist's office and slugged the dentist.

Whalen, 28, it was testified in Central Police Court, came here from Ridgway and entered the office of Dr. Howard W. Gamble. He insisted that Clarence W. Daley, who occupies an office next to Dr. Gamble, give his teeth attention. Daley, not a dentist, told him to wait for Dr. Gamble and the battle began. When the dentist arrived, it was testified, he received a blow that broke his wrist watch. About $100 worth of dental materials and instruments were ruined, Dr. Gamble reported. Magistrate Leo Rothenberg held Whalen for further investigation.

Athletes to Appear in 'Absurdities' Play

"The Absurdities of 1932," first annual musical production of the Monogram Club of Duquesne University, will be given in the Campus Theater, May 18. The three-act revue presents football of the present, past and future, set to music, with a co-ed chorus, specialties and original songs.

Football and basket ball stars who compose the Monogram Club are satirizing the new football rules and lampooning other collegiate institutions in the "Absurdities," written by Dr. Michael J. Brannigan and George Kelly. Miss Marie Burns is directing the dance numbers. Edward Smith and Dr. Brannigan are directing.

MORIN TO FACE VOTE MACHINE QUIZ

PREPARING TO 'DIET'

Two of the five Carnegie Tech co-eds weighing in at the start of their two-week diet. They've agreed to live on scientifically-balanced meals costing 20 cents each for each of them. The ideal recommendation of wholesome, inexpensive fare for the needy. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

MISS FRANCES GRAHAM MISS LAILA IKOLA

FIVE TECH GIRLS ON CHEAP DIET

The Carnegie Tech "economy" diet of 20 cents a day was launched upon its two weeks' experiment by five senior students in the department of household economics this morning. The girls have volunteered to live on $1 a day, to determine how cheaply and well a typical family can be maintained.

Immediately after being "weighed in" at 7 o'clock this morning, Frances Graham, Laila Ikola, Marion Black, Elinor Kutchka and Mabelle Steele sat down to a breakfast of stewed rhubarb (small serving) rolled oats, whole milk, white bread, butter, coffee and milk.

Today's luncheon menu is creamy corn chowder, graham bread, butter, baked apple and milk.

For dinner, the girls will have pot roast of beef (chuck cut), potatoes (cooked with roast), gravy, raw carrot and cabbage salad, graham bread, rice custard pudding.

Miss Harriet F. Glendon, head of the department of household economics, has provided the recipe for the creamy corn chowder served at lunch:

¾ cup navy beans.
1 cup corn.
1 cup tomatoes.
1½ teaspoons salt.
2 quarts water.
2 tablespoons fat.

Soak the beans over night, add the water and simmer slowly until the beans are nearly done. Then add the tomatoes, corn, salt and fat.

Food purchases for today's and Tuesday menus, with left overs, cost exactly $1.99, a fraction less than $1 a day, according to Miss Glendon.

The list follows:

TWO BOYS HELD IN SCHOOL FIRE

Two boys, alleged to have admitted to police that they attempted to burn down the Bell avenue public school in North Braddock, were to be given hearings today before Justice of the Peace Edward F. Cassidy, of North Braddock. They were held at Juvenile Court quarters pending the hearing. Because of their youth the Sun-Telegraph will not public their names.

According to Acting Chief of Police William J. Glenn, of North Braddock, the boys confessed yesterday they tried to destroy the building because they disliked to go to school. They started a fire in a second floor cloak room, the police said. A hatchet apparently used by the boys in entering the building was found on the scene. Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr placed the damage at $15,000.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., May 9.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

Diary of a U. S. Senate trying to find two billion dollars that they have already spent but didn't have: Monday—soak the rich. Tuesday — begin hearing from the rich. Tuesday afternoon — decide to give the rich a chance to get richer. Wednesday — tax Wall Street stock sales. Thursday —get word from Wall Street: "Lay off us or you will get no campaign contributions." So Thursday afternoon —decide: "We were wrong about Wall Street." Friday — soak the little fellow. Saturday morning— find out there is no "little fellow" —he has been soaked till he is drowned. Sunday—meditate. Next week—same procedure; only more talk and less results. Yours,

WILL.

J. D. CALLERY DIES IN HOME HERE AT 74

Financier and Railways Chairman Succumbs After Relapse; Ill Long Time

Widely known throughout the Pittsburgh district as a bank president, utility magnate and amateur horseman, James Dawson Callery, 74, who converted the Second Avenue Railway Company from a horse car line to the first successful electric street railway, was dead today at his home, 718 Devonshire street.

Mr. Callery

Death came unexpectedly to the aged financier, who suffered a relapse 10 days ago after his return to his desk at the Diamond National Bank, apparently recovered from a long illness. At the time of his death he was president of the Baragua Sugar Company, chairman of the Pittsburgh Railways Company and the Equitable Gas Company, and a director of the Philadelphia Company.

BORN IN ALLEGHENY

Born in old Allegheny, Mr. Callery was the son of the late James Callery, leather merchant and railroad builder, and Rose (Downing) Callery, both of whom came to Pittsburgh from Ireland. He was educated in Pittsburgh public schools and at Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind.

For a short time after his graduation he engaged in the leather business with his father and in 1888 started his railway career with the Second Avenue Railway Company and the Pittsburgh West End Railway. He became director of the former and president of the latter, positions he held until the merger of the two, January 1, 1902.

RAILWAY MERGERS

He was elected president of the marged interests and subsequently was instrumental in the consolidation of the street railway, electric light, artificial and natural gas interests under the Philadelphia Company. He was elected vice president of the Philadelphia Company, president of the railways company and Duquesne Light Company. In 1918 he entered the banking business with M. K. McMullin.

An amateur horseman, Mr. Callery possessed many trophies won with his thoroughbreds. He organized the Matinee Club of

Injured Year Ago In Bus Crash, Dies

Injuries suffered a year ago in a bus accident near Jennerstown, Pa., yesterday caused the death of Mrs. Mary Moffitt, 50, in her home at 2918 State street, Versailles Township, according to a coroner's report.

BOY DIES WHEN AUTO UPSETS, DRIVER HURT

Youth Held After Machine Injures 2; Unconscious Man Drives After Ingram Crash

A 9-year-old boy was killed and a youth injured when an automobile overturned yesterday on the Brinton road, near Braddock Park.

Michael Guskich, 9, of 46 Cherry street, Etna, was killed and his cousin, John Glew, 17, of 7706 Lloyd avenue, Swissvale, driver of the car, was taken to Columbia Hospital. Edward Glew, 9, and his brother, Matthew, 7, passengers in the car, were unhurt, police reported. A faulty steering mechanism was blamed for the accident.

Anthony Mange, 15, of 1511 Compromise street, was being held today after, according to police, a car he was driving struck Gilbert Henderson, 9, of 1022 Constance street, and Louis Bracken, 10, of 923 Constance street, in Monetta way, near Spring Garden avenue. Both boys were taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

C. C. Cook, 35, of Florence, Pa., was in a serious condition in South Side Hospital after having driven 15 miles while unconscious, following an accident in which his machine struck a pole, overturned and righted itself, police said. Police traced the car from Ingram, where the accident happened, to Moon Run, and took Cook to the hospital. He could not remember what happened.

READY FOR QUIZ SAYS PARK

An investigation of alleged unethical practices in his office will be welcomed, District Attorney Andrew T. Park announced today. He declared his office was open at all times to investigators.

Park made the announcement when informed the Allegheny County Bar Association would appoint a committee for the inquiry. The charges intimate that cases were referred through Park's office to partners or office neighbors of some of his assistants.

Atoorney Frank C. McGirr, former state and county bar association president, instigated the inquiry. At a closed meeting Friday McGirr moved for appointment of a committee of five to inquire into reports of practices in the Prosecutor's office.

McGirr declared the reports could no longer be ignored except to the discredit of the district attorney, the courts and the bar association.

Auto Skids, Crashes Plate Glass Window

An automobile skidded at Baum boulevard and Negley avenue early today and crashed through a large plate glass window of the Alemite Company. Police said Coleman Lee, 36, of 5238 Station street, was the driver. He was lodged in East End Police Station on a reckless driving charge.

EXPERTS ADOPT NEW 'WAVE'

Machineless Method Of Treating Hair Spreads Here

Pittsburgh women are enthusiastically welcoming introduction of a new machineless permanent wave without electricity. After a week of demonstration in the William Penn Hotel, it will be adopted in two department stores and 20 leading beauty salons, it has been announced.

No more sitting under a heavy machine which bakes the hair at a temperature of more than 400 degrees. No worrying about the use of electric current. No metal heating plugs to pull the hair. The new automatic waving method is the most revolutionary innovation produced since the permanent wave became the vogue, Pittsburgh beauty experts believe.

The hair is wound on a metal rod in the usual manner. Then each curl is placed in a perforated foil-covered pad. A small square of water-dampened white flannel, pressed close to the perforations, causes a chemical reaction producing a mild heat in less than two minutes. An expert operator can complete the operation in less than an hour, it is said.

The new method is especially successful with dyed, bleached, white, or naturally curly hair, it is claimed. It is a grown-up child of the vapor marcel. After eight years of experimenting, the new product was placed on the market less than three months ago. Pittsburgh is the second large city, outside of New York, where demonstrations have taken place.

MISS JESSIE KUEGER MISS ANNA M. WALKER

'ANCIENT MARINER' SOUTH-BOUND

THOMAS O'BRIEN, 70 . . . ROWING ALL HIS EFFECTS DOWN THE OHIO TO N'ORLEANS, SIR!

'Ancient Mariner' Philosopher Rowing Toward New Orleans

Thomas O'Brien, nearing 70, might easily be mistaken for the ancient mariner by his long gray beard and glittering eye—but Thomas has a philosophical tongue as well.

He passed through Pittsburgh yesterday on his way to New Orleans in a "john boat." He said:

"I'm a happy-go-lucky Irishman. I've come, with all my packin's, from Warren, although the papers had me down to Orleans last year. I started from Jamestown, but got caught in the ripples five miles south of Warren. So a few days ago I started from Warren, and I'm bound south."

He was rowing, slowly, surely, with the flat board containing his "packin's" behind. Coffee was heating on the stove; a hot dog was crackling. Tarpaulins covered much of his stuff, including a bed.

MAKES 210 MILES

He added:

"So far, counting last year, I've made 210 miles. I'll be in New Orleans before I'm 70, or maybe in a month."

A friendly fellow halted him with:

"Want a drink?"

He answered:

"No."

The oldtimer on the river banks turned away, and O'Brien parried:

"I thought you meant water. Hurry me the bottle."

IN HIGH SPIRITS

For O'Brien, in high spirits, is on his way to New Orleans, in what the rivermen call a "john boat."

Friendly voices were able to halt him for awhile. He was asked about the depression, and replied:

"I'm the youngest of 16 children. My mother, back in Tipperary, raised them, all strong, too, on less than $1 a day.

"Now, a person can't stand on the street corners, walk in the street, loaf in the highways, nor railroad tracks. But here, on the river, I'm safe as can be. I'm a happy-go-lucky Irishman."

A little griddle, with a wind protector, serves as his stove. Camping equipment, and a staunch rowboat he built himself, completes his outfit.

TRAINED CHAMPIONS

He's wishing for a motor, that it might be easier, but he says:

"I've been a blacksmith and a marine mechanic all my life, since I was 8—and came to Pittsburgh. I've trained famous rowers, world champions. And at 70, I'm a better man than any of you fellows."

Perhaps he is.

O'Brien spent the major part of his life in Pittsburgh, near the river. It's his second trip to New Orleans, he explained:

"The year after the Biddle boys was shot, I paddled down there. Last year I was caught. Now I'm on my way."

'Pin-Seller'

PEGGY FOX, 8

BLANKET DEATH MYSTERY

Dr. J. W. McMeans, coroner's physician, who conducted an autopsy on the body of Donald McNelly, 30, of 327 South Evaline street, was unable to detect poisoning which would have caused McNelly's death, he reported today.

McNelly died early yesterday in the Pittsburgh Hospital. He had been found wrapped in a blanket in his automobile, parked in a field along the River Hill road.

A note left by McNelly pointed to suicide, police reported. The note read:

"When I said goodby last night you couldn't realize what it meant. I will see you in heaven some day.

"Give my watch and ring to Billie."

McNelly was single and lived with his mother, who would tell police nothing except that Billie was a girl McNelly had been seeing frequently.

Helen Stoddart, 30, of 1232 Fourth avenue, New Kensington, who drank poison after writing a note in which she said she was tired of living, died several hours later in the Allegheny Valley Hospital, Tarentum, according to a coroner's report.

Michael Hugo, 78, of 932 Jenny Lind street, McKeesport, former McKeesport policeman and for several years owner of a Clairton hotel, shot and killed himself at his home yesterday afternoon, police reported. Hugo, retired for several years, lived at the home of a niece, Mrs. Mary Geltz.

He leaves a stepson, Luke F. Savage, city engineer of McKeesport, and a daughter, Sister Mary Helen, of the Sisters of Mercy, at St. Xavier's.

Women Republicans' Luncheon Thursday

The Women's Republican Club of Western Pennsylvania will hold a luncheon Thursday noon in the William Penn Hotel with women from Ohio, West Virginia and Western New York as visitors.

Mrs. Gilbert H. Corbin, of Buffalo, and Mrs. Helen Schluarff, of Erie, will be chief speakers. Mrs. Archibald W. Powell is president of the club.

SENATE GROUP TO OPEN PROBE TOMORROW

Ex-Congressman, Listed in Contract to Receive $20 On Each Device, to Attend

Former Congressman John M. Morin has notified State Senator Frank J. Harris, chairman of the Senate committee investigating the voting machine question, that he will be in Harrisburg for the hearing scheduled to start tomorrow morning.

Morin, in contracts released for publication by Attorney O. K. Eaton, representing Attorney H. D. Hirsh, is shown as having an agreement with Hirsh's company, the Electromatic Vote Machine Corporation, by which he was to receive $20 on each machine sold in Pennsylvania.

ATTEND DAIX RITES

Senator Harris and Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., also a member of the committee appointed to investigate voting machine deals, left last night to attend the funeral of Senator Augustus F. Daix, Jr., today at Philadelphia. The other members of the committee are: C. W. Parkinson, Washington and Greene counties; John Howell, Lackawanna County, and Warren Roberts, Northampton County.

What line the investigators will follow has not been revealed. After the hearing in the bankruptcy of the Poole Engineering and Machine Company at Baltimore a week ago disclosed that $169,000 had been paid to C. G. Brown, of 811 City-County building, Senator Harris conferred with Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank and M. C. Conick, chief auditor of Maine & Co., who are auditing the county's fiscal affairs.

Harris then announced that his committee would take action saying:

"We are going to get to the bottom of this voting machine business."

WITNESSES CALLED

Subpenas were then issued for Attorney Hirsh, his brother, F. I. Hirsh, Brown, Louis Abramson, E. N. Rosenthal, Chet Cook, all connected with the Electromatic Company and Charles Pearson, an active figure in independent politics, who is reported to have collected large commissions for the sale of voting machines in Schuylkill and Northumberland counties.

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay is representing the Citizens Voting Machine committee at the hearing. Frank and Conick have been "invited" to attend. It was at first reported they had been subpenaed.

Only a Crooner Can Get Along Without Harmony

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Nobody is gaining by the Democratic promaries except the Republicans.

The Democrats just naturally eliminate one another from the tournament. Mistaking the shadow for the substance they grab the mustard and lose the hot dog.

You cannot get anywhere without harmony. Unless you are a crooner.

The trouble with the Democratic party is the same difficulty we used to have with those old German street corner bands.

Everybody wanted to play louder than the other guy

The result was plenty of noise but no co-operation. Plenty of power but no transmission.

The present scramble is muddled, confused and bewildering. The boys are whipping the mule before he is harnessed to the wagon.

Child Sells $1,000 Pin For Dime to See Movie

A child's desire to take her little friends to a movie after finding a sparkling pin at the home of her uncle, Regis Carr, 306 West General Robinson street, had resulted today in a search by city detectives for the woman who gave the child 10 cents for the diamond-studded bar pin valued by Carr at approximately $1,000.

Peggy Fox, 8, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Fox, of 316 Cremo street, North Side, was playing with two companions in her uncle's home Saturday afternoon when she picked up the pin.

The glitter of its 58 diamonds and four blue sapphires meant anly one thing to Peggy and her friends. They decided to sell it and go to a movie.

They left the Carr home at 3 p. m., and with them went the pin. At the Fort Wayne station, Peggy found a "nice woman" who gave her 10 cents for it, the child related.

What a profitable transaction in Peggy's eyes turned to tragedy when she and her friends later were confronted with the value of the pin and its disappearance.

NO. 133

AN ORDINANCE—Providing for the distribution of food, clothing, fuel and shelter for residents of the City of Pittsburgh without means of support, to be paid out of money received from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania through the Treasurer of Allegheny County, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly which became a law December 28, 1931, P. L. 1503, commonly known as the Talbot act, and providing for the payment thereof.

WHEREAS—The Commissioners of Allegheny County, by resolution duly adopted April 19, 1932, have allocated, through the County Treasurer, the amounts received from the Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, made up of two checks in the amount of $161,153.58 for the month of December, 1931, and $322,307 [illegible] for the month of January, 1932, making a total of $483,460.[illegible] in the following proportions:

[illegible] per cent of [illegible] to the Department of Public Welfare of the City of Pittsburgh, payable to the City Treasurer, and [illegible] per cent of [illegible] to the Directors of the Poor of Allegheny County, payable to their Treasurer, which allocation was approved by the Court of Common Pleas of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, and

WHEREAS—A check in the sum of $241,730.39 has been received by the City Treasurer from the County Treasurer of Allegheny County, and

WHEREAS—By Act of Assembly the said funds now paid into the City Treasury of the City of Pittsburgh are to be used for the purpose of providing food, clothing, fuel and shelter for residents within the district comprising the City of Pittsburgh who are without means of support. Now, therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the said amount set apart to the Department of Public Welfare of the City of Pittsburgh for the purpose of providing food, clothing, fuel and shelter for residents within the City of Pittsburgh who are without means of support, shall not be used for paying cash, commonly called "dole," to persons entitled to relief.

SECTION 2. The said funds shall be used entirely for the relief above specified and no part thereof shall be used for any administration costs, and, further, that distribution of said funds shall be made in the manner now provided for the distribution of the emergency relief fund authorized by Council of the City of Pittsburgh on the 22d day of March, 1932, through the Department of Public Welfare and with the assistance of the Advisory Committee as now functioning in said distribution.

SECTION 3. That the Mayor be and is hereby authorized and directed to issue and the City Controller to countersign warrants approved by the Director of the Department of Public Welfare in amounts used for providing food, clothing, fuel and shelter for residents of the City of Pittsburgh who are without means of support, but that the same shall not be paid in cash, commonly called "dole," to said residents of the City of Pittsburgh, the same to be chargeable to and payable from Code Account SPECIAL AND TRUST FUND TALBOT RELIEF ALLOTMENT.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part of ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

Passed in Council May 2, 1932.
Approved May 7, 1932.
CHARLES H. KLINE, Mayor.

NO. 134

AN ORDINANCE—Providing for the completion of unemployment relief projects by the construction of sewers with city forces or with forces otherwise provided, and providing additional sums for the payment of the costs thereof.

WHEREAS—Ordinance No. 583, approved December 2, 1931, authorized and directed the Director of the Department of Public Works to carry out certain unemployment projects by the construction of sewers, etc., and set aside and appropriated certain amounts for each particular project, which amounts are found insufficient to complete work on certain projects, namely: Roanoke Street Sewer, Private Property of the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. opposite Twenty-fourth Street Sewer and Norwich Avenue Sewer.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Director of the Department of Public Works be and he is hereby authorized and directed to complete unemployment relief projects by the construction of sewers with city forces or with forces otherwise provided.

SECTION 2. That the Director of the Department of Public Works be and he is hereby authorized and directed to requisition the purchase of supplies and materials by the Director of the Department of Supplies, to rent or purchase tools, plant, motor trucks and equipment; to employ labor for supervision, skilled or common labor, and to pay engineering expenses, all as may be necessary for the proper performance of said work.

SECTION 3. That for the payment of the costs thereof, the following additional sum amounting in the aggregate to two thousand fifty dollars ($2,050.00), or so much thereof as may be necessary, are hereby set apart and appropriated from Code Accounts set after the respective projects, and the Mayor and the City Controller are hereby authorized and directed to respectively issue and countersign warrants drawn on said funds for the payment of the costs thereof.

Project, Roanoke St. Sewer, amount $750.00, from Code Account, Bond Fund No. 295, Peoples Bond Issue 1928.

Project, Norwich Ave. Sewer, amount $300.00, from Code Account, Bond Fund No. 295, Peoples Bond Issue 1928.

Project, Private Property of Penna. R. R. Co. opposite 24th St. Sewer, amount $1,000.00, from Code Account, Bond Fund No. 295, Peoples Bond Issue 1928.

NO. 140

AN ORDINANCE — Widening Carson street West in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Corliss street to the dividing line between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of McKees Rocks at Chartiers Creek and providing that the costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That Carson street West in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Corliss street to the dividing line between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of McKees Rocks at Chartiers Creek be and the same is hereby widened to a variable width so that the street as widened shall lie between the following described lines, to wit:

THE NORTHERLY line shall coincide with the present northerly line of Carson street West.

THE SOUTHERLY line shall begin on the westerly line of Corliss street as opened by Ordinance No. 299, approved July 14, 1913, at the point of tangent on the same, described in the above mentioned ordinance as being opposite station 0+39.77 on the easterly 4 foot running line, thence extending westwardly, perpendicular to the westerly line of Corliss street, 6 feet to a point, tangency to the following described arc at said last mentioned point being parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 6 feet west of the westerly line of Corliss street; thence northwardly and westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 22.65 feet and a central angle of 95 degrees 06 minutes 50 seconds for an arc distance of 37.60 feet to a point of reverse curve; thence westwardly, parallel to and at a radial distance of 5 feet south of the present southerly line of Carson street West, by the arc of a circle deflecting to the right with a radius of 1920.88 feet and a central angle of 3 degrees 06 minutes for an arc distance of 131.81 feet to a point of tangent, said point of tangent being perpendicularly opposite to and 10 feet south of the point of tangent on the southerly 5 foot running line of Carson street West at station 24+95.48 on the same as described in Ordinance No. 512, approved February 16, 1911; thence westwardly parallel to and at a perpendicular or radial distance of 5 feet south of the present southerly line of Carson street West, to the dividing line between property now or late of Frank McNamara and property of the Ohio Connecting Railway Company, said dividing line being at or about station 34+62.5 on the above mentioned southerly 5 foot running line of Carson street West as described in the above mentioned ordinance; thence westwardly by a straight line 61 feet more or less to the present southerly line of Carson street West at a point perpendicular opposite and 5 feet south of the said southerly 5 foot running line of Carson street West at station 35+23.21 on the same, thence northerly, perpendicular to the said southerly 5 foot running line 3 feet to a point, thence westwardly coinciding with the present southerly line of Carson street West and parallel to and at a perpendicular distance of 2 feet south of the said southerly 5 foot running line of Carson street West to a point of curve perpendicularly opposite station 56+60.81 on the said southerly 5 foot running line, thence westwardly by the arc of a circle deflecting to the left with a radius of 795 feet and a central angle of 4 degrees 16 minutes 45 seconds for an arc distance of 59.35 feet to a point, thence southwardly by the radial line to said arc 1.14 feet to a point; thence westwardly by a straight line to a point perpendicularly opposite and 10 feet south of the point of tangent on the said southerly 5 foot running line of Carson street West at station 58+28.38 on the same, thence westwardly parallel to and at a perpendicular or radial distance of 5 feet south of the present southerly line of Carson street West to the dividing line between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of McKees Rocks at Chartiers Creek.

SECTION 2. The Department of Public Works is hereby authorized and directed to cause said Carson street West in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh from Corliss street to the dividing line between the City of Pittsburgh and the Borough of McKees Rocks at Chartiers Creek to be widened in conformity with the provisions of Section 1 of this ordinance.

SECTION 3. The costs, damages and expenses occasioned thereby and the benefits to pay the same shall be assessed against and collected from properties benefited thereby in accordance with the provisions of the Acts of Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania relating thereto and regulating the same.

SECTION 4. That any ordinance or part or ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed so far as the same affects this ordinance.

DISTRICT PAYS TRIBUTE TO MOTHERS

Churches Lead Celebration, Patriotic Group, Scouts Hold Special Exercises

Tribute was paid to mothers throughout the world in special services in local churches yesterday. In virtually every church in the county mothers were lauded in sermons and services.

More than 700 men from 34 congregations of the American Lutheran Church attended afternoon and evening sessions of a Mothers' Day conference of the Ohio Valley Men's Missionary Association in William Penn Hotel. C. Hale Sipe, of Butler, described the early history of the Lutheran church in the state. He declared that this state was settled by Swedish Lutherans long before William Penn was born.

More than 250 persons attended the annual Mothers' Day breakfast in the downtown branch of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday morning. The speaker was the Rev. Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan, pastor of the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church.

A tree planting ceremony was held in Dormont Park yesterday in honor of Mothers' Day and also the two hundredth anniversary of George Washington. The ceremony was held by St. Clair Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution, and Boy Scout Troop No. 23, of Dormont. G. F. McEwen, past president of St. Clair Chapter, planted the tree. He was aided by Edward McKee Golden, past president of the chapter, and scout leaders.

Mrs. Hearst Broadcasts Mothers' Day Speech

NEW YORK, May 9.—(Universal.)—The weather man blocked New York's plans for an outdoor celebration of Mothers' Day in Central Park by ordering rain for the day, so that the ceremonies, to be held in the park mall, had to be postponed until next Sunday at 1:30 p. m., when Mayor Walker will be the principal speaker.

However, numerous organizations throughout the city celebrated the day by festivities and radio speeches.

Among the Mothers' Day speakers was Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, who spoke from Station WINS in one of her infrequent microphone appearances. She said:

"This is Mothers' Day and so is every other day.

"We all remember when we were children that every day was mother's day, and that no day passed without her love being lavished upon us, and without her care at all hours for our health and our welfare and our happiness.

"Make every day mother's day while she is alive. And when she is gone make every day mother's day by cherishing her memory, and endeavoring to live up to the high ideals she held of—and for—you."

Mrs. Hearst is the mother of five boys and "mother" to thousands of others through the charity organizations with which she is connected.

FOUR-ALARM BATTLE

FIREMEN RUNNING HOSE LINES TO FLAMES ON NORTH SIDE

DEDICATE PARTY TO MOTHERS

Five hundred officers in the Blue Shirt Army of America heard their leader, the Rev. James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church, reiterate that he would be a candidate for president at a meeting yesterday in the church. The party was formally dedicated to the mothers of America, and "Mother Machree" was selected as the campaign song. Father Cox's mother died last week.

The meeting was held to discuss plans for organization of additional army units. Father Cox said:

"To settle for once and all any doubts about my being a presidential candidate, I want you all to know I am serious about this matter."

The Blue Shirts plan to hold their convention in St. Louis in August, with 1,000,000 men and women present.

Man Killed in Fight, Murder Trial Opens

Charged with murder, Anthony DePitro, 32, of Clark street, was to go on trial today in Criminal Court. He is held in connection with the death of William Trzyburski, alias Burko, 34, of 1611 Fifth avenue, found dead in the rear of 1222 Clark street, last February 20. Trzyburski suffered a broken neck during a fight, it is alleged.

NORTH SIDE FIRE OVERCOMES SEVEN

Four-Alarm Blaze Sweeps Furniture Building; Nine Families Routed by Smoke

Several firemen were overcome by smoke while their comrades donned gas masks to battle a four-alarm fire which swept through the Harris Furniture Company store at 413-415 East Ohio street early today, imperiling an entire city block.

The flames were confined to the upper floors of the three-story building. Smoke damaged the Dyms clothing store and the Monus millinery shop at 409 and 411 East Ohio street.

The damage was estimated at $25,000 by Fire Chief Richard L. Smith, who said the origin of the fire was undetermined. Earlier in the evening firemen were called to the furniture store to extinguish a $10 blaze caused when lightning struck a fuse box.

AUTOIST ARRESTED

While Engine Company No. 38 was responding to the alarm, an automobile impeded its progress at Anderson and Canal streets. Police arrested William Keppel, of 2200 Spring street, Mt. Oliver, who, they said, was driver of the machine. He was charged with reckless driving.

Nine occupants of apartments at 409 and 411 East Ohio street were routed from their homes by the fire and smoke. They were Charles Berger, his two sons, Norman and Arthur; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Baer and son, of 409 East Ohio street, and Allen Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Merrel Fair, of 411 East Ohio street.

FIREMEN PERILED

The lives of several firemen were imperiled when a cornice on the Harris building collapsed, showering firemen on a ladder with burning embers. None of the firemen was injured.

All of the firemen overcome by smoke were quickly revived and returned to duty.

The bomb and arson squad of the city detective bureau was investigaing the fire.

East End Woman Dies Watching Fire

Mrs. Angela Gravante, 64, of 45 Carver street, fell dead late last night while watching a fire sweep through the home of a relative at 50 Carver street, East End, according to a morgue report. Originating in the home of Mrs. Rose Gravante, the flames spread to the shop of Lorenzo Schilio, at 319 Larimer avenue, and the Carver Pharmacy, at 321 Larimer avenue, causing estimated damage of $6,000.

Don't wash out ELASTICITY* if you want stockings to wear and fit

It's surprising that stockings wear at all—the way some girls wash them!

For careless washing can destroy the very secret of stocking life—ELASTICITY. That's the "live" quality that makes stockings give, instead of break, under strain—stretch and spring back into shape.

Lux is made to preserve this precious elasticity. That's why stockings washed the Lux way keep their flattering fit—give so much longer WEAR.

The Lux Way to preserve* ELASTICITY

Wash after EACH wearing. Perspiration left in stockings or lingerie will actually rot the silk.

Don't rub with cake soap. It destroys the elasticity of the silk. With Lux there is no rubbing.

Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades colors. Lux has no harmful alkali—if it's safe in water it's safe in Lux.

Wash this 2-minute way!

1. One teaspoon of Lux diamonds for each pair. 2. Add lukewarm water to Lux, squeeze through stockings, rinse.

WORLD LEADERS GATHER FOR OIL MEET

Conference Will Deal With Problems With or Without Co-operation of Russians

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP.)—Whether or not the Russian oil executives now in America attend the world oil conference this week, other oil leaders now converging on New York will attempt to deal with the international situation, Russell Palmer, editor of World Petroleum, [illegible] this magazine.

Mr. Palmer [illegible] meetings [illegible] will take [illegible] May 12 here. If there [illegible] be a [illegible] of a common [illegible] ing basis [illegible] be [illegible] conference [illegible] Russians.

But regardless of whether such a conference is arranged, the other oil executives expect to go ahead with [illegible] looking to possible [illegible] of production in fields outside the United States. The emergency exchange requirements being enforced in various countries are expected also to be discussed.

RUSSIANS INVITED

The Russian executives are Phillip Rabinovich, member of the Russian Commissariat of Foreign Trade; K. Rabovol, chairman of the Russian oil combine, and R. N. Pridman, vice chairman of Russian Oil Products, Ltd. They arrived here May 3. Mr. Palmer says:

"They came at the suggestion of C. E. Arnott, president of Socony-Vacuum. It may be assumed that they were invited because Mr. Arnott believed there was a possibility of arriving at a reasonable agreement on the Russian problem, but that still remains to be demonstrated.

"There will be a general meeting about May 12 of a number of the leading men in the international oil industry. This will include among others Robert Irving Watson, managing director of the Burmah Oil Company, Ltd., and director of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, Ltd., and Shell Transport and trading; William Frazer, C. B. E., deputy chairman of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, Ltd., and director of the Iraq Petroleum Company, and J. B. Aug. Kessler, joint managing director of the Royal Dutch. It is understood the principal American companies trading abroad such as Texas, Sinclair, etc., will be represented.

CHARY OF POLITICS

"The real point at issue is whether there will be a conference which will include the Russians. This will be decided after the arrival of the Europeans in the next few days and will depend upon the success of Mr. Arnott's negotiations with the Russians.

"If the Russians make the slightest effort to capitalize the situation politically, or if they claim an allotment of markets or quotas which cannot be realized, the conference will fail, but if they approach the subject from a commercial and economic viewpoint in a reasonable frame of mind there is some hope of alleviating matters."

COPPER MARKET DULL, LOWER

NEW YORK, May 9.—Copper remained dull throughout the week, although an easier [illegible] tone developed as metal became available through a custom smelter source at 5¼ cents, while others adhered to a nominal quotation of 5½ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley. Moderate foreign buying tapered off when London and the domestic price eased without a corresponding decline in the export quotation. Home consumers remained indifferent.

Tin advanced sharply when cabled reports were received indicating that the international tin committee proposed to reduce member production to a basis of 40 per cent with additional drastic summer curtailment.

Moderate buying of lead continued at steady prices, although demand tapered off toward the close. With sellers well booked there was no pressure to sell.

Zinc eased further as consumers restricted interest to carload lots. April statistics revealed that despite decreased production stocks increased as a result of smaller shipments.

Antimony remained dull with the price nominally lower under further easing of Chinese offerings.

Railroad Income Less for Quarter

NEW YORK, May 9—Class 1 railroads of the United States for the first three months of 1932 had a net railway operating income of $66,028,475, which was at the annual rate of return of 1.28 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics and made public today. In the first three months of 1931 their net railway operating income was $108,532,156 or 2.10 per cent on their property investment.

Listed Stocks of Gold Mining Companies Close To Bull Market Highs

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange can boast of at least one group of stocks whose current prices compare favorably with their highs for 1929. This is due to the fact that there is one commodity which increases in value during a period of general deflation. That commodity is gold.

Study of the records of four of the outstanding listed and dividend paying stocks of companies in the gold mining industry shows that two are now selling for greater prices than their peaks in 1929. One is slightly lower than its 1929 high while the fourth is substantially below its bull market peak. All are higher than their 1929 lows.

Alaska Juneau, currently selling at about 11¼, compares with a 1929 high of 10¼. Dome Mines at 9½ is slightly below its bull market high of 11¼. Homestake Mining at 124 is well above its 1929 high of 93 while McIntyre Porcupine at 14 is under its bull market high of 23½.

* * *

Gold Runs Counter To General Industry

THE EXPLANATION for this strength in the gold stocks is not hard to find. These companies benefit, rather than suffer from adverse general business conditions. There is always a market for their product. In a period of deflation the costs of operation tend to decline. On the other hand the price of gold does not fluctuate in terms of money except in the event of the abandonment of the gold standard by the country where operations are located and in that case the price advances. In other words the income of a producer of gold does not fluctuate in terms of money but it will buy more in terms of commodities when business is bad. On the other hand the producer of gold does not benefit from the boom periods of business as do other industries.

It should not be assumed from this theoretical analysis that the gold mining industry is fool proof. Individual companies have troubles of their own. It is quite probable that much more money has been lost in both fraudulent and legitimate promotion of gold mines than has been taken out of the industry in profits. Bearing the risks of individual companies in mind as well as the depression-proof state of the industry it would seem perfectly logical for a business man, part of whose funds are in semi-speculative investments, to include the listed stock of a gold company of established earning power in his portfolio. The newly promoted companies of untested earnings are, of course, dangerous and should be avoided by all except those with an intimate knowledge of the industry.

* * *

Question of Depletion Must Be Considered

MOST GOLD mining companies do not follow systems of accounting common to industry in general. Many companies make no provision for depreciation of equipment or depletion of mineral resources. Some establish reserves for depreciation, but make no deduction from earnings to cover depletion. One company, Homestake, which does set up reserves for both these items, pays dividends out of its depletion reserve from time to time.

The ultimate result of such policies is obvious. Eventually most gold mining companies will use up their existing ore reserves, will have no cash to buy new mines, and will go out of business. The owner of a gold stock should bear this in mind and should plan to reinvest part of his earnings so that his capital will not be destroyed when the end of the ore reserve is reached.

AWNING MAKER HAS RECORD OF GROWTH

Firm in Business Here for 67 Years; Now Managed By Grandson of Founder

From the production of scarcely one awning a day 67 years ago to an average of 3,700 a week, is the remarkable story of progress related today by John J. Mamaux, president and third generation member of one of Pittsburgh's oldest business institutions, Mamaux & Son, 120 Boulevard of the Allies. He said:

"My grandfather, Eugene Mamaux, who started the awning business on Penn avenue in 1865 with 100 square feet of store space, probably never dreamed a machine could sew on 25 awning rings in the time it used to take to sew one by hand. Nor that his company would ever receive orders from as far away as Utah."

MACHINES ADDED

During the last nine months several machines have been installed which have speeded up production to the point of completing an entire 20-foot awning, containing 35 running yards of material, in 20 minutes, a foot a minute, Mr. Mamaux said.

Five new braiding and scalloping machines, each capable of binding 1,000 yards of awning a day, have replaced the former dual operation of first basting or stitching, then sewing 150 yards a day.

The presence of six double-needle machines capable of sewing 700 yards of double seams to every 100 yards of single seams of the 30 single needle machines in the plant, gives some idea of the tremendous production capacity of Pittsburgh's best known awning company.

Eugene Mamaux introduced the first extension or buggy-top awning in Pittsburgh, his grandson said. Hugus & Hackie, drygoods house on the corner of Fifth avenue and Market street, boasted the first buggy top awning in front of their shop. The original Mamaux later introduced the spring roll type, like a window shade, which was replaced by the present lateral arm crank type today, John Mamaux said.

ADDS COURSE IN ACCOUNTING

Pittsburgh School of Accountancy, in response to its advanced students' urgent request, is instituting an additional year of accountancy training.

The senior year, which will be composed of accounting entirely, will take up a detailed study of the accounting systems of various industries between 10 and 15 in number. Thirty-two weeks will be spent in examining into these interesting variations; the first three years' work will be a prerequisite since the new course will be of such an advanced nature.

As the preparation is now planned textbook work will be minimized, since practicality will be stressed by the certified public accountant who will supervise the group. Additional material will be supplied from time to time, based upon actual forms and methods employed by local members of these chosen key industries: department stores, cotton mills, gray iron foundries, flour mills, land development companies, cement mills, timber logging and sawmill companies, coal mines, oil companies, stock brokers, building and loan association, fire and life insurance companies, commercial banks and trust companies.

By means of the novel application described it is hoped to give Pittsburgh School of Accountancy students an even more practical understanding of accounting.

WHOLE LEAGUES OUTLIVED BY RABBIT

THE FIRST VISIT of the Boston Braves to Pittsburgh this year shows the perennial Rabbit Maranville reeling off another chapter in baseball's outstanding story of player durability. League presidents, club owners, managers and players come and go, but Maranville stays right in the picture. As a marvel of age and endurance there is none to compare with him. There are older men in the big leagues, and a couple that broke into the majors earlier. But the latter did not stay up there continuously. Anyhow, they're all pitchers, who work only occasionally, while the Rabbit has been toiling every day, year after year, and until this season, in the game's toughest position at shortstop.

Rabbit Maranville

Bill McKechnie has lightened Maranville's burden a little this year by moving him to second base, where the little fellow also played one season for the Pirates in 1924, but to be a regular even there after his amazingly long service makes the Rabbit still the standout of baseball. And, to boot, until last Saturday, he was leading off in the batting order, where they don't put a fellow who can't move around.

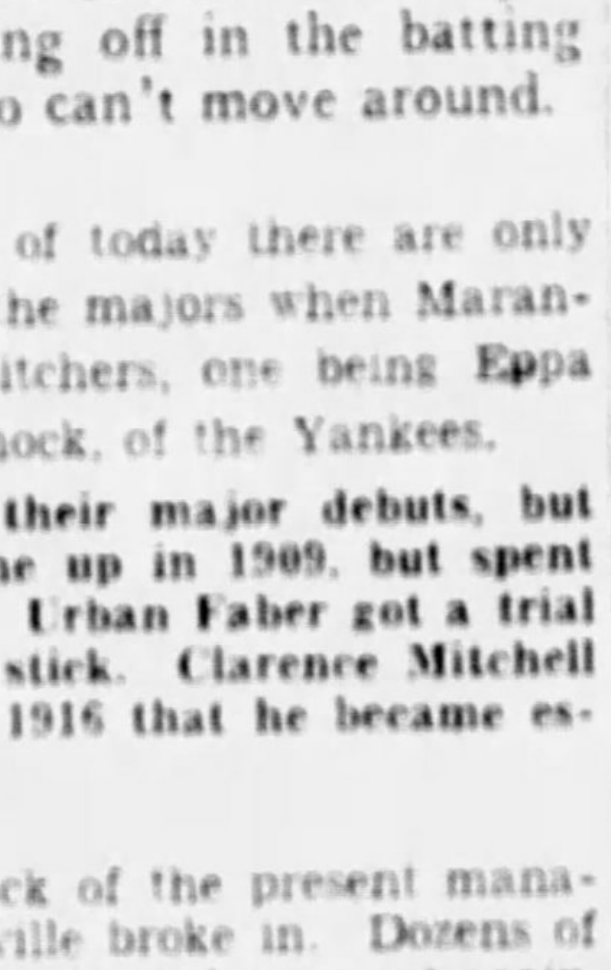
ON THE ENTIRE major league rosters of today there are only two men still in active service who were in the majors when Maranville made his entry in 1912. Both are pitchers, one being Eppa Rixey, of the Reds, and the other Herb Pennock, of the Yankees.

Three others antedated Maranville in their major debuts, but didn't stay right through. Jack Quinn came up in 1909, but spent seven years in the minors in the meantime. Urban Faber got a trial in 1910, but didn't come back until 1914 to stick. Clarence Mitchell made his bow in 1911, but it was not until 1916 that he became established as a big leaguer.

ONLY JOHN M'GRAW and Connie Mack of the present managerial list were directing clubs when Maranville broke in. Dozens of other pilots and hundreds of players have come in and gone out again, but the Rabbit lingers on, his major career interrupted only by a stay in Rochester in 1927.

He has played on five National League clubs, with two Boston engagements, and he has worked under eight different managers, serving under McKechnie three times in as many cities. Nearing his fortieth milestone, he's still out there, seemingly as good as ever in his twenty-first major league season. Baseball has never known his equal.

THAT OUTSIDE DOPE on any horse race amounts to only the wildest kind of guesswork was never more clearly shown than in the victory of Burgoo King in the Kentucky Derby Saturday, with the favorite, Tick On, far back in sixth place. Col. E. R. Bradley, the first owner ever to win the Blue Grass classic three times, had a second horse, Brother Joe, in Saturday's race, and thought so little of Burgo King's chances that he wagered on Brother Joe in the future books. The famous jockey, Laverne Fator, Bradley's leading rider, had been originally scheduled to ride Burgoo King, but couldn't see him as a possible winner after a series of workouts, and when finally given his choice of mounts he chose Brother Joe. If the owner and the jockey can't pick the better horse out of two, you can see what chance you have hundreds of miles away trying to pick the best out of 20.



Lew Fonseca

IN SPITE OF his record-breaking trading activities in swapping 11 players for eight in less than four months, Manager Lew Fonseca has not improved the work or the position of the White Sox. And it is not hard to find the reason. The trading has had a harmful effect on the players who remain.

Instead of spurring the White Sox to redoubled effort through fear of further trades, the swapping operations apear to have crushed the players' spirit. They don't know where they're going, but most of them feel that they're on their way. Even the topliners on the club are not immune from worry.

EVERY TIME THE Sox hear the telephone ring in their hotel they bid each other good-bye. Each morning at breakfast they greet one another with "Well, I'm glad to see you're still with us."

It's a condition not calculated to win many ball games. The Pale Hose have lost 15 of their last 17 contests.

IN A LETTER from Chicago, James (Red) Mason writes that Ray Alvis wanted him to accompany Tony Herrera to Pittsburgh for the bout with Lew Massey tonight, but that on account of the illness of his sister he could not do so. "I read that Jim McGirr may take a club in Steubenville and also that there is a chance of his running shows at Forbes Field," Mason adds. "They will make no mistake in letting McGirr run things at both places, as I think he is one of the best matchmakers around Pittsburgh in years. McGirr started my boxers and gave me many opportunities when others around there would not do so. It was McGirr who really started Cuddy DeMarco and others who come fast after being given that chance by him."

EXPLAINING WHY, ASIDE from the fact that the distance is greater, he finds the half-mile harder to run than the quarter, Ben Eastman says there is a mental side to running that affects the runner a bit. He forgets this, once he starts running, and it doesn't come back before the race is over when the route is only 440 yards.

But at 880 it comes back before the finish, and that's why Ben is always more tired after a half than a quarter. The longer distance has nothing to do with it. He likes the 440 the better because he has run it more and feels more at home in it. Whether he runs both the quarter and the half, or only one of those events in the Olympic tryouts, is entirely up to Coach Dink Templeton, he says.

BOXING FANS IN California are deadlocked on the question as to which of two cocky fighters deserves the decision for having the greater amount of self-confidence. The two are Max Baer and Ace Hudkins. Conservative followers are inclined to call it a draw.

Passing a group gathered around the dressing room gate just before his recent bout with Swiderski, Baer tossed an airy wave and said: "Just a workout." When Max came out after winning, Hudkins said to the matchmaker: "Get that fellow for me. I can knock him out easily."

Lionel Conacher

PROMOTERS OF PROFESSIONAL box lacrosse, which is now starting its second season and which will be introducer in New York tomorrow night by a couple of Canadian teams, had counted on Lionel Conacher to be their big drawing card, but that all-around athlete and former Pittsburgh hockey player has pulled out of the new game and gone in for wrestling. He seep a great future for box lacrosse, but realizes that he's no longer a youngster, that he couldn't stand the strain of this sport for any great length of time, and that his days in hockey also are numbered. So he has signed a three-year contract to give up lacrosse, hockey, baseball and his other old games to devote his entire attention to wrestling, where he figures the pay is better and a man can go on until he's 50.

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Tony Herrera vs. Lew Massey, 10 rounds; Freddie Fitzgerald vs. Young Rudy, 8 rounds, and Jimmy Dean vs. Eddie Hebner and Ray Winbush vs. Clem Early, 6 rounds each, Motor Square Garden.

Johnny Oakey vs. Al Rossi, 10 rounds, and Freddie Fiducia vs. Karl Lautenschlager, 8 rounds, Newark, N. J.

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

Two of the leading lightweights in the country furnish the main bout at Motor Square Garden tonight in the next to last boxing show of the season in the East End arena.

They are Tony Herrera, of Chicago, Mexican, long a favorite with the local fans, and Lew Massey, of Philadelphia, who has met the best of them, including Champion Tony Canzoneri, in the East, and will be making his Pittsburgh debut.

Lew Massey

Tony Herrera

A corking battle is possible from this pairing, and the contestants have a real incentive to give their best, for the winner, if it is a good fight, will be in line to meet the winner of the Canzoneri-Battling Gizzy match, which will serve as the opening feature at the Meyers Bowl on May 23. Both are hard hitters and a knockout finish would not come in the nature of a surprise.

Young Rudy, of Charleroi, meets Freddie Fitzgerald, Youngstown welterweight, in the eight-round semi-final. Jimmy Dean, of Erie, takes the place of Carlos Herrera brother of Tony, against Eddie Hebner, of Clairton, in the second bout, and Ray Winbush, Negro welterweight, of the Hill, tangles with Clem Early, of East Liverpool, O., in the opener.

Between Rounds

Anson Green, Homestead's Negro middleweight, has been stepping right along. He has won his last three bouts with knockouts in the third round each, over Russell Powers, Billy Flanagan and Jimmy Hogan, and appears well on his way to somewhere. He is managed by Dan Clark, who also handles Steve Senich, Ray Jennings and Paul Menar.

Leon Jendrasiak, southpaw featherweight, is back home in Grand Rapids, Mich., for an operation on his tonsils and a rest to permit a cut eye to heal. His next start likely will be against Orrie Mosher, another southpaw, in his home town.

Lou Terry, St. Louis lightweight, received only $1.87 for his 10-round windup with tough Frankie Bojarski at the Moose Temple last Friday night, aside from the $50 forfeit he extracted when Bojarski came in well overweight, which may account for the fact that he failed to inject much spirit into the battle. The show drew $316.65 with the commission's 5 per cent deducted, and Terry's contract called for 15 per cent of this after the cost of the show was deducted, or $36.87. Out of this came $25 for his manager's license, $5 for Terry's license and $5 for an extra second. Terry has gone back home for a fight at St. Joseph, Mo., tomorrow night. He expects to return here during the summer to demonstrate to the fans that he is a better fighter than he showed in the Moose bout.

Herman Folins, Ambridge lightweight, his injured hand mended, has returned to Newark, N. J., his fighting headquarters, to resume training, and will be ready to box again within a couple of weeks. He plans to return here shortly for a series of battles and wants most of all to meet Battling Gizzy.

SWETONIC MAY FACE TRIBE IN OPENER

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Seeking a haven after their terrible experience in Cincinnati, the Braves are in Pittsburgh for a three-day stay. Bill McKechnie's Tribe resembled a championship outfit before it crossed the mountains, but its stop in Dan Howley's sector had a most disturbing effect on the New Englanders. They dropped four in a row to the Reds and some of the setbacks were accompanied by severe regrets.

Our last-place Pirates, on the other hand, escaped further humiliation yesterday; they enjoyed an open date, which Manager Gibson hopes will freshen them for the jousts with the three remaining eastern foemen.

Eddie Brandt, a source of considerable trouble to the Pirates last season, is likely to annoy Our Boys on Fogarty Knoll this afternoon. Skipper Bill was one of the rival pilots who saved his left-handed sharpshooters for the Buccos last year and little has happened in this connection to change his mind this season. Ervin Brame and Steve Swetonic are ready to fling for the Oaklanders.

SOUTHPAWS BEAT BUCS

Burt Shotton and his Phillies were in Pittsburgh long enough to assign two southpaws against the Pirates and each was able to subdue the home boys. Pittsburgh fans had hoped for a different story when the lefthanders appeared this year, but the battles with the Quakers looks like a bad omen.

The lefthanders, for instance, have Little Lloyd Waner in a nice pickle. Brother Paul is such a good batter he can compete with anybody, but don't let anybody tell you that the average southpaw hitter is just as eager to face the "lefties" as the other type. He's kidding if he says so and his dreams probably will bear out this statement.

The Pirate center fielder is not given to long slumps, but it was noticed last season that the southpaw bothered his stance. He was able to finish the season with a good batting mark, but his speed won him many a handle hit.

Boss Gibson may find a silver lining in the near recovery of Catcher Earl Grace. Bill Brenzel's receiving is not what Gibson expected and the Coast League backstop is a big disappointment on offense. Grace is a good batsman and the pitchers seem to work in a steadier manner when he operates under the bat.

TEAM IN SLUMP

The Freebooters have lost nine of their last 10 games. Only the White Sox and Red Sox have dropped more games, and this American League development has caused no surprise. The two teams mentioned are hardly major league clubs, while it was felt the Pirates would make trouble for everybody. So far they have made most of their own woes.

Walter Maranville and Art Shires are in town with the McKechnie entourage. The Rabbit has switched over to the keystone sack again, a position he featured in 1924. Shires is still riding the bench owing to the painful injuries he suffered early in the season.

Pirates Inaugurate Free Ducat Plan

Beginning today, 25 baseball fans will be admitted free to the Pirates' games at Forbes Field daily, except Saturdays and holidays, as the guests of the the management in conjunction with the Welfare Fund.

The arrangement is for fans in straitened financial circumstances and is designed to give them diversion from their troubles.

Applications for tickets must be made through W. F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the Welfare Fund.

RABBIT, SHIRES TO JOIN SEALS

Rabbit Maranville and Art (The Great) Shires are going to join the Seals!

The colorful-former Pirate star and the Wottaman of the Boston Braves will be in the all-star cast that will perform with the other Trained Seals of the sports department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in their weekly gambol over WCAE Wednesday evening.

Others will include Elmer Layden and Bob Waddell, coaches, respectively, of the Duquesne University and Carnegie Tech football squads, who will speak on the value of spring training in the gridiron sport, now that the local colleges have completed this phase of their work.

Tom Birks will be back with a couple of songs, Miss Marian Salmon will offer a piano selection and there will be other numbers of interest, under the direction of Harry Keck, master of ceremonies, to equal last week's well received program.

The Seals will be on the air again for 25 minutes instead of the former 15 minutes, from 6:50 until 7:15 p. m. Tune in on them and splash in the fun.

Race Driver Dies After Coast Smash

OAKLAND, Cal., May 9.—(AP)—Jimmy Sharp, Los Angeles race driver, died last night from injuries received in the 100-mile motor car race on the "Navy Day" program at the Oakland speedway yesterday.

The race was won by Eddie Triplett, of Belvedere, Cal., 1931 Pacific coast champion. His time was 1:07:25.1.

Sharp hit the top rail on his fifty-seventh lap and driver and car were hurled 30 feet, landing on the opposite side of the track. He suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs and internal injuries.

Reid, Whitehill At Hockey Meeting

Elmer Whitehill and Coach Charley Reid are representing the Pittsburgh Hockey Club at the meeting of the International Hockey League in Syracuse, N. Y., today. Whitehill was delegated to attend the meeting by banking interests which took over the management of the club last winter.

COLTS DEFEAT JOHNNIES, 11-3

Cumberland's Colts, defending champions of the Mid-Atlantic League, broke into the victory column yesterday for the first time as they checked the winning proclivities of the Johnstown Johnnies. The Colts, after losing three in a row to the Flood City entry, won yesterday's tussle, 11 to 3.

Fernandez led Cumberland's attack with three safe hits.

At Huntington, Beckley was unable to hold an early lead and was defeated, 9 to 4. Huntington collected 18 safe swats.

Clarksburg hit hard behind steady hurling by Slaughter and defeated Charleston, 11 to 5.

SOCCER TEAMS PLAY TO TIE

Heidelberg and Shannon Juniors battled to a 1-1 tie in the final of the West Penn Junior soccer cup competition yesterday afternoon. The game was played at Morgan.

In the semi-final contests of the Referee's Charity Cup, Cecil pulled a big surprise by defeating the Shannon Morrys, 1 to 0, and Moon Run qualified for the final round by beating the Shannon Owls, 5 to 1.

City League opening games will hold the interest of sandlot games this evening. Three games are scheduled. Reliance meets Books at Olympia Park, Homewood plays J. L. Thomas at Dean Field and the third game finds the two North Side entries, the North Siders and the Frank Ferris club, tangling at Wilson Avenue Field.

Plenty of action should mark the playing of all three games. Practically all of the clubs have injected new talent into their lineups since the season closed last year.

ROONEYS MEETS CRAWFORDS

Art Rooney and his strong North Siders will be the attraction at Greenlee Field tomorrow evening. Rooney will bring a strong team of sluggers to meet the Crawfords. Jim Rooney, Mike Sebastian and Muggsy Skalanday of Pitt will be in the lineup.

Thursday and Friday the Crawfords will play the House of David team. Thursday a double-header is carded with the first game called at 3:15 p. m. The Books will be played on Saturday evening at Greenlee Field. This array of games will give the Hill district ball fans plenty of real baseball for this week.

HAZELWOOD DEFEATED

In sandlot contests yesterday the Iroquois nine defeated Hazelwood, 4-2; Greenfield downed Jednota, 8-2; Pittsburgh Cardinals nosed out Dormont, 2-1; Snees won over the N. S. Civics, 7-6; Williams trimmed Sonora, 12-6, and Jenkins defeated Coulter, 8-5.

GRID KICKOFF RULE CHANGED

HANOVER, N. H., May 9.—(AP.)—The National Football Rules Committee has revoked the rule allowing the punt as an alternative form of kick-off, it has been announced by E. K. Hall of Dartmouth, chairman of the committee. As a result only the place or drop kick will be allowed for kicking off in games next fall.

It was stated that experiences in spring practice throughout the country showed the rule requiring five men on the defensive team to remain on their own 45-yard line until the ball is kicked, coupled with the use of the place kick or drop kick was enough to allow the kicking team to get down the field before heavy interference could form.

The original change in the code was made last winter in an effort to eliminate mass interference and the "flying wedge" in the kickoff. The change eliminating the punt was made in a mail vote of the rules committee.

Mexican Cup Team Arrives in U. S.

NEW ORLEANS, May 9.—(AP.)—Mexico's Davis Cup team has arrived here to put in four days of intensive practice in preparation for the United States-Mexico matches to be played at the New Orleans Country Club Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The United States team, following victory over Canada at Washington, is expected tomorrow.

ATHENS, May 9.—(AP.)—The Japanese Davis Cup tennis team won the last two singles matches from Greece yesterday to sweep the first round series, 5-0.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, May 9.—(AP.)—Austria advanced to the second round of Davis Cup tennis competition yesterday by beating Czechoslovakia, three matches to two.

BERLIN, May 9.—(AP.)—Germany advanced into the second round of Davis Cup competition yesterday by winning the doubles from India and clinching the series, 3-0.

OSLO, Norway, May 9.—(AP.)—Monaco made a clean sweep of its Davis Cup tennis series with Norway yesterday, winning the final two singles matches.

LOCAL MANAGER TRAINS BOXERS

IRISH KANE AT WORK WITH WILSON ON HEAVY BAG IN GYM WORKOUT

Irish Kane, local manager of boxers and veteran trainer, has a system all his own when it comes to conditioning his proteges for their battles. He goes through the motions with them in the gymnasium every day, as shown above. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

HARD WORKER IS IRISH KANE

One-thirty any afternoon Albert "Irish" Kane, most thorough of the local managers-trainers of boxers, leads his troupe of mittmen out upon the floor of the Lincoln gymnasium in Lincoln avenue for their daily workout prepared himself to work as hard as any of them.

First it's a loosening-up process, shadow-boxing or stretching of arms and legs. Then a session on the light, overhead punching bag that beats a rat-a-tat-tat against the ceiling of the apparatus. Then a couple of them enter the ring after donning headguards and inserting mouthpieces, and to the call of time go through regulation rounds of boxing with Irish calling upon them to try out various punches or styles of maneuvering while his partner, Jimmy Esposito holds the watch. Meanwhile other members of the troupe jump rope or go through other maneuvers to the keeping of the same time. All around them boxers who belong to other managers are going similarly about their work.

DEVELOP PUNCHING

The call of "time" and big gloves are donned and the Kane "stable" lines up some 20 feet from the heavy bag, behind which the perspiring Kane now drapes himself, holding it in position as they take turns coming up to sock it under his direction, his weight added to its resistance.

They are Jack Wilson, the middleweight training for a bout with Buck McTiernan, which will open the season at Hickey Park; Marty Gornick, Whitaker lightweight; Al Becker, the middleweight of Sheraden; Al Van Gura, the lightweight of North Braddock, and Dominick Mancini, 18-year-old lad from Blairsville only three years in this country from Italy who hasn't yet had a professional fight, but has shown a punch as an amateur.

First they come up in order to jab with the left and cross with the right against the heavy bag. They do this several times. Then they jab, cross and hook. Then they jab to the head, hammer the right hard to the vicinity of the body, straighten up and hook the left and follow with the right to the head. All of the primary punches of the sport with the exception of the uppercut, which is practiced in the ring. It is a systematic order that cannot fail to perfect them in the manner of delivering that punches. And all of them strike with plenty of vigor.

FORMER AMATEUR BOXER

Follows some more work on the light bag for a few of them and then they go through a series of calisthenics on a mat designed to strengthen the muscles of the stomach and neck and head. By this time all are in a lather of perspiration and the day's work is done and they hie off to the showers and then dress and go home.

Who is this Irish Kane? Well, he's originally from New York, where he started out as an amateur boxer and had some five fights, after which he continued to hang around gymnasiums and help to condition other boxers. His experience has been long and varied. He has served in many cities including Cleveland, Rochester and Pittsburgh. He has been here almost two years, having come from Cleveland to take charge of Francis Flynn's former gymnasium in Federal street.

Among the boxers with whom Kane has worked have been Jack Bernstein, Billy Wallace, Chubby Brown, Al Norton, Osk Till, Mike Dempsey, Phil Zwick, Phil Verdi, Johnny Datto, Johnny Farr, Charley O'Connell, Willie LaMotte, Rosy Rosales, Frankie Simms, Buck McTiernan, George Panka, Red Uhlan, Davy Abad, Benny Schwartz, Jimmy Thomas, California Joe Lynch, Mike Conroy and Jack DeNeri.

WITH FAMOUS MANAGERS

Managers with whom he has worked include the late Leo P. Flynn, Billy McCartney, Joe Jacobs, Eddie Mead, Sammy Goldman, Tommy McGinty and Tom Walsh. He ought to know his stuff after almost 20 years in the racket.—HARRY KECK

Three-Month Jail Sentence Handed Deacon Litz

DUBOIS, Pa., May 9.—(AP.)—A sentence imposed on A. B. (Deacon) Litz after he pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition laws was suspended in order that he may compete in the Indianapolis automobile race on Memorial Day and in other auto races.

Litz, one of the leading race drivers of the country, was sentenced by Judge A. R. Chase to serve three months in the county jail and fined $400 and costs. The jail sentence was suspended until December.

Jerry Travers Plays Before Crowd Again

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., May 9.—(AP.)—Forty-four-year-old Jerome D. Travers played golf before a gallery for the first time in 12 years yesterday, toured the Ridgewood Country Club course in 80 strokes, and, partnered by Bill Weekie of Upper Montclair, defeated Max Kaesche and Ernest F. Thomas of the home club 6 and 4 in an exhibition foursome.

DERBY WINNER SETS MARKS

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Monarch of the 3-year-olds today, Burgoo King will lose no time defending the thoroughbred crown won in a sensational victory in the Kentucky Derby.

The newest champion of the famous racing establishment of Col. Edward Riley Bradley, of Lexington, Ky., probably will go to the post this Saturday in the rich Preakness at Pimlico, Md., against most of the eastern colts beaten so soundly Saturday by the son of Bubbling Over.

Two records were smashed and a third equaled by Burgoo King's triumph in the fifty-eighth running of the Derby, which carried a gross value of $62,875 and added $52,350 to the Bradley coffers.

It marked Col. Bradley's third victory, thereby breaking the deadlock he shared with three other owner. Likewise it gave his trainer, H. J. (Dick) Thompson, the distinction of saddling a third winner, for another record. Bradley entries ran one-two in 1921 with Behave Yourself-Black Servant and again in 1926 with Bubbling Over and Bagenbaggage.

Having proved the best of the lot at Churchill Downs, Burgoo King will go to the post a favorite in the Preakness, but it may prove another wide-open race.

12,000,000 PEOPLE OVERLOOKED THIS "BELIEVE IT OR NOT!"

This item was missed by 12,000,000 people as a "Believe It or Not" for Ripley—until he found it himself! Perhaps you know of a similar, well-known situation in everyday life.

Ripley's national "Believe It Or Not" contest has taken the reading area of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by storm. Readers of this newspaper have jumped into this fascinating game with an enthusiasm never before known in a newspaper contest. While every "Believe It Or Not" submitted will not win a prize it is more than probable that all of them will eventually be used in Ripley's internationally famous cartoon feature. Don't hesitate! If you know an "unbelievable truth" send it in today. It may win one of the grand prizes listed on this page and "believe it or not" they are all GRAND prizes.

The prize list in the national "Believe It Or Not" contest is raising a lot of questions in the minds of readers.

Contestants will be pleased to know that winners of the grand prizes will pick their own prizes in the following fashion.

GETS CHOICE

The winner of the national contest gets his (or her) choice of all the nine prizes, the second prize winner will have his or her choice of the remaining eight, and so on until all the prizes have been awarded.

To help Ripley out the Sun-Telegraph is offering 10 daily prizes for the best "Believe-It-Or-Nots" sent us each day until May 16. These are copies of Ripley's "Believe-It-Or-Not" book which retails at $2.00. The contributions that win these daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for amazing grand prizes which are listed in another column.

Winners of daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the grand prizes. Rip will pick his grand prize winners from the daily victors.

You will find today's prize winners in another column of this page.

CLOSES MAY 16

You may have incredibilities from your private stock that beat anything Ripley has yet printed. But hustle and send them in so that they can be considered for the daily awards which will be continued until May 16. Send one in today. If you get a better one later you may enter that too. The more the merrier.

Write legibly on one side of the paper only and add any explanation or proof necessary to make it believable. It must be true to win an award. Just address it to the "Believe It Or Not Editor" of the Sun-Telegraph.

Contest Rules

1. You may submit as many "Believe It or Nots" as you wish. You do not have to submit any drawings or sketches. Write legibly on one side of the paper. Have your name and address on each sheet of paper if you send in more than one. Each entry must contain the explanation or proof of its truth. The Sun-Telegraph will not be responsible for the return of entries.

2. Contributions will be judged daily for the local prizes. No contribution will be considered which is mailed after midnight, May 16.

3. The contestant agrees to accept the judgment of the Sun-Telegraph in the awarding of the daily prizes. Only contributions winning daily prizes will be forwarded to Mr. Ripley to compete for the grand prize. The contestant agrees to accept Mr. Ripley's judgment on the grand prize winners as final. Nine grand prize winners will be named in the order of the merit of his or her contribution. The first prize winner will have first choice of the nine grand prizes, the second prize winner will have his choice of the remaining eight prizes, and so on, until the grand prizes are all taken.

4. In case of ties the same prizes

Greater Enthusiasm Never Shown in Prize Event

will be awarded to all tying contestants.

5. You do not have to buy the Sun-Telegraph to compete in this contest. Files of the Sun-Telegraph may be found at the public library or at the office of the Sun-Telegraph, where the drawings of Mr. Ripley and the instructions of the contest may be consulted.

The Prizes

CUBS TIGHTEN GRIP IN TOP POSITION

Associated Press

Burleigh Grimes, whose name is synonymous with baseball courage, is back in harness again and the Chicago Cubs, tough enough without him, are just that much more formidable.

An attack of influenza laid low the veteran right hander just as the 1932 campaign opened, but he came back yesterday to survive a three-run attack by the Brooklyn Dodgers in the first inning and finally beat them, 12-5.

CUBS BEAT ROBINS

Max Carey's hopefuls, with Hack Wilson still out of the lineup, pounded Grimes for six hits and four runs in the first two innings. After that they nudged the veteran for only six more safeties and could not score again until the ninth when the Cubs already held a 12-4 lead. Dazzy Vance, usually extremely effective against the Cubs, had one man out in the third inning when he lost control, walked three men in a row and was unceremoniously yanked.

This victory stretched Chicago's advantage in the National League to three full games as the Boston Braves lost their fourth straight to the Cincinnati Reds, 6-5.

The New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals split a double bill. The Giants won the opener, 4-1, as Carl Hubbell allowed only six hits, and the Cardinals the nightcap, 6-5, as the eccentric Dizzy Dean went the route for the champions.

NATS TRIM CHISOX

The Washington Senators maintained their lead in the American League race by nosing out the Chicago Whitesox, 6-5, in 14 innings. Moe Berg's single drove home the winning run much to the annoyance of Ted Lyons who traveled the full route for the White Sox. Walter Johnson called on four pitchers, Marberry, Burke, Fischer and Ragland in that order.

Cleveland walloped the Philadelphia Athletics again, 8-5, and the Boston Red Sox broke an eight-game losing streak at the St. Louis Browns' expense, 7-5.

Mat Burn Proves Fatal to Wrestler

BOSTON, May 9.—(INS.)—A slight mat burn received on his left knee during a wrestling bout last January and which later became infected today resulted in death to Dimitri Demetroff, 37-year-old popular Russian wrestler.

Demetroff died at Hart Hospital, Roxbury. His left leg had been amputated three weeks ago in an effort to save his life. He rallied for a time, but blood poisoning had set in and this together with the shock of amputation resulted in death to the wrestler.

COLIMA KNOCKED OUT

MEXICO CITY, May 9.—(INS.)—Luis Arizona, Mexico City ring idol, knocked out Bert Colima, California veteran, in 36 seconds after their scheduled 10-round bout opened here last night. A hard left hook to the body and a right to the jaw brought the kayo.

BRULETTE VICTOR

PARIS, May 9.—(AP.)—H. L. Birkin's Brulette won the featured Prix Du Cadran, a two and a half mile jaunt for four and five-year-olds, at Longchamps yesterday. Bruledur was second and Romarin third.

PRO-AMATEUR PLAY CARDED AT SHANNOPIN

By TOM BIRKS

The first big competitive golf tournament of the season is carded for this afternoon at the Shannopin Country Club course, at Ben Avon. It will be an 18-hole medal play affair, four-ball, best-ball, and is arranged by the Tri-State Professional Golfers' Association.

It is deemed a pro-amateur tourney seeing that all of the professionals will be playing with an amateur from their home club. Charlie Manning, of the home club, reports the course in fine shape.

This type of tourney, bringing out some of the best amateurs in the district, partnered with the home pro, is fast becoming the popular type of tourney.

LUTHER REAL STAR

Yesterday Pittsburgh newspaper men had an opportunity to become acquainted with Valley Heights and the hospitality of Ted Luther, the new professional, formerly of Corry, Pa. Luther outdid himself to make the members of the fourth estate at home. There is something about his golfing skill that commands admiration, and the finish of an 18-hole round leaves the impression that Luther is going places in the competitive end of the game.

The members of the Valley Heights Club are keenly interested in their young professional, and he appears to be doing his best to put the Oakmont club in the limelight. He will be teamed with H. D. Carey at Shannopin this afternoon.

WOMEN TEAMS SET

No competitive golf is listed for tomorrow, but Wednesday will find the Women's League, Sections I and II, getting under way. At Stanton Heights Section I teams will clash, while Section II will do its playing at St. Clair.

The Penn State varsity will be on display at West Point, where the State College boys clash with the Army niblick wielders.

A review of the club matches of Saturday and yesterday would indicate that it was the greatest opening day golf has experienced in this district for many years. Hospitality day at Shannopin brought out a record field; Chartiers Heights entertained St. Clair and Keystone Club members and Valley Heights put on a red and blue match.

Niblick Shots

The Greensburg Country Club will be the site of the annual Westmoreland County amateur championship June 25 and 26. The club title event will get under way July 11 and will be concluded with the staging of the final match August 6.

J. A. Fowers, president of the Pennsylvania Golf Association, has announced that the first of a series of one-day tournaments will be held next Wednesday at South Hills.

J. R. Baker won the first division sweepstakes at Edgewood yesterday with a score of 86-16—70. In the second division, W. A. Turner carded a 92-21—71. The event was an 18-hole medal play round, under full handicap.

CUBS SIGN HURLER

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs have signed Carl Boone, a right-handed pitcher, who was with Indianapolis of the American Association in 1930 and was released because of trouble with his arm. The arm apparently has recovered and Boone will be farmed out.

Lawson Robertson

The OLYMPIC GAMES

By Lawson Robertson
—Head Coach American Olympic Teams—

CHAPTER XXVII.

The glittering figure of the 1932 Olympics is liable to be a girl named Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, of Dallas, Tex.

Men know tremendous joy over acquisition of one championship in any single Olympiad, and occasionally there have been some double event winners. Beyond that no man has gone.

Babe Didrikson

Yet Miss Didrikson has a royal chance to win all FIVE of the events set apart for her sex.

Two years ago Miss Didrikson, an insurance rate clerk in Dallas, was interested only in basketball—at which she was a star. Then she decided to try for track and field honors. Her success has been amazing.

She has created a new world record for the javelin throw. She has hurled the discus farther than the present Olympic mark. She has high jumped beyond the Olympic record for women. She has cleared the 80-meter hurdles faster than any woman that lives and has run 100 yards in 11 seconds, which is a trifle better than 12 1-5 seconds for the Olympic 100 meters.

Therefore, it is not unreasonable to expect that this girl wonder will win three, four or all five of the championships for women. She seems to have the javelin and discus at her mercy. The same thing seems true concerning the high jump.

AN ATHLETIC MARVEL

Perhaps the U. S. A. or some other nation will enter a girl who may step the 80-meter hurdle or the 100-meter dash a bit faster than Babe Didrikson—but the girl will have to be a champion of champions to do it.

This Miss Didrikson is an athletic marvel and rates today as the greatest of her sex in the world.

She holds the women's world record for a baseball throw—296 feet. And she can play any position on a team. Few can come close to her mark for tossing a basketball. She is an expert swimmer. Likewise, she knows all of the artistic features of boxing.

MAY STEAL SHOW

Last year, she decided to take up golf. Within a few weeks she was shooting in the 90s—something that only a few girls can accomplish after years of trying. Recently she tried tennis—with unexpected success.

Babe Didrikson is likely to "steal the show" when Olympic competition starts in Los Angeles this summer.

Basque Bantam Stops Schwartz in Fifth

HAVANA, May 9.—(AP.)—Fillo Echevarria, basque bantamweight, stopped Izzy Schwartz, of New York, in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round bout here Saturday night. Echevarria weighed 116 pounds, Schwartz 113.

Echevarria caught Schwartz in a corner and pounded away with both fists until the veteran New Yorker went down for a count of eight. He was in no condition to continue and his seconds tossed in the towel.

ITALY, HUNGARY TIE

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 9.—(AP.)—Italy and Hungary played to a 1-1 tie in an international soccer football game here yesterday.

WEEK'S TENNIS CARD HEAVY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

The third annual Tennis Night smoker of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association tops an extensive early-May racquet bill for the current week. With Chairman J. Howard Moore, former P. T. A. president, promising extensive card of fun and refreshment, the yearly get-together of the net clans—tomorrow's the night and the P. A. A.'s the place—looms as one of the real features of the district campaign.

Today the P. T. A. sanction and schedule committee, charged with duty of whipping together the local Inter-Club League bill for 1932, meets with aim of completing the loop slate. Whether or not the 1931 Bellevue squad will compete this year as representative of the Shannopin Country Club remains undecided.

Makeup of Section II, however, is less certain. Two new teams—Y. M. H. A. and a second Bellevue outfit—have been definitely added to replace South Hills Seconds and the original Bellevue array.

The college match list for the week is impressive. Inauguration today of the Pitt-Carnegie Tech home-and-home series offers fast action for the Tartan lot. At Duquesne, Wash-Jeff and the Bluffites tangle, and the Tech Plebes cavort at Pitt and Andy Smeaton's Duke Frosh journey to W. & J. Waynesburg rounds out the afternoon by meeting Geneva.

Grove City visits the Bluff tomorrow and on Wednesday the Grovers encounter Carnegie on the Schenley Park rectangles, while Geneva treks to Bethany and Tech Plebes tangle with Shady Side. Temple University was tentatively booked for the Duquesne asphalt layout Friday, but as Graduate Manager John D. Holahan has been unable to get a contract or even a definite answer from the Owls, it is probable that the project of entertaining the Philadelphians will be chucked overboard and that effort will be made to bring the West Virginia University informal delegation here to fill the date.

Vines Beats Shields In Exhibition Match

KANSAS CITY, May 9.—(AP.)—Ellsworth Vines, of Los Angeles, National singles tennis champion, defeated Frank X. Shields, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, in an exhibition match the United States Davis Cup squad here yesterday.

Johnny Van Ryn took a decision, 6-4, 6-2, from Wilbur F. Coen, Jr., of Kansas City, former member of the Davis Cup squad and protege of William T. Tilden. Coen is the playing coach of the University of Kansas tennis team.

Athletics Release Boley and Hammond

PHILADELPHIA, May 9.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Athletics today unconditionally released Joe Boley, shortstop, and Catcher Buert (Bucky) Hammond.

Nick Altrock
Baseball's Humorist
Says:

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 9.—Well, pupils, among the many problems teacher has been asked in the last fortnight is "What is the matter with the Giants?" Well, one trouble is that the Giants trained this spring around Hollywood and they got the idea they only had to beat out Greta Garbo and Marlene Dietrich to cop the pennant.

Nick Altrock

Another reason is that New York is the center of the current bear market and Gothamites don't believe anything is on the level unless it touches a new low in 1932.

A third reason the Giants are having such a terrible season is the seven other clubs in the league. Outside of that, everything's all right.

General Motors Reflects Good April Sales Report; Telephone, Santa Fe Off

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Securities markets started the week in a hesitant mood today.

Week-end trade surveys failed to provide any fresh stimulus, and speculative attention was still riveted on Washington despite the cautious attitude toward the market. There remained an undertone of better sentiment carried over from the upturn of last Friday.

Prices of shares worked slightly higher in the first hour, eased off in the late morning, and stiffened again after midday, ruling slightly under Saturday's close by early afternoon. Rails and utilities had an interval of heaviness. Among issues selling off 1 to 2 points were New York Central, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Peoples Gas, North American, Public Service of New Jersey and American Telephone, but there were some fractional recoveries by early afternoon. Eastman was a soft spot, off 3 at the lowest. United States Steel sold off a fraction, then recovered. General Motors was about steady. Trading was in small volume.

The outstanding item of corporate news for the day was General Motors' report for April sales, showing sales on consumers in the United States of 81,573 cars, as increased from 48,717 for March. This manufacturer's April showing may have been helped by Ford's tardiness in production of its new models. On the whole, however, current reports from motor circles remain mildly cheerful, with indications that the month of May will see the largest production for the industry as a whole in eight months. Nevertheless, steel manufacturers are not getting the business expected from the automobile industry.

Banking and brokerage quarters continued to look for clues as to future trends in Washington developments. The unanimous approval by the Senate Finance Committee of the compromise tax measure at its meeting today was viewed favorably. In banking quarters, hopes were still expressed of a revival of a general nondiscriminatory sales tax, but the need for prompt balancing of the budget and consequent removal of uncertainty was still stressed above all else.

The morning selling of rails may have reflected estimates that the weekly freight car loadings, to be published tomorrow, will show another decline, contrary to the usual seasonal trend at this time. An important dividend meeting this week is that of Union Pacific. This road ordered disbursement of its regular quarterly dividend of $2.50 in the previous quarter, but Wall street is not so confident that the rate will be retained.

The swing to the left in yesterday's election in France seemed to be viewed more favorably than otherwise. While little difference has been indicated in the foreign policies of the right and left parties in France, international banking quarters were hopeful that a Herriot government might show a somewhat more conciliatory attitude at the Lausanne conference next month.

FAMOUS CORNER 31 YEARS AGO

Today is the anniversary of the famous Northern Pacific corner. This fact was recalled on the floor of the Pittsburgh Exchange by William I. Mustin, veteran operator, who was president of the local trading organization at the time when Hill and Harriman staged their memorable contest for control of the road.

On May 8, 1901, Northern Pacific closed at $170. On the following morning it became apparent that the two interests had cornered the stock. It soared to $1,000 a share. The telephone was still an unreliable newcomer to business in those days, but two phone calls saved the financial world from what seemed an inevitable panic to result from the ruin of many of the shorts. The two calls came from the office of J. P. Morgan, the elder. It summoned Hill and Harriman for an immediate conference.

Morgan was brief:

"You are going to reach a settlement, not an hour from now, not 15 minutes from now, but right now."

The shorts were allowed to settle for $150 a share. The stock of the two interests was deposited in a securities company and the market, in a burst of relief, soared into a rally, although several brokers failed before the compromise was reached.

STOCK EXCHANGE TOPICS

Washington Developments and Wheat Crop Hold Street's Interest.

Though interest will continue to run mainly toward the course of events at Washington through the week, there should be considerable attention directed to the grain market. The next government report on winter wheat will be out after the closing tomorrow and the showing will be very closely scrutinized. Wheat has lost practically all of its rise made in response to the April 1 condition statement which reflected the poor conditions ruling in the winter belt. It had been assumed that scattered rains during April would reflect in a substantial increase in the indicated yield as of May 1. But the consensus of private guesses places the prospective yield at 463,000,000 bushels and condition at 75.8 per cent, this comparing with the April 1 government actual of 458,000,000 bushels and a condition of 75.8 per cent.

Passage by the House of the Goldsborough bill directing the Federal Reserve System to endeavor to restore commodity prices to about the level of 1926 was apparently misinterpreted in some quarters abroad, where there has been a disposition to believe that the United States is ready to take the plunge into monetary inflation. At any rate, this factor, together with seeming inability of Congress to balance the budget, brought heavy selling of the dollar in foreign exchange markets, and a fresh outflow of gold from New York. The outflow of gold was viewed calmly, inasmuch as the supply of the excess metal has been greatly increased by the Glass-Steagall act, and is now approximately $1,300,000,000, or far in excess of estimated short term foreign balances here. It was notable that there was no active foreign dumping of American securities, which was interpreted by internal bankers as indicating that confidence in the United States had not been severely damaged.

The latest wage cut announced by the steel corporation, and since made more or less general through the industry, will, it is estimated, make for a saving of about $40,000,000 annually for the big company. The net saving realized will depend in a large way on the ability of producers to maintain prevailing price schedules. Certainly the consumer may be expected to put the situation in that respect to an early test. The importance to United States Steel of the indicated cut, which should amount to around $25,000,000 over the balance of the year, can be seen when it is pointed out that preferred dividend requirements call for an annual outlay of $25,219,680. The latest action quite logically will be interpreted as a sustaining influence for maintenance of the payment on the senior issue.

Action is due on the dividends of two of the larger railroad common stocks about the middle of this week. New York Central, which decided to defer dividend consideration until this time at its December meeting, will take up the matter next Wednesday, and in view of the lack of appreciable improvement in its position it is believed prospects are for definite discontinuance of payments for the present. The Union Pacific board will meet on Thursday and while earnings for 1931 showed the $10 rate almost fully covered, the street would not be surprised at an adjustment here in view of the reduction in income on its investments which this road has experienced due to the wholesale slashing of carrier payments in recent months.

Before the turn came last Friday, price averages drifted to new low levels for the 2½-year slump. Industrials, as measured by one leading price average, sagged to the lowest since 1921, while another widely quoted average reached a level only a shade above the low of 1914, which in turn was the lowest since 1907. The rails penetrated levels for which there is no parallel in modern times. For some time these equities have been at the lowest levels since the 1890's, and one statistical record indicated the lowest level for leading carrier shares since the turbulent 1870's.

Russian operations in the world wheat market aroused much interest, and the fact that Russia was a buyer instead of a seller was looked upon generally as a potential element of strength. Bulls laid stress also on an estimate that world shipments of wheat would have to be about 17,000,000 bushels a week until the end of the crop year, and that this would necessitate liberal buying of north American wheat.

CHAIN STORE SALES OFF

E. A. Pierce & Co. estimates first quarter sales of 40 leading chain store units at $757,150,791, a decrease of 11.7 per cent as compared with the first three months of 1931.

PARIS STEADIES NEAR CLOSE

PARIS, May 9.—The sweeping left wing victory in Sunday's elections was followed on the Paris bourse by a decline in prices of many leading French issues. The tendency was better, however, toward the end of the session, the closing being irregular.

LONDON, May 9.—Better Wall street reports and the buying of specialties by Paris aided in a more cheerful tone on the stock exchange. French bonds drooped, due to the elections in France. The market closed steady.

Money Circulation Larger for April

WASHINGTON, May 9.—(AP.)—Money in circulation in the United States on April 30 increased $5,008,156 as compared with March 31, but the total of money in the country decreased $68,041,376.

The Treasury's monthly circulation statement today showed that at the end of April money in circulation amounted to $5,464,093,541 with a per capita circulation of $43.76 as compared with $43.74 a month before.

The total money in the country on April 30 was $9,198,517,109. Of that amount $4,364,624,657 was in gold coin and bullion.

Atchison Loadings Show Small Decline

CHICAGO, May 9.—During the week ended May 7 the Atchison Railway handled 21,441 revenue freight cars against 22,592 in the previous week and 29,906 cars in the like week of 1931.

GEN'L MOTORS SALES GAIN

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Sales of General Motors cars in April increased sharply over the March figures.

Total sales to dealers were 78,359 cars and trucks compared with 59,696 in March and 154,252 in April, 1931. April sales to American consumers aggregated 81,573 units against 48,717 in March and 135,663 a year ago, while sales to American dealers totaled 69,029 compared with 48,383 in the previous month and 132,629 in April, 1931.

Kreuger Collateral Now Reported 'Good'

NEW YORK, May 8.—(AP.)—The protective committee for holders of Kreuger & Toll 5 per cent secured sinking fund gold debentures has learned that securities held in Sweden as collateral against those bonds "appear to be genuine" and that they conform with the records of the American trustee.

Also, Sweden counsel has advised that the collateral is "so held as to be free from any levy or attachment which might be asserted against them prior to the charge created by the indenture in favor of the secured debentures."

Cash Register's Sales Expanding

DAYTON, May 9.—During the first week in May the National Cash Register Company received orders amounting to $135,155 for accounting machines, which figure was substantially ahead of the like 1931 period, according to Frederick Patterson, president.

LOCAL MARKET QUIET AND STEADY

Narrow Changes Recorded In Fuel and Industrial Issues; Turnover Small

The market was quiet, but prices maintained a steady tone at the opening of the new week on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today. Early dealings consisted of scattered odd-lot transactions in issues which have held the leadership of the trading over the past few sessions.

Only fractional changes were recorded in quotations. Lone Star Gas was handled in small volume around the levels at which it has been selling for several days. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt moved up a fraction after having ended the week in new low ground at 3¾. Plymouth Oil, which went ahead for a large fractional gain last week, was unchanged around $7 a share.

COTTON DOWN, TRADING QUIET

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Cotton opened steady today at a decline of 4 to 6 points on scattered selling. July sold at 5.80c.

Initial offerings were quite readily taken by some trade buying and covering, but bulges of a point or two met somewhat increased offerings which seemed to come partly from local sources and the market eased again with prices at the end of the first half hour ruling about 6 points net lower. A favorable view of the weather map may have been a factor, but trading was too quiet to emphasize any particular feature in the general news.

While offerings were not heavy, demand was slow and prices sagged off later in the morning under a little southern and local selling.

July sold off to 5.68, with the general list declining some 15 to 18 points from Saturday's closing quotations, and the market at midday was barely steady, within 2 or 3 points of these figures.

LIVERPOOL, May 9.—Cotton, 1,000 bales. No American. Spot quiet; prices 5 points lower. Mellon, Silent Up to Present, Warns Shorts

By B. C. FORBES

PERHAPS I AM wrong but in my judgment the most important event of the week did not occur in Washington in Wall Street or anywhere else in this country.

Mr. Forbes

Oftener than once tried to persuade Andrew W. Mellon, who advised people to prefer bonds quite some time before the stock market bubble burst, to come out with a statement if he felt that way, indicating that in his judgment stocks had reached bargain levels. Secretary Mellon did not feel warranted in making any such pronouncement.

I see tremendous significance in Mr. Mellon's warning sounded in London on Friday: "Don't sell America short."

Andrew Mellon is an extremely cautious conservative veteran banker, notable for his silence, not for loquacity. The deduction reasonably can be drawn that Mr. Mellon is at last convinced that the terrific decline here has gone quite far enough and that purchases of securities, not their sale, is now advisable. Remember that this is absolutely the first time Mr. Mellon has talked in this vein. Nothing could induce him to issue a reassuring statement heretofore.

Therefore is it not justifiable to attach great significance to his warning? In my humble opinion there is no American whose analysis of conditions and prospects is worth more than Andrew W. Mellon's.

OTHER ENCOURAGING developments happily can be recorded.

President Hoover's extraordinarily vigorous exhortation to Congress to stop playing politics produced immediate results. The Senate Finance Committee, which had been dilly-dallying, very promptly finished its tax recommendations, along lines distinctly less disturbing to the financial world than previously threatened. The public's enthusiastic indorsement of the President's outspokenness is hardly likely to be ignored by the majority of the House. From all parts of the country has come the emphatic demand that Congress no longer endlessly delay in approving sensible tax legislation, in drastically cutting government expenditures and in balancing the budget.

The Federal Reserve continued to pump into banks the wherewithal to expand credit facilities on a very generous scale.

The Glass bank bill, though still regarded by bankers as untimely, is being shorn of its most objectionable features.

Wall street was encouraged by the prospect that the alarming tax proposed on security dealings will not become law.

ALL THESE inspired an outburst of bullishness in the security markets before the week ended. Both bonds and stocks participated. Whereas average stock quotations had declined to new low levels, they showed a net gain for the week. In the more speculative issues the rebound was sufficiently swift and substantial to frighten the shorts.

Although one swallow does not mean summer, sentiment immediately brightened. Once again hopes were revived that the turn in security values had come. Should Congress alter its attitude and act with reason and dispatch, these hopes may be fulfilled. If not, not.

AGRICULTURAL COMMODITIES enjoyed almost a gala week. Wheat, corn, rye and oats all advanced. Cotton ended modestly higher. Gains were also registered by rubber, hides, tin, coffee and silver futures. On the other hand, sugar and copper declined to all-time lows, while iron, zinc, wool, silk, butter weakened.

Steel output moved in the opposite direction of a year ago by increasing 14 per cent in less than a month. The decrease in power consumption was less severe. Bank clearings, although still extremely light, made a somewhat better showing. Both railway freight and earnings are still disappointing. Retail trade is only so-so. Building reports are none too optimistic. Announcement was made of cuts in steel and building wages.

In short, proof that business and employment have definitely begun to improve is still lacking.

POLITICAL AND strictly monetary developments may shortly inspire a greater measure of hopefulness.

B. I. S. RENEWS REICH CREDIT

BASEL, Switzerland, May 9.—(INS)—The Bank for International Settlements today renewed for three months from June 4 the loan of $90,000,000 made by central banks to the German government. Germany has repaid $10,000,000 of the original $100,000,000 loan.

BASEL, Switzerland, May 9.—(AP)—A moratorium of perhaps two or three years on Germany's reparations payments, followed by an attempt to revise the reparations schedules, was predicted today by a source close to the World Bank for International Settlements.

BERLIN, May 9.—(AP)—Chancellor Heinrich Bruening once more today had served notice on the world that Germany can no longer pay reparations. He added a prediction that the European financial conference at Lausanne next month would lead the way either to world recovery or collapse.

GENEVA, May 9.—The Bank for International Settlements declared a dividend of 6 per cent for the year ended March 31, unchanged from the preceding year.

Net profits from the second fiscal year totaled 15,182,818 Swiss francs, compared with 11,186,533 francs in 1930-31 year.

GRAIN MARKET TONE MIXED

CHICAGO, May 9.—(AP)—Grain prices here tended upward early today, stimulated by an unexpected bulge in Liverpool wheat quotations and by reports that Russia continued to purchase. Opening at ⅜@¾ advance, wheat futures in Chicago held near afterward to the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ¼ higher and later kept firm.

Added incentive to buy wheat came from advices that Russian Baltic ports were asking for offers of Argentine wheat, and also that Spain and Portugal were bidding for wheat from Argentina.

Reactions for wheat price upturns, however, wiped out at times all gains. Corn and oats paralleled the action of wheat.

The following quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, May 9.—The bond market started the week quietly, but with a highly irregular trend. The federals generally showed little inclination to repeat their bouyant tendency of the week end. Some of the treasuries dropped around half a point at one time and the liberties shaded their prices moderately. German government bonds rallied on news that the Bank of International Settlements had decided to renew for three months its share of the $90,000,000 credit to the Reichsbank, provided the other creditors do likewise.

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column; United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

PRESENT LEVEL THOUGHT TO BE SUBNORMAL

Drop in Living Standard Not Believed Permanent; Some Encouragement Seen

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, May 9.—Business continues to drag along at a distinctly lower level than is necessary to sustain what we had become accustomed to look upon as an American standard of living.

As a matter of fact, numerous acute observers believed that business had fallen a year ago to a minimum necessary to sustain consumption. The subsequent decline has been accompanied by a downward revision of living standards. However, there is still good reason to believe that the prevailing level is subnormal, rather than a new normal.

Mr. Rukeyser

The chief encouragement last week came from the President and from the Federal Reserve, which continued its vigorous open market policy of credit easement. Mr. Hoover's contribution, which was favorably received in business and financial circles, consisted of berating Congress for its tedious and irresponsible debate over crucial matters of economic readjustment.

TIME FOR BUILDING

Surface developments have perhaps been more unfavorable than underlying conditions. Amidst political dilly-dallying, there has been little disposition to assess the favorable implication of the new credit policy and of the reconstruction program. The occasion might be opportune for taking advantage of recent indications of a new stability at a low level, for launching a more broadly conceived reconstruction program, including acceleration of public works and private construction, a wise tax bill, a new farm policy, tariff revision, modernization of the anti-trust laws, railroad rehabilitation, and more venturesomeness on the part of management.

The second cut of steel wages—a 15 per cent slash—indicates that the country is still in the throes of a vicious deflationary spiral. Irrespective of what one may think of the practical necessity for such action by the steel corporation, it nevertheless follows that the steel corporation directors are scarcely living up to their reputation of being creative leaders of the procession in American business. Instead, they have been adjusting themselves to outside forces and influences—a few steps behind.

PICTURE BLURRED

Apart from improvement in the banking situation, the immediate economic picture is blurred. Slight improvement in automobile production has been reflected in mild gains in steel activity. Building contracts made a better than seasonal rise in April, but are still at a devastatingly low level.

The persistent decline in the general commodity price level has been discouraging. Anxiety, it seems to me, has been overdone, since prevailing commodity and security prices already overdiscount much human folly and stupidity. Pretty much everything has been discounted except the capacity of the country for striking improvement, resulting from a co-ordinated managerial effort to take desirable remedial measures.

Railroads Install Fewer Freight Cars

NEW YORK, May 9.—Class I railroads of the United States in the first three months of 1932 placed in service 1,079 new freight cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association reports.

In the same period last year, 3,855 new freight cars were placed in service.

The railroads on April 1 this year had 2,074 new freight cars on order, compared with 7,516 on the same day last year.

Southern Pacific Asks O. K. on Bonds

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The Southern Pacific Company has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to pledge $12,793,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds of the Arizona Eastern Railroad as collateral for short-term notes which it may issue within the next few months in order to meet its financial requirements.

Ingot Production Declined in April

NEW YORK, May 9.—(AP.)—Steel ingot production declined about 12 per cent in April from the March figure, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The April production was 1,239,811 tons, compared with the March figure of 1,410,130, and the April, 1931, output of 2,722,479 tons.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY :-: :-: By ANTHONY ABBOT

Detectives Learn That Dr. Baldwin Purchased a Poisonous Insect

CHAPTER XXVIII

The microscope was placed over a part of the innards of that bisected sleeve. Colt bent down and gave a turn to the screw of the instrument. A low exclamation escaped him.

"I see two dried red spots—of blood?"

"You are right, Herr Commissioner!"

"Then—the scorpion was in the sleeve—"

"I believe that too—"

"But the bathrobe was put on wrong—"

"I know nothing of that."

"Of course it was! And the scorpion had to be in the sleeve—"

"Ah!" cried Prof. Luckner, "if that were so the scorpion would make frantic efforts to escape—most surely it would bite—"

With a handkerchief Thatcher Colt wiped moisture from his brow.

"Professor—how could a person obtain such a scorpion? I must know that."

The professor gave a demure wink.

"One could go to Durango and look in the cellars of old houses," he suggested with an enormous chuckle. "But otherwise, it would be—well, very difficult to obtain such a scorpion."

"But it could be done?"

"Oh, yes, if one were connected with a university laboratory—a biologist or a medical research man—they could arrange it."

"But how?"

"Through supply houses who keep the research laboratories stocked with necessary insects, birds—all sorts of living creatures. Did I ever tell you the story—"

RECALLS STRANGE ACTION

Colt laid his hand lightly on the old professor's elbow.

"The police have to travel fast, professor. I have sent an agent already to call on these supply houses."

"Ja wohl! But how? Are you a mind-reader?"

Having reassured Prof. Luckner and thanked him profusely, Colt led the way back to our car. Sitting with military erectness in the back seat, he deliberately filled his pipe and lighted it. Then he said:

"It would be possible for a medical man to get that scorpion. The only marks found on Lola's body were the punctures of a hypodermic needle—made by a medical man."

"But the analysis showed the solution was harmless," I remonstrated.

Colt's nod was infinitely sad.

"Right. But do you remember how Dr. Baldwin as he stood beside Lola reached across her body to lift up the arm that was farthest from him? Why? Suppose he did that strange action because he knew the bite of the scorpion was already there—"

"And he put the point of the hypodermic needle through that bite?" I gasped.

"It could have been done," said Thatcher Colt. "I am not ready to say that it was done. But I do want to have a few words with Dr. Baldwin. We have one telephone call to make and then—"

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Colt gave directions to the chauffeur to take us to that haunted apartment building where Dr. Baldwin's office was under the same roof with Lola Carewe's home.

The telephone call was made from a drug store on a corner of Amsterdam avenue, one block west. Colt wanted the latest reports from his office before tackling Dr. Baldwin.

Flynn was at headquarters bursting with eagerness to talk with the chief. As this was a public pay station there was no extension over which I could listen; thus I heard only Colt's side of the conversation. It was only a brief talk, but the facts given to Colt were indeed disturbing.

The first was that no employee of the North Star speakeasy could remember having seen Guy Everett in the resort on New Year's Eve. No attendant had opened the grilled iron door to admit the actor, the coat-girl did not remember taking his coat, and no waiter would admit to having served him.

Furthermore, additional inquiries made in the apartment house where Dr. Baldwin made his home opened a fascinating new field for speculation. It was known that late in the previous evening Mrs. Baldwin had a visitor—a man whom no attendant recognized and who had remained with Mrs. Baldwin until a late hour!

"And further," added Flynn, "you know how I sent a man out to the medical laboratory supply houses. Well—I got something hot. Dr. Baldwin has been buying bugs—poisonous—scorpions—"

"Will they swear to that?" rasped Colt suddenly.

"Sure—a fellow there named Villafranca—he sold Baldwin a fresh one this morning."

"Hold on to him!" exclaimed Colt. "I'll talk with you later."

In solemn silence, Thatcher Colt hurried back to the car. Back toward Morningside Heights we hurried. But now a change had come over town and sky as, indeed, a change had come into my own suspicion-haunted brain. From Long Island Sound a fog of brown and silver mist had fallen over the roof-tops. The trailing folds of vapor fell in ecru masses from the terrace railings of apartment houses, rolled in clouds through the canyons of east-west streets and hovered, damp and billowing, in cellar doorways. When we had entered the drug store to telephone, we had left behind us crisp yellow sunshine. Fifteen minutes later the light and warmth of the winter morning were gone. We were embraced in a damp plague of fog.

I felt gloomy and depressed, and without sensible reason, except the fatigue of our long and unabated efforts. Seemingly we were coming nearer to our quarry, and working with multiplying clues. Yet my despondency increased as our car rolled down the steep slope of Morningside Heights. On we hurried past the little French cathedral—Eglise de Notre Dame—with its Virgin in a rocky niche over the altar, surrounded by the flames of 1,000 candles, and decked about with crutches of persons miraculously healed. The sight of it seemed to me infinitely tragic and forlorn, and this impression deepened as we scurried by St. Luke's Hospital, and Gabriel blowing his long trumpet over the seven chapels of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Down under the roaring bridge of the elevated at One Hundred and Tenth street raced our police car, while the shatter-proof glass of the car windows became obscured with a coating of silver mist that made of the car's interior a chamber of isolation, a compartment of reflection rolling on balloon tires.

I looked at Thatcher Colt. He was refilling his pipe. He looked at me with a lightly amused air that hid, I knew, a deep crisis of excitement.

Synopsis

Lola Carewe is mysteriously murdered in her penthouse apartment at 3 o'clock New Year's morning. An hour later the body of Lola's guest, Christine Quires, is found in Lola's room. Christine had been killed first and her body hidden. Dr. Hugh Baldwin attributes both deaths due to heart failure. Guy Everett, Christine's New Year's Eve escort, claims he brought her home at 12:15 and then went, riding alone, on the Motor Parkway. Mrs. Carewe, Lola's mother, denies seeing Christine return. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt discounts District Attorney Dougherty's theory that Lola was killed by a jewel thief ring she headed and that Christine met the same fate for knowing too much. Vincent Rowland, Lola's lawyer, discloses that Everett loved Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. The Commissioner telephotoes a picture of a young man named Basil, found on Lola's dresser, to the Paris Prefect of Police requesting that he identify it and investigate Lola's past. The police are on the trail of Christine's brother, Edward, who left his Rochester home for New York after receiving a telegram New Year's Eve. Christine was to have inherited wealth shortly. Dr. Multooler, the medical examiner, contradicts Dr. Baldwin's statement that heart failure caused the deaths. Everett confesses he lied about riding on the Motor Parkway. He states Christine told him she had found out a plot to murder Lola and feared for her own life because of her knowledge, adding that Dr. Baldwin was involved. The picture of the young man found in Lola's room is identified by Paris police. The scientist employed by Colt says the girls died as a result of bites from a poison scorpion. He shows a part of the insect he found in the dust taken from Lola's room.

Now Go On

A low exclamation escaped the police commissioner.

Heart of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Mrs. Brixton's Actions Arouses Madge's Suspicion.

Ever since Helena Brixton, school friend of Lillian's youth, had come back into her life, I had been conscious of a haunting, vague dislike for her which I acknowledged must have its roots in a mean jealousy, extremely ridiculous, because I knew that our friendship, Lillian's and mine, was too strongly rooted, too entwined in all branches of our lives, to fear even comparison with the regard of either of us for any other woman.

But I was conscious of another reaction toward Helena Brixton of which I was not ashamed. I had felt ever since I had known her, that while she was genuinely fond of Lillian, her natural indolence and unconscious selfishness, fostered through her married life with Samuel Brixton, by his adoration of her, had intensified her natural tendency to be "a haver, instead of a giver," and that she made use of Lillian's friendship in every possible way. There never had been any real opportunity for me to prove to myself the impression I long had entertained, that if occasion arose, Helena would fail in giving to Lillian the same joyous loyal service which was Lillian's for her.

I remembered Lillian's pleased, trusting face when at the start of her journey to the Brixton camp she had said that "Helena would hang me upon a hatrack if she had no other place to put me."

UNDERSTANDS MARY

She had been so sure of her welcome, and now I understood Mary's curious hesitation and made a mental apology to my husband's charming niece, her hesitancy in expressing gladness at Lillian's prospected arrival, might not have been due so much to her desire that no one should interfere with her plans and Marion's for finding out Charles Owen's schemes as to her knowledge of Mrs. Brixton's lack of hospitality towards her old friend.

The conviction of all this made my answer to Helena Brixton unusually effusive, something which every woman and few men will understand.

"Oh, I'm so sorry," I said with sugar dripping from every syllable. "Lillian is so unconventional herself, so elastic in her hospitality, that I do not think she always realizes the difficulties that other hostesses have. I was afraid of this"—purposely I tried to make my voice smug, "and I asked her before she went if she were sure that it would be all right for her to come to you on such short notice, but she gaily assured me that you would 'hang her upon a hatrack if you had no other place to put her.' So I rested content, but how terribly annoying for you! What will you do? I don't see how I can flag her for she will be constantly on a train or bus until she reaches the village near your house. But I know Lillian will be terribly desolate to think she will inconvenience you."

HELENE SOUNDS SINCERE

She got it, the full flavor of it. I knew that by the acidity in her voice as she answered me.

"My dear Mrs. Graham," she made the utterance of my name a horrified disclaimer, "I hope you do not think so poorly of my hospitality, my household regime is as elastic as Lillian's. In these house parties for the children I never know nor care whether I have one unexpected additional guest or a half-dozen. They bunk in somewhere, and the cook 'stretches the stew.' But Lillian, or any other old friend, is 'something else again.' I can hardly permit her to sleep on the floor or hang up on a hatrack, no matter how willing she might be for these experiences."

"I know," I said soothingly, but I was sure my rejoinder had a far different effect upon her. "I understand your position fully, and I am so sorry."

"Thank you," she said, and I surmised that it was a distinct effort for her to keep her voice modulated to her usual sweetness. "I shall manage perfectly. Lillian shall have my own bed and room, of course. I am simply overjoyed at her coming, and my only concern is that her visit shall be made enjoyable."

There was such apparent sincerity in her voice that I wondered guiltily if I had misjudged her. Then I remembered the dismay that had been hers when I announced Lillian's coming and my conviction deepened that whether because of fussiness concerning the domestic details connected with hospitality or because of some deeper or secret reason, Helene Brixton did not desire Lillian's presence at her camp at this time.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

At all of the regular meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club Saturday the youngsters were given short talks on "Mother's Day," and at each the youngsters sang one or more songs in honor of their mothers.

The children attending the meeting at the Schenley Theater were treated to a very pleasant surprise when Vera Liebau, of the Vera Liebau School of Dancing, told them that she had brought to the Schenley for their amusement the entire second act of the play that she is presenting at the Nixon Theater Wednesday night.

The meeting opened in the regular way with the Schenley Band, which is going to lead the Junior Komic Club parade next Sunday, playing five or six of the popular numbers of the day.

Then Miss Liebau's youngsters took the stage and their opening number was a very clever dance routine by Ella Kleinhample, Virginia Scully, Antonetta and Helen Episcopo, Anna Margaret Johnson, Barbara Thiel, Martha Hoeltje, June Carroll and Martha Sauerburger, youngsters who will appear in the chorus. These youngsters were all dressed in blue and white polka-dot costumes to represent southern "belles."

This was followed by Raymond Simmons and Doris Neppereny in a dance which the youngsters liked very much. Next Elsie Zinner and Matilda Arnold, dressed in long black velvet trousers and pretty pink silk blouses and each wearing black tams, went through a very difficult tap dance which stopped the show.

Peggy Cinderalli, a little miss of 12, next offered as a specialty number a toe tap dance.

Russell Hoeltje and Dave Jefferies acted as masters of ceremonies. These two clever youngsters are and have been the favorites with the members of this chapter for a long time.

All in all it was a great show and every youngster in the audience was sorry when it was all over.

Just a word about the show which will be held next Sunday at the Stanley Theater for the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club. Remember, all members who are eligible to attend this show are to meet at the Sun-Telegraph Building at 1:30. Be on time as it is very important that the parade leaves the Sun-Telegraph Building on time. And to do this you must be on time.

Congratulations to the following boys and girls, all members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

HANDSHAKE TEST FOR CANDIDATES

Before promising your vote, be sure to read the character of the candidate by his handshake. If he uses the two-finger handshake he is a snob. And if he lisps "Excuse my glove," look carefully to see whether or not he is wearing gloves. Perhaps he is merely putting on airs.

The above handclasp is called "The dead fish," and the cluck who gives you the dead fish is a cold-blooded, languid person who will be indifferent to you after he is elected. He would as soon kiss your wife as your baby.

Here is the handshake that really counts—and you can safely vote for the mugg who gives it to you. And if he slaps you on the back, and exclaims, "How are you, Pal!" you can trust him for the generous, frank, wholesome politician that he is—ready and willing to give you his last cigar.

Unwise Secrecy

The Bar Association Is Making a Mistake in Not Disclosing the Names of the Alleged Shysters.

Arthur M. Scully, president of the Allegheny County Bar Association, has announced the appointment of a committee to prosecute certain lawyers accused of ''ambulance chasing'' and other unethical practices. But the names of the accused are still withheld, notwithstanding that secrecy encourages scandalous gossip.

The charges against the alleged shysters were developed by an investigating committee, which laid them before the Common Pleas Court. The judges directed that disbarment proceedings be instituted.

In due course the names of the accused no doubt will be made public. But they should be published at once. The proceedings have reached a stage which leaves no room for doubt that the Bar Association means business, and no good purpose is served, in the circumstances, in remaining furtive about it.

On the contrary the effect is bad, since it is causing people to guess who the accused are, with the result that names are being dragged in the mire.

More Rate Cuts

But Certain Philadelphia Company Subsidiaries Continue To Charge Pittsburghers Too Much.

The Natrona Light and Power Company, serving 3,600 customers in Harrison Township, announces a reduction in its rates.

The Peoples Natural Gas Company also announces a rate reduction.

These two concerns say their purpose in cutting rates is to encourage more extensive use of their service. They think a reduction will be good for business.

In many places we find the public utilities, in common with numerous other commercial enterprises, reducing prices.

In Pittsburgh certain subsidiaries of the Philadelphia Company, notably the Duquesne Light Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, continue to charge excessive rates—the same rates that were charged when prosperity was at its peak.

If the theory of the Natrona Light and Power Company and the Peoples Natural Gas Company is correct, a reduction in rates by the Philadelphia Company subsidiaries might bring them an increase in business, too.

But regardless of whether it would or not, the people of Pittsburgh are entitled to reductions in their electric light and bus rates as a matter of right and justice.

The general fall in commodity prices, wages and rents makes it incongruous that the cost of such necessities as electric light should remain at the same level as prevailed when the purchasing power of the dollar was much lower. The value of the dollar has increased greatly in the last few years, and the prices of necessities have gone down proportionately. The cost of electric service should also be lowered.

As for the 25-cent bus fare, the fact that a similar ride can be had in other cities for 10 cents is evidence enough that it is too high.

A Square Deal

Holding Surety Companies Responsible for State Deposits Is to Gov. Pinchot's Credit.

Attorney General William A. Schnader announces that surety companies which guaranteed the safety of $4,387,112 of state deposits in 58 closed Pennsylvania banks have paid $1,388,197 to the Department of Justice in partial discharge of their obligations, and are expected to pay the remainder of the sums due on their bonds during the next few months.

Gov. Pinchot deserves credit for the surety company payments.

The surety companies had sought to be relieved of their responsibility. They threatened that if they were not relieved they would cancel their bonds securing state deposits in other banks. This, it was said, would make it necessary for the state to withdraw its deposits, with resultant embarrassment to the banks.

It was pointed out at the same time that even if the surety companies should be relieved of liability for the state deposits in the closed banks the state could avoid loss by exercising its sovereign right of priority among the depositors. The state, it was said, could collect 100 cents on the dollar and leave what was left for pro rata distribution among the other depositors.

The scheme would have been detrimental to the interest of the other depositors. Nevertheless it gave every promise of being accepted until it came to Gov. Pinchot's attention. He promptly vetoed it and called the surety companies' ''bluff,'' with the result just announced by Attorney General Schnader.

Depositors in some of the closed banks have the Governor to thank for a somewhat higher dividend than they would have received if the surety companies' scheme had been successful.

A Serious Offense

A Visiting Judge Reminds an Allegheny County Jury of The Heinousness of Election Fraud.

Judge Ivan J. McKenrick, of Cambria County, sitting in our own Criminal Court last week, performed a needed service in reminding an Allegheny County jury that election cheating is a serious offense.

Election cheating of all kinds has been so common in Allegheny County that juries have been prone to lose sight of its heinousness and to regard it as a rather petty misdemeanor.

Judge McKenrick's remarks were prompted by the jury's verdict in the case of a Hill district politician who, under the guise of helping a woman voter with a voting machine, is alleged to have operated the machine so as to cast her vote according to his own wishes. The jury found the man not guilty, but directed him to pay the costs of the prosecution.

More than one jury has been lax in election cases recently; but it is to be hoped that District Attorney Park will not let this dissuade him from continuing the prosecution. Judge McKenrick's rebuke may have a good effect.

In the fair Hawaiian Islands.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love Is a Woman's Game

I KNEW it would come! At last an editorial writer wants to know why there are no men writers who specialize in "personal advice columns" to lovers.

* * *

He opines that "Worried" and "Sweet Sixteen" would sometimes be better off to receive a touch of masculine candor and severity, since most of their queries concern "what my husband would think" or "what boys prefer."

* * *

All of which is perfectly reasonable. Except for the fact that, in matters of love, men don't REASON, and women DO.

A man knows instinctively what he likes or dislikes about women, but he can't tell you WHY. He has never stopped to think it over. He can't even explain why he fell in love with his own wife. But SHE could tell you—if she would.

* * *

Ask any man why he admires a certain woman or hangs around a particular girl, and he'll look vague and answer evasively, "Oh, she's a good little scout." Or "jolly good company." Or "a nice little thing."

* * *

It never occurs to him that the reason he enjoys one girl's company more than another's is because she DOESN'T do this or that—or because she ISN'T that or this. Because she doesn't talk too much or doesn't make up like a couple of headlights or dress like a fire-alarm. Because she doesn't argue with him or get on his nerves or take him too seriously.

A woman, on the other hand, can not only tell you why she admires or loves a particular man but can give you a daily chart of her emotions and his reactions.

* * *

She knows exactly whether it is his magnetism, his manner, his "line," his intellect or just his eyelashes, that caught her fancy. And, by that same token, she can tell you just what it is about HER that caught HIS fancy.

* * *

It would be a great boon to women if, as this editorial writer hopes, there should arise some wise "male journalist with a flair for solving emotional dilemmas." Some man who could give us the "lowdown" on men, women and the love racket, from the masculine angle! But, as long as men continue to concentrate on business, politics and gold, LOVE will continue to write the "love-and-marriage" columns.

* * *

A man may some day discover WHAT is love—but he will never know WHICH is love or WHY is love. Only a woman knows that!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 9.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Betimes and gladdened by an original drawing of a dozen dogs from Bert Levy, the actor-cartoonist, and also a letter from Tod Sloan, the jockey, living happily in Los Angeles. And once a nimble ripple in the Broadway flow.

Working most of the afternoon and abroad with my wife, but in a great wax over news an entire week's labor was lost carelessly in the mails, which, pray Heaven, may be recovered. So coming upon Flora Zabelle Hitchcock and driving her to Frank Case's tavern.

Came Eva Steinmetz and Otis Ralston to dine and word from Frank McIntyre, the play actor, he could not arrive for the spread. High luck for him, too, for we ran low of meat. Later, to a far fling of the Bronx to watch cretin capers of marathon dancers, befogged by lack of sleep.

* * *

A newspaper crowd, illuminating the darkened corner of a grill, discussed the most poignant heart wrench in the run of a day's news. My choice was the menu Mrs. Charles Lindbergh issued to guide heartless kidnapers of her child.

* * *

There was a pathetic touch, too, in the usual sidewalk clamor today near Brentano's in the Forties. A forlorn street band was tooting "Happy Days Are Here Again." After tossing a coin into an upturned derby the leader megaphoned above the din: "Remember me? I used to be in the pit at the Globe."

* * *

Personal nomination for the poorest play of the season — George Bernard Shaw's "Too True to Be Good."

* * *

Incidentally, the dramatic critic nifty for the season was in Bob Garland's review of the super Shavian stupidity. He pronounced it: "Not so Hot Shaw."

* * *

Taxicab etiquette has undergone a distinct improvement since Wall Street soured. The phenomenon is attributed to a new class of workers seeping into the field of charioteering. Some are men who drove their own cars—indeed several are unfortunates once employing their own chauffeurs.

* * *

My chauffeur, Fred Fitch, has an unbroken record for strict observance of traffic regulations. Not once has he brushed even slightly other cars, although he has had the customary beetle-brows bang into him from behind. His conversation is limited to "No Sir" and "Yes Sir" and never has he been a second late. In mufti, he suggests a theological student, and instead of reading tabloids during waits he peruses the Atlantic Monthly. It will be my luck to find him a sociological slummer seeing how the other half lives.

* * *

There is something of the poet in Jack Doyle, of the billiard parlors. He finds beauty in the metropolitan muck by riding along the serpentine path of the Sixth avenue elevated these golden-grained evenings. "At the end of each cross street," he rhapsodizes, "is a burst of sunset red. No artist has ever painted so romantically the death of another day."

* * *

In my opinion not since Big Bill Devery has New York had a police commissioner so physically expressive of the calling as the present and highly freckled incumbent—Edward Mulrooney.

* * *

Contrariwise, there are many celebrities whose professions the stranger would never guess. For instance: Joseph Urban, the scenic artist. Katherine Cornell, the emotional actress. Percy Hammond, the critic. Dr. John Erdmann, the surgeon. William Beebe, the explorer. Victor Moore, the comedian. Arthur Hopkins, the producer.

Most of us, I suppose, form a mental picture of figures in the public eye. I think my greatest disappointment was in a real life close-up of Douglas Fairbanks. I thought of him as broad shouldered and powerfully built. Instead he seemed undersized and just a shade floppish.

At one of those teas this afternoon talk ebbed to the conversational low of discussing the terrible surplus of wheat. "It could be worse," said Harry Silvey. And after a long pause added: "It might have been spinach."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The pies your mother used to make—

The dear old patchwork quilt in the little room under the eves—

The old oaken bucket and the village swimming hole—

And 975 other perquisites of Ye Good Olde Days were anything but an unmitigated blessing. You can take Mr. Harry L. Hopkins' word for it. And Mr. Hopkins should know for he is director of the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association with official right to put oaken buckets, mince pies and swimming holes on the spot.

Mr. Hopkins sees no sweetly sylvan scene when he contemplates these joys of yesterday. Instead he sees the record of typhoid cases that came out of that swimming hole and old oaken bucket; the stomach ulcers and allied tummy aches that were the result of those wonderful pies and "sody" biscuits; the tuberculosis germs that lurked in the old four-poster patchwork, dealing death from one generation to another.

"But look at the fine, husky kids our grandparents raised," some indignant sentimentalist will snort.

Yes, indeed! But look at the kids they DIDN'T raise! Graveyards filled with tiny mounds—mute memorials to grandma's ignorance and goshawful notions of diet!

And that wasn't all. Those Good Olde Days were responsible for many an evil Mr. Hopkins does not mention.

The sacred family circle, that listens so lovely when you read about it in literature, produced stupidity, intolerance and a bumper crop of general cussedness, as well as rickets and galloping consumption.

Many a fine man and woman came out of the old-fashioned home, but also, many a sour, frustrated spirit stayed in it, to poison the community with its bitterness.

Closed minds went with closed plumbing.

Grandpa's diet often lacked vitamins.

So did grandma's viewpoint.

Children were constantly reminded that there was no place like "Home, Sweet Home"—and they frequently thanked God there wasn't!

And now the old-fashioned home has gone. Gone for good. Altered housing and working conditions, increased population, decreased dollar value have "rubbed it out." The bread is made in the bakery; the clothes are washed in the laundry; the bean and marmalade come out of cans, and Ma and Pa and the kids live in a three-room apartment.

And that, according to plenty of folks, is driving us straight to the dogs. Don't you believe it! That old-fashioned home was a fine place; but the new-fashioned home can be finer, if we tackle it with love and intelligence.

It was a touching sight to see the family gathering around the old kerosene lamp; but it's a much more promising sight to see the family gathered around at a good show, or tennis court, or art gallery, or swimming pool.

Little children learned to love each other across the old dining room table—maybe. But they didn't learn to understand and co-operate with the world, as they can today in the cheapest automat.

"The modern home has crowded the family into the streets?"

"Sure it has! But why crab about that? A street's the best schoolroom in the world, if you clean it up, light it up and fill it with decent fun, fine work and brotherly love.

So let's stop beefing for the dear old days that are gone, and begin to do a little constructive hustling in the fine new days that have come!

The Coolidge Straw: Work and Trade

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The House in Washington has smashed the economy program of the leaders of both parties and the economy bill, originally providing a saving of $200,000,000, emerges with a saving of but $40,000,000. Nothing is more interesting than the headlines of a partisan newspaper. And nothing more deceptive. I forget who it was who said that if permitted to write the headlines for a story he would not care who wrote the story. Thus we read in the headlines of a leading administration paper in New York City that the smashing of the economy program is due to ''Revolt from Democratic Leadership.'' A little analysis of the headlines is necessary for an intelligent understanding of just what happened.

The economy program then, was the program of the administration, of the Republican leaders in the House and of the Democratic leaders.

There was a "revolt," but there was a Republican revolt against Republican leadership and a Democratic revolt against Democratic leadership.

The Democrats have a meager majority in the House, but on the final roll call the two parties were about equally split.

The truth is that the revolt was against the official leadership of both parties.

* * *

Has Lost the Confidence Of the Country

Just now the most significant "revolt" is that threatened against the leadership of the Republican party by Mr. Hoover. Were every Republican, inspired by the spirit of revolt, to act on his inspiration, the President would be refused a second nomination. Practical politicians have no stomach for a campaign shibboleth of "Four More Years of Hoover."

This spirit of revolt is not confined to the politicians. It is strong among the business men and financiers, who have been the storm troops of Republican campaigns for generations. The President's part in forcing the probe of the stock market, which has failed to disclose any dark conspiracy of wicked Democrats or foreign governments to prevent the economic recovery of the country, has not endeared Mr. Hoover in business circles.

More important than the manipulation of stock brokers in the bear movement are administration policies. The administration's tariff policy, to which it adheres with a tenacity worthy of a better cause, that has wrecked our foreign trade—has a bearish effect.

It is not an attack on the President but the mere statement of a notorious fact to say that he has lost the confidence of the country, and that his mere presence in the White House has a bearish effect. That is the reason that the financial wing of his party is now whispering—"Draft Coolidge."

* * *

But Why Coolidge?

But why Coolidge? Nothing contributed so much to the depression as the Coolidge policies. The panic was on its way and inevitable before he left office. It must be a feeble-minded person, or even financier, who does not now know that the "boom" of the last two years of the Coolidge regime would lead inevitably to ruin. Every one now must know that we owe our ruin to the utterly dishonest bull market of 1928. Every one remembers that it was the high officials of the Coolidge regime that began the issuing of misleading statements on the business conditions of the country. It would be easy for Mr. Hoover to defend himself by saying that he is the victim of the policies of his predecessor but for the fact that he himself helped frame the policies.

Do the "Draft Coolidge" people complain that Mr. Hoover is unable to lead his party or to get his policies through? The answer, of course is that no President in years was repudiated by a Congress of his own party persuasion as frequently as Mr. Coolidge. He had a handsome majority in Congress and yet measures were passed over his veto.

If financiers entertain the thought that conditions were good and sound in 1927 and 1928 they are incapable of learning even from tragic experience.

* * *

Coolidge Was Wiser Than Mellon

Five and six years ago, these financiers and business men, and the great unthinking mass that snobbishly parrot the great were firmly convinced of the ineffable wisdom of Coolidge and Mellon. The latter was "the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton." But during the last three years the magic of Mellon was lost. No praise was heard. No peans were sung. The miracle man was found to have feet of clay, and there was no weeping and gnashing of teeth when he departed for London. Had he gone out with Coolidge the glamour might have clung to his fame; and had Coolidge stayed in with Mellon it would have made not one particle of difference in the depression.

But Coolidge was wiser than Mellon; he knew when to go.

Again We Suggest The Prosperity Loan

More important to merchants and manufacturers is the problem of restoring purchasing power to the unemployed.

Again we suggest the Prosperity Loan—as the best way to turn the corner. It is not a half-baked idea. It was a good idea, well thought out, when Mr. Hearst proposed it first, more than a year ago. The other day we quoted the view of Prof. Taussig, of Harvard; now we have the opinion of another great economist, Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, of Columbia University, expressed in a letter to Senator Wagner.

"I believe that that is about the only way in which we can make a start for the better. All the efforts, and they have been well considered ones, that are being made by the government now are good so far as they go, but easy money is not adequate. I doubt whether even if capital were made entirely costless—that is, if the discount rates were reduced to zero—the wheels of industry would be set in motion again at once. The industrialist today is more anxious about a possible market for his goods than the cost of producing those goods."

And then he adds:

"What we need, therefore, is not simply more available credit, although that is good so far as it goes, but the actual setting of the wheels of industry into motion. I do not see how there is any other recourse at present except a program of government outlay on a large scale."

So when Congress comes to pass upon the Wagner bill, or the La Pollette bill, the idea cannot be brushed aside as economically unsound or unwise. Behind it is the best thought in the country.

* * *

The Foreign Market Is Lost to Us

"The industrialist today is more anxious about a possible market for his goods,"—which tells the whole story.

With more than 8,000,000 breadwinners, heads of families, out of work, and with no purchasing power, the domestic market is wrecked. More can be done through a Prosperity Loan to rectify that than in any other way.

And the foreign market is lost because of the administration's tariff policy. Without the foreign market we have wantonly thrown away at the behest of Mr. Grundy, we never can get back to normal. And the Congress has passed the Democratic House bill asking the President to begin negotiations for the restoration of the foreign markets—and he will do nothing of the sort.

The administration is thinking in terms of easy money, easy credit, and not in terms of trade. And yet the very heart of all our trouble is the loss of trade.

If the administration thought more about trade and less about bears on the market there would be more bulls.
